SHELVING SANCTIONS

RITAIN AND LEAGUE OF NATIONS

THE GOVERNMENT'S VIEW

'UT AT GENEVA MEETING

Britain's view is that the League of Nations should be put on a sounder basis. This could be done by an honest avowal of the League's limitatuers and the re-examination of the original intentions of its founders.

EARL DE LA WARR, LORD PRIVY SEAL, LEFT NO DOUBT OF THE FEELINGS OF THE BRITISH GOVERNMENT WHEN HE SPOKE AT THE LEAGUE ASSEMBLY AT GENEVA YESTERDAY.

HE POINTED OUT THAT THE GOVERNMENT CONSIDERED THAT THE AUTHORITY OF THE LEAGUE AND ITS USEFULNESS AS AN INSTRUMENT OF PEACE COULD THUS BE INCREASED.

'COERCIVE CLAUSES."

There was, he said, nothing essentially wrong with the Covenant, ıt the Assembly should recognise frankly the actual situation as regards the so-called coercive clauses.

Even in a case where a breach of the Covenant had been established there would, in the view of his Majesty's Government, be no automatic obligation to apply either economic or military sanctions.

The Government suggested that there were certain principles on which the League was founded and on which it was possible to compromise.

Secondly, the situation in which it now found itself, although of extreme difficulty, was not permanent.

"LIVING IN MOMENTOUS TIMES"

GENEVA, Friday.—Earl De La Warr, the Lord Privy Seal, opened the debate in the Assembly at Geneva this morning before flying to England.

"We are living in momentous times," he said. "A great effort is being made for the preservation of peace.

"The heartfelt wish of all of us here must be that this effort should be successful."

Earl De La Warr added:—

"We can do much to help one another to bring about a general improvement in the political situation, but we cannot by ourselves alone solve the problems which confront us.

"If our efforts are to be successful the collaboration of the great political systems outside this society is indispensable."

In the Article of the Covenant which provided for the peaceful settlement of disputes there was a piece of machinery which should be of real value, and which had not received the attention and the use which it merited.

"Any enhancement of the strength of this machinery would be welcomed by his Majesty's Government."

The British Government considered that an honest avowal of the limitations of the League and the re-examination of the original intentions of its founders would have the effect of putting it on a sounder basis and of increasing its authority and usefulness as an instrument of peace

GOVERNMENT'S SUGGESTIONS.

Earl De La Warr then put forward the suggestions of the British Government for dealing with that problem. He declared:

(1) That there were certain principles on which the League was founded and on which it was possible to compromise, and

(2) That the situation in which the League now found itself, although one of extreme difficulty, was not permanent.

There was nothing essentially wrong with the Covenant, but the Assembly should recognise frankly the actual situation as regards the so-called coercive clauses of the Covenant. The British Government would be ready to make clear their attitude in the appropriate committee.

"The view of the United Kingdom is that the circumstances in which occasion for international action would arise and the possibility and nature of the action to be taken cannot be determined in advance, and that each case must be considered on its merits.

"Thus, even in a case where a breach of the Covenant had been established, there would, in the view of his Majesty's Government, be no automatic obligation to apply either economic or military sanctions."

Earl De La Warr went on to suggest that a modification of the unanimity rule applying to Article 11 would enable the League to intervene effectively sooner than it was now to be expected in any great dispute that might arise.

It was the firm intention of his Majesty's Government to preserve the League of Nations.

"We cannot but all face courageously the fact that its defenders have made mistakes in the past, sometimes being too rigid in adherence to a status quo, sometimes over-optimistic and at others lacking courage.

"After all the League is a human institution and can never be better than the nations and human beings who compose it.

"These are dark days not only for the League, but for the whole human race.

"We have only to read a daily paper or listen to a news broadcast to feel that the world has gone mad and bestial.

"The task that lies before our generation is to recreate the League in the things that make life worth while, and to prove that we are not indeed so hopeless or so helpless.

"We must do so not only in the name of idealism, but of realism itself." (Cheers.)—Reuter.

THE GREEN SCARF TRAGEDY.

WHITING NOT GUILTY.

FINAL STAGES OF TRIAL.

JUDGE'S CHARGE.

Mr. Justice Wrottesley summed up at the Old Bailey on Friday when the closing stage was reached of the trial of William Whiting (38), labourer, of Folkestone, charged with the murder of Phyllis May Spiers. Mrs. Spiers was found strangled in a coppice with a green scarf tied round her neck.

Mr. Justice Wrottesley said Mrs. Spiers met her death some time between the early afternoon of May 23 and May 26, when her body was found—how long before May 26 was in dispute. It was clear that she was alive in the company of Whiting on May 23, and they were going in the direction of the place of the murder.

Sir Bernard Spilsbury was of the opinion that Mrs. Spiers had been dead, approximately, for three days when she was found. If Whiting murdered the girl on May 23 the jury might well ask whether anything of his was found near the body.

First and foremost there was the green scarf. Where did it come from? There was the finding of a purse in Whiting's jacket resembling one which Mrs. Spiers had had.

HIS TORN COAT.

Dealing with the difficulty the murderer would have in dragging the body through a gap in the coppice, Mr. Justice Wrottesley said that in the urgency of the moment he would probably not notice some barbed wire. He might well tear his coat, and Whiting's coat was torn. He said he had done it mushrooming. Another coincidence was the finding of a human hair, resembling that of Whiting, on a post in the gap.

Mr. Justice Wrottesley pointed out that what was most strongly relied on by the defence was the evidence of witnesses that they had seen Mrs. Spiers after the time the Crown said she was dead. If the jury thought that only one of these witnesses was not making a mistake, and that the girl was seen alive after May 23, they had no choice but to find Whiting not guilty.

The jury retired after the Judge had concluded the summing up, which lasted [illegible] and a half hours.

VERDICT OF "NOT GUILTY."

The jury, on which there were three women, were two hours and 23 minutes considering their verdict. They returned a verdict of not guilty.

Whiting turned immediately to leave the dock, but was brought back by the warders until the Judge had said "You are discharged." The verdict was received by a loud outburst of clapping.

LIVERPOOL PROVISIONS.—Fowls 7d to 7½d, chickens 9½d to 10½d.

BIRKENHEAD CATTLE.—For a smaller supply of cattle there was a very poor demand, and late rates could not be maintained. Choice small bullocks and heifers made 7½d, good medium weights 6d to 6½d, heavy and other classes around 6½d, young cows and bulls 5d, other sorts 4d to 4½d. The supply of lambs was much in excess of demand, and a further decline in prices was recorded. Best small weights made 8d, other sorts 7½d—all prices per lb. sinking offal. The week's supplies were 1,911 cattle and 4,904 lambs.

GLASGOW CORN.—The market continues in rather an unsettled state, and the nominal value of No. 1 Manitoba wheat is 38s 9d per 480lbs. c.i.f. Glasgow. Plate maize is scarce on spot, with 6s 9d per cwt. about the value named, boats are worth about 6s 3d to 6s 6d according to position. Grinding barley is held for 6s per cwt. on spot; for the forward position the value is 5s 7½d per cwt. Home mill offals show some improvement, and offers are not so plentiful as they were. First grade Australian flour on spot is now at 22s per 280lbs. ex store plus quota.

GLASGOW IRON AND STEEL.—Scrap metals—It had been expected that the quotation of future values would have been decided, but no decision has yet been arrived at. Prices will be fixed shortly for a fresh period. Conditions continue unaltered.

DUBLIN CORN.—Wheat in fair supply and readily placed. Oats generally slow, buyers showing a waiting attitude at new samples; 14s to 14s 6d per barrel delivered, old 16s to 17s, and wheat 27s 6d to 30s 6d according to bushel weight.

CLEVELAND IRON.—Some further expansion of inquiry for certain commodities encourages hope of a steady trade revival, but substantial orders are needed to restore the normal output of iron and steel, and as yet the volume of business is light. Consumers of foundry iron have now little Continental pig on hand, and using increasing quantities of Cleveland brands, the supply of which is not over plentiful. Stocks of East Coast hematite still embarrassingly large, but the output barely, if at all, exceeds current needs, and the unsatisfactory statistical position promises to improve. Sales of semi-finished iron and steel difficult to effect, users being extensively covered. Heavy steel makers busy, but producers of most other finished materials far from well employed.

POISON IN WHISKY ALLEGATION.

CITY STEWARD'S DEATH.

WIFE AND MAN ACCUSED.

Spirits of salts put in a bottle of whisky were alleged by the prosecution at the Mansion House, London, on Friday, to have caused the death of Francis Cyril Newlands, aged 40, a City steward.

Elsie Rose Newlands (39), his wife, and Horace Budd (29), engineer, were charged with murdering Newlands.

He died in hospital after he had drunk from a whisky flask at a party at his flat the previous day.

Mr. J. B. M'Clure, prosecuting, said that Newlands died on August 21. "The evidence, I think, leaves it open to no doubt that he died of poison—some irritant poison—and the prosecution say that the poison was spirits of salts," he added.

The case against the woman was certainly not nearly so strong as that against Budd. On August 20, in the flat in Temple Chambers, in addition to Mr. and Mrs. Newlands, was a man named Griffin and another man named Cousins. When Budd arrived he went straight to the kitchen where Mrs. Newlands was preparing a meal. He began to mend a leaking urn and produced from an attache case a soldering iron, solder and a bottle containing spirits of salts. Neither Mrs. Newland nor Budd had lunch with the others. Budd said that he was in his working clothes and he remained in the kitchen.

"The prosecution suggest that this soldering was part of a design to get spirits of salts into the flat," said Mr. M'Clure. From the time the work was finished the bottle had never been seen by anybody.

"That bottle and its disappearance is almost the central piece of evidence in this case," Mr. M'Clure added.

A flask bottle of whisky was in Mr. Newland's bedroom. Mr. Newlands had the "curious habit" of offering his guests plenty of beer but not putting whisky on the table. He used to go to his bedroom and have a drink by himself.

Mr. M'Clure alleged that between 1-10 p.m. and 3-10 p.m. spirits of salts were added to the whisky.

The hearing was adjourned until next Thursday.

FASTEST ON LAND.

DISTINCTION AGAIN WON BY EYSTON.

SPEED OF 357.5 MILES P.H.

RECORD CROWD SEE IT DONE.

Higher and higher goes the world land speed record.

Captain George Eyston, who held it up till Wednesday and lost it to his fellow Briton, John Cobb, on Thursday, won it back yesterday with a new high speed record of 357.50 m.p.h.

Eyston's original record stood at 345.49 miles an hour. Cobb put it up to 350.20.

Eyston's first run was at 356.44 and his second 358.57. His figures for the kilometre were 357.34 miles an hour.

The records are being made on the Bonneville Salt Flats, Utah, where the day-to-day duels of the British rivals have fired the imagination of the public.

The biggest crowd ever seen assembled by the course yesterday.

There will be no more runs by either Cobb or Eyston until Wednesday.

COBB AND SPEED RECORD.

NOT MAKE FRESH ATTEMPT.

SAILING FOR HOME WEDNESDAY.

BONNEVILLE SALT FLATS (Utah), Friday.—Mr. John Cobb, whose land speed record Capt. G. E. T. Eyston to-day smashed with the amazing speed of 357.50 m.p.h., said to-day that he would not make another attempt on the record.

Adjustments to his car would take a fortnight to complete, and he couldn't remain in America for that length of time. Mr. Cobb sails in the Queen Mary from New York on Wednesday.—Exchange.

MRS. EYSTON AND THE DUEL.

Mrs. George Eyston was very happy about her husband's wonderful performance. Asked whether Captain Eyston would have another attempt to break the record should John Cobb beat his latest figures, she said:—"If Thunderbolt is capable of more speed I am certain he will. All depends, however, whether he has reached his maximum speed. If he has it is useless for him to try again, but until I have heard from him I cannot say. I am expecting a cable from my husband in a day or two when he has collected his thoughts.

"I am getting rather used to this record breaking now, and I should not be surprised to see my husband and Mr. Cobb having their little duel for as long as the weather lasts."

BRITISH VESSELS DAMAGED

IN BARCELONA AIR RAID.

GRIM QUAYSIDE SPECTACLE.

BARCELONA, Friday.—Twenty-nine persons were killed and 114 wounded during an insurgent air-raid on the port of Barcelona to-day

In the raid, which was carried out by three squadrons, several British vessels were hit by bomb splinters.

The superstructure of the British ship Lake Hallwil was badly splintered. Six dead horses, damaged carts and cars littered the quayside.

The Lake Hallwil has an all-British crew. Her master is Captain Richard Thompson, of South Shields.

She has a German observer, Captain Geisler, of Bremen, on board, and was discharging a cargo of coke.

The vessel was also hit by splinters in a raid on Tuesday.

Captain Thompson was master of the Lake Lugano, which was bombed and set on fire off Palamos on August 7.

Other British ships damaged were the Caulake (London) and Powier (Gibraltar).

The latter's bridge was destroyed and one of the crew injured. The Caulake's stern was hit.—Press Association Foreign Special.

TRIED TO ESCAPE TO ENGLAND

IN PEER'S MOTOR BOAT.

AGROUND ON SANDBANK.

ADVENTURE OF THREE SOLDIERS.

Three young soldiers who tried to escape to England in a peer's motor-boat, but went aground on a sandbank at Dundrum, Co. Down, were at Newcastle Petty Sessions yesterday sent to prison for three months with hard labour.

They were Leslie Victor Halls, Wm. George Lambert, and John H. Williams, all aged 19, and privates in the 2nd Battalion the Northamptonshire Regt. stationed at Ballykinlar, and they pleaded guilty to removing the boat without the permission of its owner, the Marquis of Downshire, and damaging it to the extent of £2; stealing three oilskin coats and a pair of marine binoculars, value £5, and maliciously damaging a lifebelt.

Frederick G. Keys, an employe of the Marquis of Downshire, gave evidence that on his way to the boathouse on August 30 he saw the three accused sitting on the shore. He asked them what they were doing there, and they said they were resting. Witness left the boat secure at her moorings at 7-30.

District-Inspector Silcock—Did these men see you fill her with oil?—Yes.

Witness said he was called out of bed at 6 a.m. next day by a message that the boat was on a sandbank. He subsequently went out to her and made her secure. On examining her he found that she was in a state of disorder. He also found that a pair of binoculars, three oilskins, and a lifebelt were missing.

Hubert Wilson, Hillview Avenue, Belfast, described how he found the binoculars in a ditch at Ascot Park, Belfast, while he was taking a walk on September 7. On the 14th he saw an advertisement concerning them in the "Telegraph," and immediately took them to Ballyhackamore Barracks.

SERGEANT'S INVESTIGATIONS.

Sergeant Bothwell, Dundrum, said when he examined the boat on August 31 he found that the upper part of the cabin door had been cut open, and the remainder of the door had then been forced open. A card of instructions on how to start the engine had been torn up. He made inquiries about the three men who had been seen in the vicinity, and on September 3 interviewed Lambert, but Lambert denied that he knew anything about the affair. On the 7th, however, he made a statement in connection with it, and took witness over the Ballykinlar hills to search for the three oilskins, but they were unable to find them. He saw, however, the remains of a fire, and found portion of the missing lifebelt. It had been burned. On the 10th he (witness) interviewed Halls, who said he would try to find the oilskins and the binoculars. They searched the hills again without success for the oilskins, and Halls then brought him up to Shandon Park golf links in Belfast, and pointed out a hedge where he said Williams had thrown the binoculars. They had then gone. Williams was not arrested until Wednesday in Coventry.

Mr. S. C. Clarke, R.M.—Apparently they were going to desert?

The Sergeant—Yes.

LAMBERT'S STATEMENT.

The sergeant put in a statement by Lambert in which he said:

"On August 29 I met Privates Williams and Halls coming out of their hut. We had previously arranged to meet there. We went along the railway line to Dundrum and went up a drive where we stayed the night.

"Next day we went down to the shore where we saw three men putting oil into a motor launch. We remained about the place until about 10 p.m. when we went aboard the launch. I broke open the door of the cabin.

"We slept for about two hours and then got up and started to work the engine. We could not get the engine started and at 4 o'clock we undid the boat and let it drift with the tide. Williams steered and Halls and I lay down in the cabin and went to sleep.

"When I awoke the boat was on a sandbank. We tried to get it off but could not. There were three oilskin coats in the cabin and we took one each and put our clothes inside them. We then swam ashore on our backs, with the clothes in our arms.

"Williams could not swim, so we put a lifebelt on him. I took the glasses with me. When we got ashore we lighted a fire with the lifebelt."

The statement went on to describe how they subsequently made their way across the sandhills towards Tyrella, each wearing an oilskin, but when they came across soldiers drilling they dumped the coats and ran. Subsequently they made their way to Downpatrick, where Lambert told Halls and Williams that he was going to give himself up. They went on to Belfast and he slept out that night, Thursday, and gave himself up about 9-30 p.m. on Friday. He did this to give the others time to get away.

Lambert added that they had arranged to go to England by the motor-launch six weeks previously. They wanted to escape from the Army.

TWO STOWED AWAY.

Statements by the others described how Halls and Williams went to the Belfast docks to see if they could get a ship to take them across the water. One of them stowed away in the lifeboat of a collier, and went to Birkenhead, but the other was frightened off by a man on the quay whom he took to be a detective. He subsequently succeeded in stowing away on another boat and landed at Warrington.

Lieut. G. S. Drew, of the 2nd Northamptonshire Regiment, said the records of the accused in the Army were not good, and they were not wanted back.

Sergeant Bothwell said that all three had criminal records before joining the Army.

The accused said they did not want to go back to the Army.

Mr. Clarke—And you took this way of getting out?

The Accused (together)—Yes.

Mr. Clarke—A man who can only get out of the Army by being drummed out in this way is a very poor specimen.

He sentenced them each to three months' imprisonment.

PRIVATE FOR DOWN SESSIONS.

At a special Court held in Dundrum Police Barracks, before Mr. Hugh Crail, J.P., William Hinton, a private in the 2nd Battalion of the Northamptonshire Regiment, was committed for trial at Downpatrick Quarter Sessions, charged with setting fire to a hut and contents, the property of Messrs. R. D. Pollock & Co., Ltd, Bangor, and value for £40, on September 30.

Sergeant Bothwell gave evidence of a statement by the accused in which he said that he did it to get out of the Army, that he wanted home to help his mother.

LAND ANNUITIES PROBLEM.

FARMERS' DEPUTATION.

REPLY BY ULSTER PREMIER

CHANGE NOT IN REAL INTERESTS.

The deputation recently appointed by the Council of the Ulster Farmers' Union to approach Viscount Craigavon on the question of the Land Annuities waited on his Lordship yesterday.

The deputation consisted of Mr. R. J. Hale, president; Mr. A. M'Connell, J.P., Doagh; Mr. R. H. Gibney, Corbet, Banbridge; Mr. Edward Greenlees, Carnmoney; Mr. J. E. Flanagan, Letterbreen, Fermanagh; Mr. R. Baillie, Magherally; Mr. John Gray, Dunadry, and Mr. H. Jamison, secretary.

The Prime Minister, who received them in accordance with previous arrangement, was accompanied by the Minister of Agriculture (Sir Basil Brooke) and the Minister of Finance (Mr. J. M. Andrews, D.L.).

The position taken up by the council of the Union and advocated at branch meetings all over the North was that the Land Annuities should be reduced to one-half the present amount of payment, and therefore spread over a longer period.

The Prime Minister informed the deputation that he was satisfied it was not in the real interests of the farming community to apply for any alteration in the amount of the terms of the Land Annuities, and that he would never be a party to it.

OFFICIAL REPORT.

The official report of the interview states:—

"The Prime Minister, accompanied by the Minister of Finance (Right Hon. J. M. Andrews) and the Minister of Agriculture (Sir Basil Brooke, Bart.), received a deputation from the Ulster Farmers' Union in regard to the proposed extension in the period of payment of Land Annuities.

"A full discussion took place, at the conclusion of which the Prime Minister first of all referred to the fact that under the provision of the Government of Ireland Act, 1920 (preserved by the Land Purchase Winding-up Act of 1935), no reduction in the amount of the Annuities or extension of the period could be made without legislation in the Imperial Parliament.

"If the Imperial Government were approached with a view to such concession being made they would undoubtedly consider themselves entitled to review the whole question of the assistance by way of agricultural subsidies, which was being given to Northern Ireland farmers in common with farmers in Great Britain at the expense of the British Exchequer.

"The Prime Minister further pointed out that the deputation itself had made it clear that even a remission of the Land Annuities would not suffice as a means of lifting the agricultural industry out of its difficulties. Ever since the Government came into office he and his colleagues had constantly in mind the task and duty of helping the small farmer of Ulster, who constituted the bulk of the agricultural community. It was often quite easy to give a concession which would be popular, but, however popular a certain concession might be, if he were satisfied, as in this case, that it was not in the real interests of the farming community he would never be a party to it.

ENDANGERING THE FUTURE.

"He repeated that after examining the situation carefully he was satisfied beyond a doubt that if the Government raised with the Imperial authorities the question of a concession on the Land Annuities it would at once jeopardise their position in securing the financial assistance which was being given to the Ulster farmers, either directly or indirectly, by the Imperial Government, and would thus endanger for the future the very important advantage which the Northern Ireland farmers possessed of enjoying the same assistance and the same concessions as farmers in other parts of the United Kingdom.

"He added that the Government will continue to foster the development of the agricultural industry and to use all possible resources for that purpose.

"For the foregoing reasons, which possibly were not in the minds of the Ulster Farmers' Union when they put forward their resolution for the extension of the period of the Annuities, he hoped the deputation would realise once and for all that not merely was it impossible but it would be in the highest degree injudicious to consider any alteration in the amount or the term of the Annuities."

SEQUEL TO SPORTING CLUB RAID.

76 GLASGOW MEN FINED.

146 WERE CHARGED.

Seventy-six men were fined at Glasgow Police Court yesterday on charges concerning betting in premises known as the Scottish National Sporting Club, 36 Olympia Street.

They admitted the offence.

Of the 146 men charged with being in premises and betting at the time when the police made the raid, 71 denied they were taking part.

This plea was accepted and the men were allowed to go.

The aggregate of fines was £33 15s, including £10 and £5 penalties imposed on the principals.

The prosecutor stated that when the raid was made on the premises, bets were being accepted for a dog track meeting which was in progress that night. Wagers of from 6d to 2s were being placed. Nearly £7 10s was found in cash, and the scribbling cards, racing programmes, and other materials filled two boxes in the court.

"This place," said the prosecutor, "is a dog track without the dogs. Over 600 bets had been placed that evening before the police arrived, while next week's football matches were all tabulated.."

CIRCUS LION MAKES GETAWAY

FROM BANBRIDGE SHOW

TROTTED ACROSS FIELDS.

STAFF FOLLOW AND RETAKE IT.

A turn which did not enter into the ordinary circus programme provided Banbridge people with an unexpected thrill on Friday night.

A well-known travelling circus had pitched its tent in a field opposite the Cricket Ground, the entrance to which is by way of a laneway some 200 yards long. Children from all over the district attended the matinee and were regaled by clowns, flash riders on horseback and all that goes to make the peculiar romance associated with the saw-dust ring.

When they left the arena they were in blissful ignorance of a greater thrill.

About 7 o'clock it was discovered that a lion which had been on view during the afternoon had escaped.

The hue and cry was raised, but the animal darted through the field stretched along the roadway known as "Law's Lane." People living in this fairly thickly populated district on seeing the big cat shouted for their youngsters to come home, and doors were hurriedly barred.

The lion quite unconcernedly trotted through the fields towards the main Belfast road.

The circus staff, with nets and other gear, were in hot pursuit and following up the trail captured the animal in time for the night performance.

No damage was done beyond the neighbourhood being scared.

KILLARNEY TRAGEDY AFTERMATH.

BOAT OWNER SUMMONED.

SERIES OF CHARGES.

The boating disaster at the "Meeting of the Waters," Killarney, on August 24, when five people lost their lives, had a sequel on Friday when Patrick Lynch, of Danesfort, Killarney, owner of the ill-fated craft and one of its crew, was served with five summonses which will come on for hearing at Killarney District Court on October 4.

The summonses alleged that Lynch by criminal negligence in the navigation and management of the boat killed Charles Parker, Rita Bowden, Arthur Greenwood, Gwendoline Norton, and Miss M. A. Perren; that he carried passengers for hire in a boat not licensed for the carrying of passengers; that he carried a greater number of passengers than that specified in a licence; that his name was not painted on a conspicuous part of the boat, and that he failed to exercise proper skill and care in the navigation and management of the boat, and to take such precautions as might be necessary to prevent danger to passengers.

PALACE BARRACKS.

ONCE BISHOP'S RESIDENCE.

STRANGE NAMES IN OLD DEED.

The Palace Barracks, Holywood, which had a "field day" on Saturday when some twenty to thirty thousand people visited the barracks for the "Army at Home," has a most interesting history. This dates back to the year 1827, since when until 1887 the Palace was the residence of the Bishops of Down and Connor. On March 1, 1887, the Palace and some 67 acres of ground were sold by public auction at the salerooms of Messrs. H. C. Clarke and Son, Rosemary Street, Belfast.

A record of the auction is held by Mr. E. F. Hares, Kinnegar, in the form of a large boldly printed catalogue, which sets out the conditions. Under the heading of "Tenure and particulars" the following appears:—"Part of Lands of Knocknagoney, in the County of Down, held under lease dated the 3rd June, 1791, and made between John Jackson, the elder, and John Jackson, the younger, of the one part, and Gilbert Webster of the other part (excepting all Mines, Minerals, Coals and Quarries of Marble, Freestone and Salt, Moss, Turbary, and all other Royalties whatsoever). The said Lease contains the usual Covenants between Landlord and Tenant, and a Covenant by the Tenant to do suit and service at the Manor Courts of the Manor of Holywood and pay the Seneschal of said Manor his usual fines and fees, and grind all corn and grain at such Mill or Mills as the said John Jackson, the elder and John Jackson, the younger, were bound to, and pay the usual toll for grinding the same, and in default thereof, to pay unto the Lessors the sum of 2s (then) sterling for every barrel of corn or grain ground at any other Mill."

The foregoing represents only a small extract. Jackson Road, which runs along by the side of the married quarters of the present barracks, takes its name from the Jacksons mentioned in the deed.

"This Lease was afterwards renewed by Indenture, dated the 12th February, 1827, and made between John Jackson, of the one part, and the Right Rev. Richard Mant, the then Bishop of Down and Connor, of the other part, and such renewal was for the lives of Godfrey Webster, the surviving life named in the original lease, and Walter Bishop Mant, and Agatha Mant, children of Richard, then Bishop of Down."

In the second part of these details many strange names of places, which may be remembered by some of the older residents of Holywood, are set out as follow:—"That Part of the Town and Lands of Knocknagoney, in the County of Down, called and known by the names of—The Near Bolis and Far Bolis, Long Park, Ash Park, Far Watlang, Bog Park, and Shore Park (excepting the Mines, Minerals, Coals and Quarries of Marble, Freestone, and Slate, Moss, Turbary, and all other Royalties whatsoever) were demised to the said Bishop and his successors for the lives of Arthur Marquis of Downshire, John Kennedy, the lessor, and Thomas Taggart."

Then describing the position of the land it stated, "This Property is delightfully situated in the midst of a thriving and prosperous neighbourhood, chiefly occupied by demesne and villa residences. It is well planted and intersected by a stream, and commands a beautiful view of Belfast Lough."

The stream still runs through the barrack grounds, and many of the villa residences are still standing.

MR. JASPER TULLY DEAD.

EIRE NEWSPAPER PROPRIETOR.

The death took place at Main Street, Boyle, on Friday, of Mr. Jasper Tully, proprietor and editor of the "Roscommon Herald." His ability as an organiser of the Land League and the vigour of his attacks on landlordism attracted the attention of Charles Stewart Parnell, and he was returned as a Nationalist member to Parliament for South Leitrim, which constituency he represented from 1892 until 1906.

Mr. Tully, who was 80 years of age, was one of the last of those who shared imprisonment with Parnell in Kilmainham. On numerous occasions he was prosecuted and imprisoned under various Coercion Acts. So unpopular was the "Roscommon Herald" with the Government that Mr. Tully, as proprietor and editor, and three other editors who occupied the chair in turn, were virtually undergoing simultaneously periods of imprisonment.

He was a fluent platform speaker and he attracted notice at Westminster by the readiness with which he assisted in the obstructive tactics introduced by Mr. Joseph Bigger.

FIVE DERRY YOUTHS FOR TRIAL.

BREAKING CHARGES.

ALLEGED STATEMENTS.

WALLET AND STAMPS IN FOYLE.

The hearing was resumed at Derry to-day, before Mr. R. S. Holland, R.M., of a number of larceny charges against James Donaghy (16½), Florence Street, Waterside; Robert Hughes (18), Aubrey Street, and William R. Edwards (19), Corporation Street.

Informations had been refused against another defendant named Reginald Doherty (22), of Fountain Street.

A fifteen-year-old boy and a 14-year-old boy were involved in some of the cases heard yesterday.

The five accused were returned for trial on bail.

District-Inspector Lynn prosecuted.

Cases against Hughes and Donaghey were proceeded with last evening.

Constable Mercer said on 7th inst. he went to the picture palace at 11-45 p.m., he heard a noise inside, and saw a flash of light. He sent to the barracks for assistance. A number of police arrived and witness went to a flat overlooking the palace. The police gained admission by the front. He heard someone shout, "I've got him." Witness told them to look out as there was another man, and then he heard a noise of someone jumping. There was a shout, "I've got him too." He then entered the palace and saw the two accused in the custody of the police. In Hughes' possession he found a jemmy and a pair of gloves which he was wearing, a torch, and a diamond.

R.M. REBUKES HUGHES.

As these and various other articles were produced Hughes was grinning broadly, and the R.M. observed: "Look here, Hughes, I don't know what is the cause of your hilarity, as you are not on an excursion. This is a very serious charge."

Donaghey had a jemmy, a pair of gloves, torch and other articles which had been identified. After arrest they said they had nothing further to add to what they had already said to Constable Lewers. Hughes had been formerly employed as a chocolate boy in the palace. The lock of an upstairs office door had been prised off and the woodwork around it was shattered.

John Knox, manager of the picture house, identified the articles produced as his property and said the damage to the door would be about £1.

Constable Verner said he and other police entered the palace at midnight on 7th inst. He saw Constable Milling holding Hughes on the stairs. He and Constable Milling went to a small yard and found Donaghey. Each of the accused was wearing gloves and carrying a jemmy.

Constable Milling said he saw the two defendants standing inside the picture house. He caught Hughes, but Donaghey jumped through a window into a yard 20 feet below.

Detective-Constable Lewers said on September 8 each accused made a long statement. Hughes said he, Donaghey, and Edwards went to the show in the palace on the 7th. Edwards went home and they concealed themselves in the empty flats above the boiler-house. After the place was locked up they searched everywhere for money but got none. On 10th inst. he made a further statement in which he said Edwards was with Donaghey and him when they broke into the picture palace. He did not want to bring Edwards into these cases because he was not caught by the police. Donaghey made statements to a similar effect and said they stayed on after the pictures, climbed up a drain-pipe, and hid themselves in a room above the boiler-room. When the police came he made for a window and fell out.

TO-DAY'S EVIDENCE.

When the hearing was continued this morning Hughes, Edwards, and Donaghy were charged with breaking and entering the lock-up office of Canavan's, commission agent, Foyle Street, and with breaking and entering the lock-up shop and office of Samuel Stewart & Co., Foyle Street, and stealing a quantity of postage stamps valued about 2s.

Detective-Constable Lewers gave evidence in the first charge, and described finding the drawers in Canavan's premises ransacked. He interviewed Hughes and Edwards, who made statements to the effect that after going to the pictures they went to the premises and searched for money and marked fooball coupons, but they got none. Edwards admitted having accompanied the other accused on the occasion and having opened a gas meter, in which he found no money. When arrested and charged Hughes said: "We did that." Edwards said: "We took nothing, but I broke the meter"; and Donaghy said: "We got nothing there."

John Jarvis gave evidence of the cheque produced having been taken from the private office which had been broken into.

Constable Mercer said he found the cheque produced in Hughes's possession.

Dealing with the second charge, Constable Lewers said he visited the premises of Samuel Stewart & Co. on the morning of the 3rd. The lower window sash of the private office had been opened, and there was a screwdriver wedged in the window. He went into the premises with the manager and found drawers prised open and the contents scattered on the floor. When interviewed, Hughes, Donaghy and Edwards all made statements admitting that they had broken into Stewart's office and made a search for money but got none. Donaghy said he threw a wallet and stamps into the river. Hughes said: "That is right. I took the stamps." Donaghy said that Edwards gave him the stamps and he threw them into the Foyle.

The five accused were returned for trial at the Recorder's Court. Bail in the case of Donaghy, Edwards and Hughes was fixed at £50 and two £25's, and in the case of the other two boys at £20 and two £10's.

DUBLIN RAILMEN SPRING SURPRISE.

'STAY-IN STRIKE' TO-DAY

DESPITE BALLOT DECISION.

DEVELOPMENT AT BROADSTONE.

There was a surprise development in Dublin yesterday in the dispute between the Great Southern Railway Co. and the constructional workers employed at the company's depot at Broadstone.

On Thursday night the workers considered a modified proposal from the company under which the company withdrew the notice closing down the works at both Broadstone and Inchicore for a fortnight from Monday next, but imposing a three-day working week. The workers agreed to take a ballot on this proposal to-day, but overnight the Broadstone workers apparently changed their minds, and declared a stay-in strike yesterday morning.

Some 300 workers, made up of carpenters, painters, body makers, assemblers and others went early to the works and declared they will remain in until the company's offer is amended.

Neither the men's unions nor the company will make any statement on the situation which has now developed. Some of the unions say that the stay-in strike is unofficial and that the ballot will proceed.

No pickets were posted by the stay-in strikers, and no police were in evidence at Broadstone, where the men carried on a sing-song and played cards inside the shops during the forenoon.

SUNDAY DANCES.

JUSTICE WALSH'S COMMENT

"PEOPLE WHO LEAVE DERRY."

"Those people who leave Londonderry on Sunday nights to attend fourpenny dances at places like Newtowncunningham would be better at home," commented District Justice Walsh at Newtowncunningham Court on Friday when he was dealing with applications for dance hall licences.

Applying for the renewal of the licence of the Columbia Hall, Mr. H. O'Doherty said the hall was a parochial one and controlled by the clergy.

The Justice said in this case he had received a complaint from a man of standing in the community, who objected to Sunday dances. He had never acted on anonymous complaints, but in this instance he had the man's name, who, he believed, was a reliable person who had no selfish interests in the matter. If these were purely judicial proceedings the Court could not act on information not proved in open court, but in his opinion administration of the Dance Hall Act was an administrative function, and in the exercising of it he regarded himself as free to act on his local knowledge. It was a nice legal point, however, and he would like to see the matter tested.

The Justice said his informant had no complaint with the conduct in the dance hall. He was sure everything inside the dance hall was all right, but he complained that a row had taken place following a football match, and that people came from Derry, where there were no public amusements on a Sunday, to places like this on the Border.

The Justice announced that he would limit the dance hours on Sunday night to 10, with permission to follow old time during the period of summer, but he would insert a provision in the licence that there would be no dancing at all on Sunday nights except with the consent of the local clergy.

Mr. J. Gillespie appeared for the trustees of the local Orange Hall, and applied for a renewal of the dance licence on last year's terms, which provided for the holding of six long dances with no dancing on Sunday nights.

The application was granted.

Patk. Hannigan, for whom Mr. J. B. M'Nulty appeared, applied for a licence for the Altaghaderry Hall.

The Justice said that last year the representatives had asked for and received four long dances and two short dances weekly. That seemed very reasonable, and he was willing to renew the licence on the same terms.

Mr. M'Nulty said they would like permission for three short dances weekly.

Remarking that he considered two sufficient, the Justice granted the application without alteration from last year.

A licence was also granted in respect of the Burt Hall on the usual conditions.

LINEN TRADE REVIEW.

The Crisis Has Stifled Initiative

Past Week A Nightmare—Export Trade Not Flourishing—Buying From Argentine—Heartening Feature Of Market—Canada Can Surely Do Better—French Ban On Export Of Flax—Belgium Will Feel Pinch—Hand To Mouth Business—In Yarn and Cloth Sections—War Danger Shadow Over Whole Trade.

(From A Special Correspondent).

This has been a nightmare week in linen circles, for the European crisis has stifled initiative on the part of buyers. New prices, while firm with an advancing tendency, are largely untested. Fibre supplies are limited and of indifferent quality, and will remain so until the advent of the new crop. The decision of the French Government to prohibit the export of flax straw temporarily will have an effect on the Belgian flax market, from which Ulster spinners draw much of their raw material, as the Belgian scutchers are accustomed to obtain very large supplies of straw from France for retting, scutching, and sale in the Courtrai markets. Already there is a tendency on the part of holders of flax to refrain from selling until the outlook clears. Business in the Ulster yarn and cloth markets has been confined within the past few days to hand-to-mouth transactions of a bread and butter character, without the butter. The recent signs of revival in the yarn market have been checked, and the whole linen trade outlook is overshadowed by the danger of war. Until this is averted there is little prospect of any market improvement.

The export returns for August, released this week by the Board of Trade, are slightly more cheerful from a linen aspect than those of the three previous months, though still far below the figures of a year ago when U.S.A. and Chinese buying was comparatively normal. Last month the United Kingdom exported linen goods worth £430,815, as against £422,065 in the previous month and £657,389 in August, 1937. A heartening feature is better buying from Argentina. Last month that Republic purchased linen piece goods worth £19,755, as against £16,769 in August, 1937.

Drop In Exports.

Linen exports from the United Kingdom in the first eight months of this year amounted to £3,654,081, as against £5,284,820 in the corresponding period of 1937. An analysis of this decrease of £1,630,739 in eight months' trading shows that the piece goods section alone accounts for £1,156,228. United States purchases of piece goods declined by £733,311 during this period, and those of China by £221,429. That is a total drop of £954,740 by these two countries jointly. South Africa's purchases of piece goods declined from £25,441 during August last year to £19,187, though the period of eight months' trading shows an increase of £46,088 on the corresponding period of last year. In August India purchased U.K. linen piece goods to the value of £8,254, as against £10,905. In the first eight months of this year India purchased £85,889, as against £80,866 in the same period last year. Australia's August purchases of linen piece goods also show a decrease from £38,410 in 1937 to £31,671, but for the first eight months this year an increase to £291,741 from £275,541 for the corresponding period of last year. The amount of linen piece goods purchased in August by "other British countries" declined from £21,460 in 1937 to £15,484, but for the eight months' period there is an increase from £165,393 in 1937 to £196,548 this year. Concerning other markets, our linen piece goods shipments this year show the following decreases as compared with the equivalent 1937 figures:—New Zealand, £1,179; Canada, £4,052; Cuba, £2,001; Brazil, £9,845; Madeira, £2,595, and other foreign countries, £23,074. Shipments of damask table linen to U.S.A. are down by £97,496 for the first eight months of this year as compared with the corresponding period of 1937, while in the same period purchases of U.K. linen handkerchiefs declined by £35,678. Last month our exports of finished thread totalled £27,995 as against £37,049 in August, 1937; flax and hemp yarns valued at £55,467, which is a comparative decrease of £32,822. There was also a notable decrease in shipments of all other manufactures of linen and hemp.

Canada Disappoints.

Canada has proved a rather disappointing market for Ulster linen this year, and the buyers from that Dominion who have been operating in Belfast within the past few days have been welcome guests. In the first eight months of 1938 Canada imported U.K. linen piece goods worth £135,184 as against £175,366 in the corresponding period of 1937; damask table linen worth £121,175 as against £146,992, and handkerchiefs worth £34,999 as against £42,003.

A considerable increase is revealed in United Kingdom flax imports, which rose from £130,098 in August, 1937, to £191,154, the principal increase occurring in the case of imports from Latvia (£52,959 against £4,614). Imports of flax, tow or codilla totalled £63,920 against £21,049.

Last month the U.K. imported linen piece goods worth £8,366, an increase of £3,128; "other linen manufactures" worth £3,365, a decrease of £10,325, and flax and tow yarns worth £12,399, an increase of £8,589.

The movement towards recovery in commerce and industry in the United States continues. Pointing out that compared with two or three months back the industrial situation has been strengthened substantially, the National City Bank of New York observes in its monthly news letter that the spurt in the markets gave the metal and textile industries, in particular, more orders to work on, reduced their unsold stocks, and enabled them to raise operations to the best rate in many months. These are the most conspicuous gains, but other industries also have begun to move forward moderately, and the tendency of improvement to spread from one area to another brightens the outlook for all.

The American Market.

"New Yorkers" are now in the throes of returning from the mountains and seashore, but the stores are preparing for a home "fall" and winter. Stocks are being rounded out, and the middle price lines are gaining wide attention.

Members of the U.S.A. Art Embroidery Linen Importers' Association recently ordered the forwarding to America of all unworked or semi-processed linen which was being embroidered in the Swatow district of China for the U.S.A. market. Several of the leading linen embroidery works in China are owned by American linen importers who obtain their raw material in the form of piece goods from Ulster manufacturers. The centre of the China section of this trade is Swatow, and it is reliably reported that around two million dollars worth of embroidery linen have been hurriedly despatched to the U.S.A. from Swatow, whether unworked or semi-finished, for fear of its capture by the Japanese.

Despite the American purchases of Belgian dress goods, reported in our last review, Belgian linen manufacturers are feeling acutely the lack of buying from the U.S.A. Whilst during the first half of 1937 Belgium exported unbleached linen goods to the U.S.A. to the value of 13,264,000 francs, this dropped during the same period of this year to 5,165,000 francs; the corresponding figures for bleached linen were 87,099,000 francs last year as against only 37,516,000 francs this year. It is noteworthy that the Canadian Acting Prime Minister, Mr. T. A. Crerar, stated on Wednesday that Canada and U.S.A. representatives would confer in Ottawa next week on the subject of a new trade treaty. Mr. Crerar indicated that the new Anglo-U.S.A. Trade Pact would be announced before the end of the month.

Latvian Flax Policy.

The acceptance of flax by the Latvian Monopoly, discontinued on July 1, was reopened on September 1, and was continued until Thursday of this week. Within that period all balances of the 1937 crop of 40 tons and upwards were delivered. Smaller parcels may be handed over later, together with new crop flaxes. Purchasing prices for 1938-39 are the same as those for 1937-38. For the first time in the history of flax cultivation in Latvia the Monopoly has had for a time to dam the influx of fibre. This was brought about by the continued unrest on European markets, whilst on the other hand the Monopoly will not, in the interests of the Latvian flax producers drop prices so long as this can be avoided. The course of events in Europe will determine whether it is possible to maintain the comparatively high prices paid by the State for flax. If it were necessary to reduce prices distaste for flax culture in Latvia must grow. In the meantime the Chamber of Agriculture is making every effort to organise flax culture further. Russian and Belgian flax harvesting and decorticating machinery of the latest pattern is now being introduced to growers and scutchers in the Province.

Lancashire Cotton Market.

During the week prices of cotton have remained very steady, although there is a slight falling off at the moment. Business is, of course, not brisk, but interest has been greater than might be expected in the present state of world affairs. Buying has been well spread among the various qualities.

There is little change to report about Lancashire cotton yarns. Sales are still on a small scale and the general tone is so quiet that even inquiries and small orders are spoken of with relief. On the whole, the Egyptian section is less dull than the American, but we are a long way from being able to report any real improvement in the position.

There is more inquiry for cotton cloth. Indian buyers are interesting themselves in various styles, especially mulls and fancies, and inquiry from the Netherlands East Indies is also quite active. From the Continent there is some quickening of the demand for delivery of goods on order and a certain amount of new inquiry is coming forward. Indian trade is handicapped by the uncertainty as to the future rates of import duty on cotton goods. There is talk of a substantial reduction in the rate and, if this forecast is well founded, there appears to be real possibilities of substantial improvement. In any case, however, whether there is to be a reduction or not, the uncertainty of the prospect naturally prevents any active operation by forward buyers.

THE COST OF LIVING.

NO INCREASE, BUT WAGES UP.

The cost of living remained stationary last month. At September 1 the average level of retail prices was approximately [illegible] per cent. above the level of July, 1914, as compared with 56 per cent. at August 1, 1938, and 55 per cent. at September 1, 1937. For food only the percentages were 40, 41 and 40 respectively.

The changes in rates of wages reported to have come into operation in August result in an increase estimated at £12,700 in the weekly full time wages of about 222,000 workpeople, and in a decrease of £31,700 in those of about [illegible] workpeople. The principal groups of workpeople whose wages were increased were coal miners in Leicestershire, Warwickshire, and Scotland, and steel workers in various districts in Great Britain.

The principal decrease affected coal miners in Northumberland, Lancashire and Cheshire, Nottinghamshire, Derbyshire, Cannock Chase, and South Staffordshire, tinplate workers and workpeople employed in steel sheet rolling mills.

The changes so far reported in the eight completed months of 1938 are estimated to have resulted in a net increase of about £262,000 a week in the full time wages of 2,380,000 workpeople, and in a net decrease of about £28,500 in those of 123,000 workpeople.

THE HERRING INDUSTRY.

RETURNS AT ANNALONG.

The Annalong boats had good catches at inshore fishing during the week. Thursday night's catch was particularly good, some of the boats getting 30 to 35 mease of herrings. These sold at 29s to 35s per mease to Dublin and Belfast buyers.

KILKEEL INSHORE FISHING..

About 250 mease were landed on Thursday night, and on Friday morning close on 100 mease. There was a keen demand at 35s to 40s per mease. Curing is in full swing.

The herring are of excellent quality and the demand is good, as there is a large attendance of buyers.

SPECTACLED FOWL.

WILL PREVENT THEM SEEING RED.

PERCHED ON THEIR BEAKS.

Fighting pullets on a prison farm near Newark (New Jersey) now wear coloured spectacles to prevent them indulging in deadly battles among themselves, it was disclosed by prison officials.

The chickens had often had harmless scraps which would, however, turn into fights to death as soon as any blood was spilled.

To prevent them seeing red, spectacles are a deep rose colour. They have aluminium frames and are perched on their beaks, thus blinding the killers to the sight of enemy blood.

About 100 birds have been equipped in this manner for the past month, and the experiment has resulted, according to officials, in a marked decline in the mortality rate.

In fact, not one bird has been killed in fights since the start of the experiment. Before, the casualty list ran to one-tenth of the total flock.

The spectacles are made of transparent composition and are attached by cotter-pins inserted through the tops of the chickens' beaks.

QUEEN IN DITCHED CAR.

Queen Alexandrine of Denmark, who has recently recovered from a serious illness, had (says a Copenhagen telegram) a remarkable escape when a car in which she was travelling swerved into at ditch at Skagen. The Queen was unhurt.

THEIR TWO-YEAR HONEYMOON.

A newly-married couple have set sail in a 43-ton schooner-rigged auxiliary yacht for a two-year honeymoon cruise which will take them round the world. They are Captain Eric Hanner and his wife, formerly Mrs. B. F. Rhodes.

Three months ago the yacht Valkyrie arrived at Victoria (British Columbia) from Tahiti, in the South Seas. The crew included Captain Hanner, Mrs. Rhodes, owner of the boat; her son David, and two Tahitians.

Captain Hanner and Mrs. Rhodes were married at Victoria in June and planned the world cruise as a honeymoon. The stout little craft has Captain Hanner and his wife and the two Tahitians as its crew on its newest adventure. David Rhodes decided not to make the trip.

The Valkyrie will sail to San Francisco, then south to Cocos Island. After passing through the Panama Canal and across the Atlantic, the little ship will see the Mediterranean and Monte Carlo, and go on to Egypt, Bali, Java, Australia, New Zealand, the South Seas, Hawaii, and eventually back to Victoria.

HERMIT'S SECRET FORTUNE.

An aged hermit called Peter Brunelle, who is reported to have left a fortune of between £60,000 and £80,000, has died at St. Hyacinthe, in Quebec, wires the "Times" Ottawa correspondont.

He had worked only as a labourer and furnaceman, and he had lived alone in apparent poverty in a small house for years. But it was known that he had inherited money, and when he left no will a search in his house revealed secreted in various places £32,000 in bonds and £1,200 in cash. He also had mortgages on many properties.

NEW YORK AND TELEVISION.

A series of conducted tours has been organised by the National Broadcasting Company, New York, to introduce television to New Yorkers.

Each tour led by a guide one of a special corps highly trained in television technicalities, takes visitors first to the Television Museum to see the earliest devices used in television.

No television sets are yet being marketed in the United States. Unlike England, where television is already in the home, no Americans have private sets or can receive programmes except perhaps experimenters who have rigged their own apparatus.

Still in the experimental stage in the United States television is going through constant changes technically here, rendering it uneconomic yet for the public to invest money in sets. They would become obsolete too quickly.

"We have not put any television sets on the market yet," an N.B.C. official informed Reuter, "because it would not be fair to the public to expect them to buy an expensive set only to find it was useless very soon. We are waiting until we know we can honestly assure the public that when they buy a set it will be good for a reasonably long period. Then we shall market them.

Unable to state a definite time, the same official estimated the first sets for public sale would appear within the year.

Forty miles radius is the present limit of television reception in America—much the same as in England.

MARRIAGE OF MOTOR RACE INTEREST.

BRIDE MISS E. I. WRIGHT.

WEDS MR. C. E. J. ATKINSON, DUBLIN

Bride and bridegroom at Knockbreda Parish Church, Belfast, this afternoon are both prominent figures in motoring circles in Ireland. The former, Miss Eileen Isobel Wright, is daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Wright, Inveresk, Strandtown. She is now Mrs. Cecil E. J. Atkinson, her husband being son of Mr. and Mrs. G. Atkinson, Leinster Road, Rathmines, Dublin.

She has qualified as a timekeeper in motor racing, and frequently assists her father as timekeeper in prominent Irish races. Mr. Atkinson is one of the outstanding Irish motor-cycle trials riders. Another sporting interest which Mr. and Mrs. Atkinson share is that of flying.

Rt. Rev. F. J. MacNeice, Bishop of Down and Connor and Dromore officiated. He was assisted by Canon L. W. Crooks, M.A., rector of Knockbreda, and by Rev. H. C. Marshall, B.A., Carrowdore. The bride's cousin, Mr. A. Morrow, was at the organ, and Miss Kathleen Morrow sang "O Promise Me," as a solo. The hymns were—"O Perfect Love" and "O Father All-Creating."

The bride wore a handsome classical gown of parchment-coloured "magnolia" satin. The skirt formed a train, the fitting bodice had a heart-shaped neck line and long tight sleeves. The silk net veil was to tone, and fell gracefully from a gold beaded coronet. Her bouquet was of lilies and her ornaments pearls.

Miss Grace M. Capper was the only bridesmaid, and Mr. R. Graeme Leask was best man. Miss Capper was also in parchment colour. Her frock was of needle-run lace with matching coatee; it was trimmed with net to tone, the net repeated as finish to the full skirt. A halo of plaited gold tissue was headdress, and her shower bouquet of bronze and gold chrysanthemums.

The honeymoon will be spent in Corsica. For travelling, Mrs. Cecil Atkinson chose a two-piece suit in "myth" blue, the bodice entirely shirred, the full length coat with a bolero effect of Kolinski in "beggar's cloak" colour, and the model hat was to tone.

Mr. and Mrs. Wright entertained about 100 guests at the Grand Central after the ceremony. Mrs. Wright's two-piece ensemble of wool marocain was in "stained glass blue," the three-quarter length coat finished with grey fox, and the hat to correspond.

The flowers were supplied by Collins & Shields, Queen's Arcade, Belfast.

BRIDE FROM MANITOBA.

MARRIED AT WHITEHOUSE.

A bride from Canada was married in Whitehouse Presbyterian Church this morning. Miss Elsie Doherty is daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Doherty, Great Falls, Manitoba.

The bridegroom, Mr. Robert E. Clarke, is son of Dr. and Mrs. R. M. Clarke, 35 Myrtlefield Park, Belfast. Rev. James Nutt, B.A., officiated.

Miss Doherty wore a becoming gown of pink lace with matching coatee. The veil was finger tip length and attached to a halo of lace. Her ornaments were a bracelet, her mother's gift, and a pearl necklace, the gift of the bridegroom. She carried a bouquet of white heather and clove carnations.

Miss Elsie Frazer, cousin of the bride, was the only bridesmaid. Her pretty frock was of green, flowers were in her hair, and she carried pink carnations. Mr. James Quigley was best man.

THE ANNUAL RELAY EVENT.

ALL-ULSTER ATTRACTION.

FOOTBALL AND SWIMMING.

Once again the East Belfast District Association is inviting all Ulster Troops to take part in the annual relay race held under its jurisdiction. The actual date of the race, yet to be fixed, will probably be either the second or third Saturday in October. As year succeeds year this event is gradually attaining county proportions, as from a district race it has widened its scope to include entries from Londonderry, Limavady, Portstewart, Newtownards, and other centres.

This year's event will be the sixth of the series, the first race having been held in September, 1932. There was no race in 1935 owing to the Ulster Scout Bazaar. In previous races strong challenge by provincial Troops added colour to the event, and one of these Troops, 5th Derry, succeeded in gaining first place in 1934. 1937 provided the fastest race, three Belfast Troops, 22nd 26th, and 59th, obtaining the honours in that order. A good entry of Belfast Troops has been promised, but the East officials are particularly desirous that provincial Troops in greater number should take part.

There are many provincial Troops who have acquitted themselves well in their own district races at Derry, Lisburn, etc., and have teams capable of testing the best in Belfast. East District will gladly welcome any number of teams and entertainment will be provided as before. There is also a possibility that visiting teams may be enabled to stay in the city for a week-end. Scouters have almost a month in which to prepare boys for the race, though their entries should be sent immediately to the East Belfast Association.

BIG SCALE DISPLAY.

There was a good attendance when the Belfast County Scout Council met this week. The proceedings were directed by Mr. H. H. Stewart, chairman. In the minutes reference was made to the advisability of holding a big-scale display in Belfast early next year, and full agreement was expressed by the Council. The long-standing matter of a permanent camp site for the city was also a subject for discussion. This question of a ground for training purposes was proving quite a problem the main difficulty in obtaining suitable land was principally the cost. Mr. R. P. C. Gotto's (hon. treasurer) financial statement showed the Belfast Association to be spending more than income, one of the main reasons for this being the reduced number of subscribers owing to the passing of many of the movement's earliest supporters. Letters of thanks were read from the British Dental Association and from several visiting Troops, who were welcomed on arrival at Belfast. Major M. Spier, M.C., complimented District Commissioner T. E. Saunders and others on the splendid display given by Scouts during Civic Week. Consideration was given of the Physical Training and Recreation Act, a report of the Football League, and Wolf Cub and Scout activities.

ROVER SCOUTS' WEEK-END.

Rover Scouts who attended the Belfast Rover Scouts annual week-end held at Port Muck, and organised by Commissioner J. W. T. Watters, very much enjoyed their camp and found pleasure in renewing acquaintanceship with the district which was the objective of a midnight hike last year. The camp site was on the high headland above the tiny harbour, with an extensive view of the Antrim hills and coast and a distant glimpse of the Scottish coastline. Until a late hour on Saturday Rovers continued to arrive in small groups, and it was not until Sunday morning that the extent of the camp could be fully appreciated. At the Sunday morning service at Mullaghboy Presbyterian Church the Rev. S. Gilmore welcomed the Rovers and hoped that the visit would become at least an annual one. His sermon, on rearmament, urged the Rovers to begin in themselves, and in their homes, to rearm spiritually, and then to spread it wide, because in that way only could there be real peace in the world. Visitors arrived after dinner, and they, too, enjoyed the happy atmosphere that pervaded the camp.

THE FOOTBALL LEAGUE.

It was announced at the annual meeting of the Belfast Boy Scouts' Football League that there would be at least 21 teams competing this season, against fourteen teams which formed the two sections for the opening season. Group Scoutmaster J. White occupied the chair in the unavoidable absence of Assistant District Commissioner D. M. Newburn. There was a very large attendance of delegates, representing over twenty Troops. The reports of the hon. secretary and treasurer, Scoutmaster A. Hunter, made good reading. A nice balance in hand was shown in the financial report and the secretarial report mentioned the assistance rendered to the League by Major M. Speir, M.C., County Commissioner for Belfast; District Commissioner J. H. Norritt; Mr. D. M. Newburn, chairman, and others. Office-bearers elected for the season 1938-39 were as follows:—President, Major M. Speir, M.C.; vice-presidents, Messrs. T. E. Saunders, J. H. Britton, J. H. Norritt; chairman, Mr. D. M. Newburn; vice-chairman, Mr. J. White; secretary-treasurer, Mr. A. Hunter; committee, Messrs. J. H. Vogan, B. Boreland, L. B. Mills, S. Woods, J. Irwin, J. M'Lardy In addition to the Antrim and Down Sections for Scouts under 18, there will be a Junior League for Scouts under 15. Fixtures will commence on Saturday September 24, and a meeting will be held next week to arrange fixtures and grounds.

SWIMMING COMPETITIONS.

Entries for the Belfast County Swimming Competitions close on Monday. There are three sections—(1) Wolf Cubs; (2) Scouts under 15; (3) Scouts between 15-18 years. Awards will be given to the Pack or Troop with the greatest number of points, and these points will be given to swimmers according to the number of lengths accomplished. The King's Scouts Competition (District Commissioner H. H. Murdock Memorial) closes on September 30. The Troop with the greatest number of King's Scout Badges gained during the year will be adjudged winners.

Carlisle Memorial Rover Scouts (46th Belfast) held their first meeting of the indoor session on Thursday. There was a good attendance and a considerable amount of preliminary work was accomplished. It was arranged that the election of officers and construction of the winter programme should take place on next Monday. Consideration was given to a number of matters affecting winter activities. Mention was made of the resignation of Rover J. Reid, hon. treasurer, who, now a member of the Metropolitan Police Force, is residing in London.

KNOCK METHODIST PACK.

The 24th Wolf Cub Pack (Knock Methodist), having 26 Cubs, is now almost complete. Four Sixers are "going up" to the troop, and six recruits have been gained this month. The Cubs are learning to swim on Saturday mornings, and a large number of them turn out for this attraction. The 24th Troop, at their last Court of Honour, made some important changes. Patrol Leader William Bowman was appointed Troop Leader. Troop Leader Bowman had a very distinguished record in the Troop and also in the Pack, were he started as a tenderpad. Second Peter Dawson was promoted to the position of Patrol Leader of T. L. Bowman's old patrol, and Scouts R. Grant, D. Dickson and J. Sutcliffe were promoted to seconds. The Troop has 21 Scouts, and careful recruiting is being carried out by the Scouts themselves.

The 3rd Derry (All Saints, Clooney) Wolf Cub Pack continues to make excellent progress under the leadership of Cubmaster Miss Hazel Sheppard. The Sixers are at full strength, and activity is at present centred upon Star and Badge work. Afternoon outings are very popular with the boys.

Parents and friends attended the monthly meeting of the 19th Group Committee. The Chairman, Mr. Shearer, said he was gratified to see such a good attendance. After a number of items had been discussed, tea was served. District Commissioner, J. H. Norritt, who arrived during the proceedings, briefly outlined to those present the aims and methods of the movement. He expressed the hope that the Group Committee would give Scoutmaster M'Farlane every assistance in the absence of S.M. Maxwell.

WRESTLING THRILLS IN BELFAST.

CONTESTS AT ARENA.

TASMANIAN IMPRESSES.

ABILITY OUSTED IRISHMAN.

At the fourth weekly fun furore and all-in wrestling tournament at the Belfast Arena, Adelaide Street, on Friday evening the comedy was well up to standard, though the attendance was not equal to that of previous events. The wrestling as usual came in for a good deal of criticism, and the crowd at this venue never fail to voice their convictions.

Patrons were disappointed with the first bout, between Tommy the Demon (Birmingham) and Darkie Johnstone (Liverpool), which in the opening round was farcical. Johnstone won by submission in the third round. However, it turned out that the good wine had been kept till the last.

The principal contest was between Stoker Jackson, U.S.A. Navy wrestler, and Gunner Bradbury, late of the Indian Army, and in it the crowd got what is expected from the term "all-in," but the best, coolest, and cleanest exhibition of the evening came in the last bout from Frank Boyne (Tasmania), who defeated Bulldog O'Malley, the fighting Irishman, by submission.

Towards the end of the third round one wag was advising the referee that the crowd would like a fall, and half-a-dozen others were making suggestions that as it was getting near 10-30 it was about time he should find a reason to end the show. But young Boyne, who had repeatedly refused to return the all-in tactics of his opponent, gave them the most spectacular finish of the bill when, in the eighth minute, he effected a "Boston crab" (bending the spine backwards), and O'Malley decided he had had enough for that evening.

WEIGHT NOT EVERYTHING.

Boyne, who was no more than 5ft. 5ins., provoked laughter when he appeared, but he made his opponent look childish from the start, and, although giving away three inches and perhaps half-a-stone, he always had complete mastery. On one occasion, getting O'Malley shoulder high, Boyne was advised to toss him out of the ring, but when about to oblige he changed his mind and threw him into the middle of the ring with more ease than a coalman rids himself of his wares.

At one stage the wrestlers became so entangled that it seemed they were unable to get free. From the "gods" came the inquiry, "Referee, is there ever anybody killed in this game?" and when the burst of laughter which followed had died away, then from another end of the house there was a request to "disentangle those men."

The heavyweight encounter was a lively affair which had not been long in progress when Bradbury, who was the heavier opponent, "took on" the referee as well, but he soon found that two rivals usually attack from opposite sides. Bradbury was very fond of eye-pressing, and readily succeeded in gaining and holding the animosity of the crowd. When held firmly in a grip, Stoker was advised, "Use your shovel," but he didn't seem to appreciate the joke.

A ROUGH PASSAGE.

In the second round Jackson took a heavy fall, but two rounds later levelled matters with a flying tackle and press. Jackson was now getting the most of the exchanges, and Bradbury took nearly a dozen long counts during the next round, towards the end of which, from sheer exhaustion, he was counted out in a flat press and turn over. The closure was a popular one.

There was a good deal of "enjoyment" from the bout between Rex Gorkey (Bulgaria) and Jack Tulley (London), and in this, too, the referee took a prominent part. The contest was fast and apparently furious, and when the wrestlers became so far inter-locked that each was unable to gain an advantage, and both seemed to be taking a good deal of punishment, they shook hands. While the referee was disentangling them, Gorkey clipped him a short right to the chin, in return for which he got a "packet" of hooking and uppercutting.

Half-way through the third round Gorkey walked into a hammer-lock and press, but in the fourth he drew level, using a flying tackle and press. The end came mid-way through the fifth round when Tulley was completely winded and counted out in a body slam and pin.

GRETNA BOYO WINS

SPRINT EVENT AT CELTIC.

TARA KING RETURNS TO FORM.

Gretna Boyo, one of the Gold Cup representatives, put up a smashing performance at the Donegall Road track on Friday evening when beating a field of smart sprinters in the Celtic Sprint.

Left many lengths at the start, he overhauled his field, and when Newton Pilot and Cahercon Lad collided at the bend, had matters made a lot easier. From that point he left his opponents well behind to win with ease in good time.

Tara King showed something of his best form when securing the Futurity Stakes, although it was only the matter of a few inches that he got the better of the newcomer, Little Satisfaction, who led everywhere except at the line.

Sager Girl and Border Moon started co-favourites in the Eclipse Stakes and had the race to themselves from the moment they left the trap, the latter winning a good race in the splendid time of 30.58secs. Details:—

BOWLING AND TENNIS CLUB

PRIZE DAY AT HILDEN.

Rt. Hon. J. Milne Barbour, D.L., Minister of Commerce, attended at the Hilden Bowling and Tennis Club this afternoon and presented the prizes won during the season. He was accompanied by members of the Barbour and Gordon families, who all take an interest in the club, which is organised in connection with the well-known Hilden firm.

For competition this year for the first time were three championship cups (two for tennis and one for bowls) presented by Mr. Barbour in memory of his brother, the late Mr. Frank Barbour. Mr. R. Cairns presided.

Reference was made during the presentation ceremony to the fact that the bowls team had won the Private Greens League ("B" Division), dropping but two points at home and five away during the campaign.

The prize-winners were as follow:—

Bowls—Moodie Cup, F. M'Clements; runner-up, W. A. Moore. M'Ilroy Cup, R. Hunter; runner-up, J. D. Fisher. Frank Barbour Cup, F. M'Clements; runner-up, J. Williamson. Rinks competition (for prizes presented by Mr. J. D. Barbour, J.P.), J. May; runner-up, F. M'Clements.

Tennis—Frank Barbour Championship Cups: Ladies—Mis Mary Tolerton; runner-up, Miss P. Murphy. Men's, J. P. Ellis; runner-up, J. Kerr. Mrs. H. A. M. Barbour Cup (ladies' singles handicap) —Miss D. Wright (-15); runner-up, Miss G. Nicholl (—30). Harold Barbour Cup (gent.'s singles handicap)—W. Crawford (—40); runner-up, R. R. Draper (—15). Mixed doubles handicap (for racquets presented by Mr. Malcolm Gordon)—Miss D. Wright and H. M'Neice (30.3); runners-up, Miss R. Martin and J. Wells (scratch).

Mr. Barbour was thanked for his services, and general pleasure was expressed at his attendance and that of the other members of the two families.

Tennis and bowls tournaments were organised for the afternoon, after which there was a dance.

THE AYR GOLD CUP.

SIR J. JARVIS REALISES AMBITION.

OLD RELIANCE'S VICTORY.

PERSPICACITY REWARDED.

It was with the Ayr Gold Cup in view that Sir John Jarvis purchased Old Reliance from the Beckhampton owner-trainer, Herbert Blagrave, for £4,000, and his perspicacity was well rewarded when the three-year-old scored a handsome victory over Sally Andrews and Herridge.

Old Reliance, who carried top weight, had to give Sally Andrews 1lb. more than when he finished about 3½ lengths ahead of her in the Stewards' Cup, and I thought he would find the task beyond him. However, there is no knowing where improving three-year-olds will stop, and Old Reliance beat the mare just as easily again yesterday, writes "Hotspur," the "Daily Telegraph" racing correspondent.

SUITED BY THE GOING.

It was in favour of Old Reliance that the going had become heavy, as he stays a mile well, and the six furlongs of the Cup suited him well in the conditions. Incidentally, Jack Jarvis saddled Daytona to win the race for Sir George Bullough last year.

Sally Andrews, who was made favourite in an open market, was best away, most prominent of the others being Bold Ben, Kinderscout, and Paul Beg. About half-way Herridge took command, but Sally Andrews was sent into the lead again at the distance.

For a moment she looked like winning, but Smith brought Old Reliance with a grand run that quickly pegged back the opposition, and he passed the post an easy winner.

The well-backed John Buchan again ran indifferently, but Kinderscout was not beaten far out of a place.

JARVIS'S SIXTH WINNER.

The sixth winner of the meeting saddled by Jarvis was Sir Lawrence Philipps's Roman Spring—the third double for the E. Smith-J. Jarvis combination in three days. The daughter of Caerleon was made favourite for the Land of Burns Nursery after Wayward Miss had occupied that position in the early betting and won after a struggle with Cornfield by half a length. Prudent Ross colt was a moderate third, Roman Spring holding on gamely all the way to a slight advantage gained at the gate.

NOBLE KING'S SUCCESS.

The heavy rain of the early morning changed the going to the liking of Noble King, who had not won a race for more than two years, and he cantered away with the Eglinton Plate.

The Hour, from Jarvis's stable, has deteriorated sadly, and failed to get a place.

Azam Pasha finished last, Noble King being followed home at respectful distances by Ellwand and Erracht.

Hill Song can still go a good gallop despite his nine years, and gave his owner-trainer, Mr. H. P. Bell, a narrow victory over Heather Hill in the County Handicap. Halfway up the straight the favourite, Luton, promised to win, but suddenly dropped right back, and in a fine finish Hill Song got up to beat Heather Hill by a short head.

SECOND TIME LUCKY.

Unplaced to Berette on the previous afternoon, Crystal Palace was saddled again for the Buchanan Selling Handicap, and won easily by three lengths from Lute Player. There was little competition for the winner, who was bought in for 60 guineas.

House of Lords had run well enough behind Lang Whang at Doncaster to suggest that the Alloway Selling Nursery was well within his compass, and he justified his favouritism for this minor event easily at the expense of Honor M. and Ballywho. House of Lords was bought in cheaply for 80 guineas.

WINDSOR SURPRISE.

There was a surprise in the chief event at Windsor yesterday, the Old Windsor Handicap, a 100 to 6 chance in Charleston getting the better of a good finish with Benedict by three-quarters of a length. Bonnie Prince Charlie was' a couple of lengths behind Benedict, but Lancaster, who started joint favourite with the second, ran a poor race. Charleston took the lead from Concentration after a quarter of a mile had been covered and made the rest of the running.

The Alexandra Park winner, Old Folk, made light of a 5lb. penalty in the Queen Anne's Welter Handicap, in which after always being prominent he beat Rockes comfortably by two lengths. Rockes, who started favourite, has now been either first or second in each of her last five races.

St. Alban was third, but neither Laughing Water nor Angel Bread ever looked likely to win. Old Folk won easily enough to suggest that the handicapper has not yet taken his measure.

BACKERS' BAD DAY.

Backers on the whole had a bad day, the only successful favourite being Birthlaw, who was backed for the Falstaff Selling Plate as if settling day was of no importance.

There was good support for Oh Honey colt, who gained a narrow but clever victory in the Merry Wives Nursery, but both Rumour and Ella A. were preferred to him in the market.

Malabar, who finished last in the Derby, and Headley Lass were made joint favourites for the Anne Page Maiden Stakes, but neither proved good enough, Up Jenkins at 100 to 8 coming to the rescue of the bookmakers. Headley Lass was just beaten for second place by Wyelands, the best that Malabar could do being to finish fifth.

PRESIDENT OF EIRE.

CHURCH ASSOCIATION'S PROTEST.

A resolution was unanimously passed at a meeting of the Council of the Church Association regarding with the utmost concern the substitution of a President (under the new De Valera Constitution of Eire) for the official representative of the King as the lawful Sovereign of all the constituent States of the British Empire.

"The assumption that the State of Eire is a sovereign and independent nation was, in the opinion of the Council, subversive of the Royal prerogative, and fatal to the highest interests both of England and Ireland."

S. ANTRIM HOCKEY CLUB.

CREDIT BALANCE OVER £100.

At the annual meeting of South Antrim Hockey Club on Friday evening, Mr. John Stevenson (hon. treasurer), who presided, announced that for the first time on record the club had a credit balance of over £100, the exact figure being £100 6s 6d.

In his annual report Mr. N. C. Gray (hon. secretary) extended congratulations to Mr. George M'Gowan, a former player, on his appointment as Town Clerk of Portadown. He also conveyed good wishes to Mr. W. F. Keery, last year's captain of the 2nd XI., who had taken up an important appointment at Sion Mills.

The following office-bearers were elected:—Patron, Rt. Hon. J. Milne Barbour, D.L., M.P.; president, Mr. T. M. Harvey; captain of 1st XI., Mr. S. S. Hunter; vice-captain, Mr. F. M'Curley; captain of 2nd XI., Mr. E. Bell; vice-captain, Mr. H. Gray; captain of 3rd XI., Mr. H. Kempston; vice-captain, Mr. G. Smyth; hon. secretary, Mr. N. C. Gray; hon. treasurer, Mr. J. Stevenson; assistant hon. treasurer, Mr. S. S. Hunter; hon. match secretary, Mr. G. Reddick; assist. hon. match secretary, Mr. T. Robinson; committee—Messrs. N. Brownlow, J. Corken, W. A. Moore, J. KID DERG MEETS A TARTAR.

TRIBUTE TO FRED PARKS.

Jack M'Kenzie, the young Conlon Club flyweight, won the most comfortable of points victories over Frank (Kid) Bonsor (Notts.) in a keenly-fought ten-rounder at the Belfast Sports Stadium, Cuba Street, on Friday evening, and well deserved the enthusiastic applause that greeted his triumph.

M'Kenzie, scaling 7st. 12lb., and conceeding 6lb. to a lad who jumped to fame some months ago by a surprise Belfast win over Jimmy Warnock, may have been deemed as "on the spot" (writes "The Timekeeper"), but from the opening gong he displayed the utmost confidence in the job before him, and in every round acquitted himself like a champion, cleverly carrying the fight to Bonsor, who was foiled time and again by his rival's lightning deliveries, swinging rights repeatedly rocking the Notts boxer back on his heels.

Throughout, Bonsor gave spectators the impression that he was preparing a surprise for M'Kenzie, but it never materialised, thanks to Mac's adroitness in defence His speedy counters frequently bewildered Bonsor, and the crowd thundered applause when M'Kenzie battered himself out of corners, never failing to "pin" his rival with a flailing right or an equally effective left to the head. Bonsor tried desperately to stop M'Kenzie's attacks with a wicked right uppercut, but every time the Belfast boy's speed left him "hitting the lights."

BONSOR'S TRIBUTE.

At the close of the fight Bonsor himself good-naturedly raised M'Kenzie's arm, thereby indicating what was the referee's only course.

Fred Parks (Beeston) was an easy points winner over ten-rounds against Kid Derg (Belfast). In the opening session the local displayed a good left and right, but thereafter he allowed Parks, a clever and speedy two-fisted featherweight, to dictate the course of the duel. The visitor scored freely by the simple process of driving Derg against the ropes, in which position the local was invariably receiver-general.

Jack M'Knight, Ulster middleweight champion, outpointed Cyril Johnson (Notts) in a ten-rounder in which the visitor was the lighter man by nearly 10lb. In a fourth ten-spot duel Charlie Murray (Notts.) and Jim Dunlop (Belfast) fought a draw, which was the referee's tribute to two very willing millers, who packed thrills galore into every round.

A draw was also the verdict in a four-rounder between Harry Lyttle and Alex. M'Guigan, both of Belfast.

Mr. John Sholdis, the promoter, merits a compliment on a top-notch "card," which really should have drawn a crowded "house." Messrs. W. Gilmore and W. Knight were the referees, and Mr. W. Coulter was M.C. and timekeeper.

IRISH FOOTBALL LEAGUE.

ECHO OF SCOTS MATCH.

STAND TICKETS GRIEVANCE.

At the Irish Football League meeting in Belfast last night Mr. W. Murphy (Bangor) alluded to the arrangements for the inter-League match at Glasgow, and asked why he and another member of the party were not given tickets for the official stand.

The president (Mr. G. Tate, J.P.) said there were not sufficient tickets to go round. The League had invited a few guests from the English F.A. and the Eire F.A., and naturally they had to look after them.

Mr. Murphy said if the tickets were insufficient they should have been balloted for. He thought the treatment he had received was an insult to his club.

The President said he himself had to go elsewhere than the directors' box.

Mr. W. Walker (Lurgan), who said he was treated in a similar manner, complained that he saw people going into the box who had less right.

The President said if a party of 25 was only supplied with 20 tickets what could they do. He personally had applied to Mr. Andrews, secretary of the Scottish League, for extra tickets, but was told that there was not one available.

Mr. T. E. Douglas (Cliftonville) said it was a most unfortunate incident, and should not be allowed to occur again. (hear, hear).

Mr. Walker said if the position had been explained to him it would have been a different matter.

Mr. R. M'Indoo (Glentoran) thought Messrs. Walker and Murphy had as much right to be accommodated in the box as anybody else.

The President said they would endeavour to see that there would be no cause for complaint in the future.

Bangor F.C. was given permission to take up a collection for Dr. Barnardo's Homes at their home match with Portadown in December.

It was reported that the League's share of the City Cup test match was £61, and that Linfield and Derry City would each receive £123.

PLAYER'S COMPENSATION.

John Hutcheson, who is unable as a compensated player to play for Ipswich Town in English League matches, was re-signed by Ipswich on Friday and will play at left-half in the Southern League Cup tie at Colchester to-day.

Hutcheson received compensation when he was injured while playing for Chelsea two years ago. The Pensioners had paid Falkirk a big fee for him.

THE Social World

By RHONA.

I SEE that the Royal National Lifeboat Institution have arranged a dinner dance at the Grand Central Hotel for the [illegible] of this month; "Dinner dance"—that plunges us right into winter socially at all events.

In any case, I am sure it will be a success. Apart from the fact that R.N.L.I. events are usually very smart, can you imagine a better opportunity for showing off your new evening frock?

I was rather tickled to see that the Young Farmers' autumn school is to be held at Drumalla, Carnlough, in the middle of October; tickled because the Young Farmers are young men and Drumalla is the property of members of the opposite sex.

It is the holiday home of the Belfast Girls' Club Union. In Twelfth week you could hardly find room for a kitten to sleep there. The members take possession, and what a glorious time they have!

At other times of the summer, it is not so crowded, but I hope the Young Farmers will fill it to capacity, which is about 50. There is to be a social side in October, so Drumalla will not be completely given over to the masculine element. I presume "Social" always applies to both sexes.

The weaker sex is officially in the background over the international situation. No woman's name is on everyone's lips, the world is not pinning faith upon the wisdom of any woman negotiator. That does not say they do not influence the situation.

Women the world over are very much on the side of peace. Whether this applies to Germany, I do not know. Very few of us know what the average German housewife has to face.

I was told the other day that she has to content herself with a quarter of a pound of butter weekly for every member of her household. A German girl came to Belfast recently. She arrived in London without as much money as would give her a meal!

EVELYN LAYE IS A DOG LOVER

Let's Talk About Clothes.

FROM the sheep's back to the new flimsy undies is a long story, but the main point is that in the course of it wool remains wool, throughout all the processes of cleaning, spinning, refining, dyeing, weaving, and "tickleproofing." Wool lace is a novelty which is attracting most of the dress designers—in fact, judging by their activities, this is going to be a very woolly winter indeed! I think most women, like myself, will be grateful to those who are making it possible for us to be warm as well as smart. There is nothing more fatal to beauty than being cold—this means pale cheeks, a blue nose, purple lips, and red hands, and I hope we shall be saved these things in future.

Colours are Fashionable.

I am glad to see that, although black is still worn, bright colours are coming into their own, and cheerful plaids are especially popular. I saw a dinner-dress last week in Edwardian style made of richly-hued plaid with a skirt touching the floor in front and sweeping out at the back; the sleeves were leg o' mutton, the neck tight around the throat, with a little white turn-down collar. If I wear a gown like that I shall feel as though I've stepped right out of the pages of "Little Women"! Of the wool models I have seen I liked best the cosy trouser-suits—which, by the way, are also in shades brilliant enough to cheer up the gloomiest winter's day. One was composed of high-waisted slacks in a warm yellow, with a dark brown blouse cut in Russian style, high in the neck, with full graceful sleeves caught in at the wrist. Other tailored suits had single-breasted coats with trousers to match and an extra skirt for formal occasions.

Flowers for All.

One of the most attractive things I noticed about some of London's new flats which I visited the other day was that any odd pieces of roof and things like that were all filled up with flowers. Nobody likes being shut right away without a bit of green to look out on, and a roof garden or a window box does make a world of difference. I always make a point of having flowers around me, and if funds are low I gather up buttercups and daisies out of the fields and make do with those. It isn't difficult—I first learnt the trick of using field flowers for room decoration when I artlessly admired a magnificent bowl of yellow blossoms in a friend's house and inquired what it was. It turned out to be ordinary cabbage flowers, cleverly arranged with ferns!

Lost Dog.

Another little trip I had last week was with a friend to a dogs' home in search for a terrier who had strayed. I have never wanted to adopt so many dogs—there were dozens of them, all looking as though being lost was the end of all things for them. Many came running hopefully when we appeared, but their ears drooped dejectedly when they realised that we were not their owners. However, I'm glad to say we discovered the little chap we had been looking for, and his delight and astonishment at being found was really pathetic. So if any of you lose your dog, please go along to the dogs' home and see if he is there. If he isn't, why not take home one of the others and so save him from possible extinction in the lethal chamber?

Now that the chilly nights are coming on, see that your pet has a draught-proof bed. Failing a kennel, a big box turned on its side is very good, while a barrel—particularly for a young puppy, which likes to rock itself to sleep—is ideal. If you have a dog which is inclined to bark at night, you'll find that a hot water bottle works wonders!

GARDENING HINTS

Quassia Juice

Minor insects can be killed, and further inroads can be warned off, with a nasty-smelling wash like quassia. Soak half a pound of quassia chips in water for 24 hours, strain the solution, add two ounces of soap dissolved in hot water, and make the quantity of the mixture to four gallons.

The Arum Lily

Plant the calla Africana in the greenhouse for New Year flowering in warmth. This plant is distinct from other lilies. The white flower leaf, which is velvety and of great substance, folds around the central feature, which is long and brilliantly canary-yellow.

Button Daisies

The dwarf double daisies (the bellises) can be persuaded to flower in the winter if the plants are divided, and if the rosettes are separately planted, before the end of this month. These evergreen perennials may be had with white, pink and red blooms.

How To Ripen Tomatoes

The ripening of fruits on plants in a shady place may be done in a sunny room, but not with the sun shining on the fruits. They would be shrivelled by the sun's rays after they were parted from the plants. Cover the tomatoes in the window with a sheet of white kitchen paper.

I was glad to hear that Dorothy Walker is coming from London for the annual Dress Parade in aid of the Children's Hospital. Dorothy has "made her mark" in her profession, and her style is always good.

That is not depreciating the mannequins whom the Junior Committee of the hospital draw from their own ranks. These ladies have had considerable experience—I am presuming that some of those who have appeared in former years are billed, for Mrs. Drummond Kirkpatrick, organiser of the display, is from home just now.

She left her arrangements well in hand, however. The display will take place in Robinson & Cleaver's restaurant on the afternoon of October 11. Her Grace the Duchess of Abercorn is lending her patronage.

The parade will include a wedding group, as well as gowns, furs, coats, hats, suits, gloves, "brollies," bags—everything that the smart woman wants for her winter wardrobe.

A most important item is hairdressing. Nowadays that must change with the changing fashions. I do hope we shall not revert to untidiness over the Edwardian coiffure. I saw a girl with a very correctly dressed head the other day, but, alas, she had neglected—or her hairdresser had neglected—to control her "ends," and the untidy effect quite marred the impression she had hoped to make.

Royal Nurseries

ENGLAND'S LEAD

By Elissa St. John.

IN many ways the Royal houses of Europe pay tribute to things English, but there is one thing in particular which continues to grow in favour. It is the English nursery, in which term can be included our methods of baby rearing and child training. Many of the nurseries in foreign Royal palaces are modelled on English lines, English nurses and tutors are in demand, and the formalities and rigid rules of etiquette which formerly surrounded the children of foreign monarchs are giving way to the simplicity which is the keynote of childhood in the nurseries of the British Royal Family.

One of the first to take English ideas on the upbringing of children to the Continent was Princess Margaret of Connaught, on her marriage to the Crown Prince of Sweden. She also sent for English nurses and set an example which was followed not only in Swedish society but throughout Europe.

THAT example was followed very closely by the tragic Princess Astrid, daughter of Princess Ingeborg and Prince Charles of Sweden, when she became the wife of the Belgian Crown Prince, now King Leopold III. Her three children, Princess Josephine, Prince Baudouin and Prince Albert, now out of the nursery stage, are still being brought up according to English ideas and the principles laid down by their mother before her death in a motor car accident in 1935.

The introduction of our ideas into the Belgian Royal nurseries was, perhaps, an easier matter than in some other cases, for Belgian Royal children had always been trained in a simple and spontaneous life. Oppressiveness and insistence on formality which have marred the childhood of many born in the purple have never found a home in the Belgian Royal palaces; the tendency has been to eschew formality, and the keynote has been to make the idea of royalty seem normal and vital rather than a deadening burden bringing untimely weight upon the shoulders of youth.

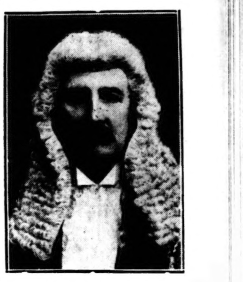
ONCE, at an important military review in the days of King Albert, the then Crown Prince marched by in command of a detachment. Brussels was crowded and, as the Prince passed a particularly crushed section of spectators, a child's voice cried, "Daddy, daddy." It was little Princess Josephine, who, accompanied by her mother, the future Queen, was watching the review under the uncomfortable conditions imposed by a pushing, enthusiastic crowd of citizens.

It is said that Prince Baldwin—to give the English version of his name—will go to Eton, as his father did. In the meantime King Leopold had decided that he should concentrate his studies on languages, and it is probable that Dr. Harley, the Englishman whose languages school in Brussels has a world-wide reputation, will be consulted before an English teacher for the Prince is chosen.

THE simple method of conducting a nursery is seen in Denmark. The Crown Princess Ingrid is herself as yet childless, but she is a constant visitor to the home of Prince Knud, brother of the Crown Prince, who married Princess Mathilde of Denmark in 1933 and has a daughter, Princess Elizabeth, now three years old. The royal nursery is run on "democratic" lines, as free from formality as those of the Belgian royal family.

English ideas and England itself have played a large part in the upbringing of King Peter of Jugoslavia, the only occupant of a nursery in Europe who is King in his own right.

Perhaps King Peter would object to the word "nursery," for this year he will be fifteen years of age, but in any case his training, possibly more asetic than that of the average public schoolboy in England, has been based on English ideas. The young King was formerly at school at Cobham, Surrey. His tutor, Mr. Parrott, and his former governess, Miss Marr, are both English.



Sir William Moore, Bart., D.L., the former Lord Chief Justice.

PRINCESS Juliana is an ardent admirer of our methods of rearing babies and training young children, and it is likely that she will follow the examples set in other European countries and employ English nurses for her daughter. On the matter of training of children she is very emphatic, and it is probable that she and Prince Bernhard will do much to cut through the bonds which hitherto have tied the children of the Dutch royal house to outworn ideas. The new Princess's training will be rather less strict than that to which Princess Juliana was herself subject. The decorations of Princess Beatrix's nursery were designed by Princess Juliana herself and were executed by the well-known Dutch artist, Rie Cramer.

The walls are papered to represent a monster world map, and coloured pictures of Red Indians, aeroplanes, elephants and whales appear in many unexpected places. Each small picture is intended to convey a simple lesson. For instance, a sailing ship, an old-time man-o'-war under full sail, is shown crossing the Atlantic Ocean, while an airship sails over the sea from Africa to Brazil. A figure of Napoleon indicates the spot where lies the Island of Elba, and a picture of the Houses of Parliament at Westminster marks England.

THE little Princess Beatrix Wilhelmina Armgard lies in a cradle which stands about two feet from the ground on a table foundation, with legs of highly-carved woods. The cradle is in the Louis XVI. style, ivory coloured and richly decorated with lace, and has large bows at the sides. The women of the province of South Holland presented this cradle to Queen Wilhelmina nearly thirty years ago, and it was used by Princess Juliana herself as a small baby.

In Bulgaria is another royal nursery, watched over by parents who are admirers of English methods and customs. There live the son and daughter of Queen Joanna and King Boris. The Queen was formerly Princess Giovanna of Italy, daughter of Queen Elena. King Boris is the man who if he were not a king would have no difficulty in earning his living as a railway engine driver. Engineering is his hobby, and when he was in Britain recently he was invited to drive one of our fastest expresses. At the end of the run he was presented with a scale model of the engine on whose footplate he had shown what he could do. The model was intended for the delight of Prince Simeon Tarnovsky, his son, who was born in June, 1937, and there is little doubt that when the Prince is a little older the nursery floor will be the scene of much enjoyment as the King demonstrates—and possibly monopolises—this fine working model.

FLOWER SHOW AND SALE OF WORK

OPENED IN YORK STREET.

MRS. W. A. WATSON OFFICIATES.

Mrs. W. A Watson declared open a flower show and sale of work in the hall attached to York Street Presbyterian Church, Belfast, on Friday afternoon. The High Sheriff (Councillor T. L. Cole, L.P.S., J.P.) presided.

The Chairman having expressed his pleasure at being present, said the congregation should be congratulated, and he hoped they would reap the reward they deserved. Far from introducing Mrs. Watson in York Street, she should introduce him, for she had first come there many years ago.

Mrs. Watson in opening the sale, said she first came to York Street 33 years ago. She was delighted to meet old friends and make new ones. She was glad to see the children in friendly rivalry at the flower show, and hoped their introduction there to Nature would induce them to make further discoveries for themselves. She congratulated Rev. F. R. and Mrs. Gibson, and wished them a happy life together in York Street.

Rev. Dr. Watson referred to the international situation at the close of a short speech in which he recalled his own and Mrs. Watson's association with York Street. A gleam of hope was discernible amid the dark clouds. He prayed that the interviews about to take place and those which had taken place would result in an abiding peace.

Rev. F. R. Gibson, B.A., referred to the sale and flower show as one of the traditions of Belfast. York Street had been the first flower show held in the city.

A vote of thanks was proposed by Mr. R. Wilson, jun., seconded by Mr. Mitchell.

THE STALL-HOLDERS.

Flower stall—Mrs. R English and Mrs. R. A. Wilson. Work stall—Mrs. M'Cullough, Mrs. M'Connell, Mrs. Webster, Miss Meeke, Miss K. Erskine. Refreshment—Mrs. Hutchinson, Mrs. Brooks, Mrs. Humphreys, Miss Gilmore, Miss M'Adam. Cake—Mrs. Mitchell, Miss Hagin and Miss Stewart. Provision—Mrs. D. Gordon, Miss English, Miss Gordon, Miss Boles, Miss Millar and Miss Armstrong. Girl Guides — Mrs. Johnston, Miss Cunningham and Miss M'Kean. Boys Brigade—Mrs. Magill and Miss Hagin.

The judge in the baking competition was Mr. Martin, of the City Bakery, and in the children's plant competition Mr. Foundling, of Messrs. A. Dickson, Ltd.

THE BELFAST PLAYHOUSE.

HARALD NORWAY IN DUAL ROLE.

It is a far cry from "General John [illegible]gan" to "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde," but Harald Norway does not believe in doing things by halves. Playhouse audiences have had a good spell recently of Irish plays, no less than eight of the last ten weeks being devoted to Irish authors, so Robert Louis Stevenson's wonderful story will be sure of a warm welcome on Monday next when Mr. Norway himself appears in the dual role of Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde.

Supporting Mr. Norway will be Moira [illegible], who is rapidly making great strides in public favour, and her many friends will welcome the re-appearance of Muriel North in one of her strong characterisations, along with those well-known actors, Mr. Lewis, Mr. Byrne, Mr. [illegible]don, Mr. M'Ilroy and Mr. Davies.

"Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde" will undoubtedly be a welcome and agreeable change at the Playhouse, and with the presence of so many admirers in Belfast of the famous author, good houses are certain to be the rule all week.

SATURDAY COMMENTARY by LADY OXFORD AND ASQUITH

In Berlin To-day—What the People Think

TO anyone back in London at the present juncture after a holiday in the north it is interesting to hear the views of those who have been travelling recently in Germany.

A friend just back from an extended tour of the country has given me a first-hand account of his impressions.

The newspaper correspondents do their work magnificently in keeping us abreast of current feeling and tendencies. But they are so close up to things that they sometimes do not see the wood for the trees, and the casual visitor, with new eyes and a fresh mind, takes note of changes which escape mention from the resident correspondent, because he has watched their coming so long that they fail to interest him.

My friend left London when its temperature was a little above normal owing to alarmist talk, and expected to find much the same conditions in the German capital itself. But it was not so. People everywhere were placid to the point of indifference. They could not understand why Europe should be "jumpy" because the Fuhrer had ordered military manœuvres on an ambitious scale. They scoffed at the idea that Germany contemplated anything that might involve war.

"You see what we have done in ten years; and the sacrifices it has involved. Do you think we are going to risk it all in a wild gamble?"

Everyone bespoke a desire for peace, and since the average German is not clever enough to dissemble successfully, they were either speaking the truth or their knowledge was wholly divorced from the mind working behind the green tree that fronts the courtyard of Hitler's unpretentious house.

As for signs of military activity there were none. The only token that men had been called up was afforded by women at work with scythes and sickles gathering in the ripening corn. And what miles of corn! Intensive agriculture everywhere, not a plot of land untilled, the whole landscape billowing with golden wheat, broken sometimes by the dark green of growing potatoes.

MARKED ABSENCE OF GAIETY.

IF there is trouble, Germany does not intend to be easily starved. But it is far from being a country revelling in milk and honey. Even in the big hotels a certain economy is practised in the matter of food, and in the Labour Camps rations are served out so many ounces per person—neither more nor less than is necessary to keep body and soul together. Except in the cafes at night, where students foregather, there is, moreover, a marked absence of gaiety. The women appear happier than the men; amongst the latter the dominating note is one of dour endurance.

There is no sign that Hitler's amazing popularity is on the wane. The nation watches his every movement and every effort with dog-like devotion.

English newspapers made reference recently to a ukase forbidding Germans to accept tips from foreigners on the ground that it was not befitting the new manhood of the nation. It is doubtful if Hitler ever did anything quite so silly. In any case the tip is automatically added to your bill at the cocktail bar, and is assuredly not rejected at the railway station or by the taxi driver.

The German of to-day is not yet educated to the point of purchasing new manhood at such a price as that.

WHEN WE ARE VERY YOUNG

THE "silly season," though drawing to a close, is not over, and I continue to get letters asking me to write "short articles" on any subject I like—preferably my favourite colour, my favourite author, my favourite actor, artist, hero, historian, fairy-tale, and food. I would rather like to write an article on some of these subjects, but it would not be short. On the contrary, I would find it difficult to answer even a few of them satisfactorily, and, in any case, it would entail too many words for any paper to print, and would only add another chapter to the book which I am about to publish under the title of "Rejected Reflections."

It is only when you are very young—I might almost say in the schoolroom—that you feel certain of your favourites, and in spite of inexperience, or perhaps because of it, your opinions are not opinions, but obsessions which you defy anyone to challenge. I am speaking for myself, as an ardent imagination would have enabled me to pronounce opinions when I was in the schoolroom upon any subject, and I would have had no difficulty in answering these questions.

I regret to say that I wrote nothing about them, but console myself by thinking that, though they might have been of interest to my doting father, they would probably not have been worth the paper they were written on. Nothing is more certain than in the process of time our tastes and opinions change, even more than our characters.

WHERE THEY MOURN IN SCARLET

NOT to disappoint those who have written to me, I will make an effort to comply with their requests, and answer a few of these questions. Is black a colour? If so, it is my favourite, as I do not think you can go far wrong if you dress in black. I have seen plain women look really distinguished when they wore black clothes. People may say it is socially depressing, as it reminds them of mourning, but mourning depends upon what country you wear it in. When the Chinese die I am told that their families dress in scarlet. I have never been in China, and know little about it, but for me the Chinese will always remain riddles. Nothing could be more irrelevant to the subjects on which I am writing than riddles, but I have always been fascinated by them—even those we find in Christmas crackers, which are more diverting than the paper caps. In connection with mourning I will quote one which I was asked when I was young.

Query: "When the day breaks, what becomes of the pieces?"

Answer: "They go into morning."

THE BEST SHORT STORY WRITTEN

I AM wandering from my subject. The next question I am asked to answer is my favourite author. I hated lessons, but my hate was modified by my enjoyment of "Little Arthur" and Mrs. Markham's "History of England." These were serious works, but, for sheer enjoyment and lighter literature, I revelled in "Holiday House," and wonder if any children of to-day have ever read it. My other favourite author was Ouida, and I still remember hiding "Under Two Flags" under my pillow in case I would be forbidden to read it. It is a long time since I have read a book by Ouida, but the hero of one of her novels was a guardsman who "took his bath in light tokay"—a sort of hock, though I am not sure if this is the correct way of spelling it. I have never been able to resist a guardsman in a novel. My favourite fairy-tale was "The Emperor's New Clothes." It has an inner meaning far more significant in these days of Dictators than it even had in the days of Kings.

The best short story ever written is "The Two Drovers" in "Tales of the Cannongate," by Sir Walter Scott.

No one will want me to answer any more questions, so I will conclude by a story about food.

An American millionaire, travelling in a reserved compartment, was asked by the attendant if he wanted anything; to which the millionaire replied, "I want a poached egg, and a kind thought." The man who waited on him brought him the poached egg, and the millionaire said, "Thank you for the egg, but what about the kind thought?" To which the nigger replied, "Don't eat the egg."

GERMANY'S LITTLE USED PARLIAMENT, THE REICHSTAG, BERLIN.

ROBSON'S SHOW AND SALE.

BORDER LEICESTER SHEEP.

SOME EXCELLENT STOCK.

Some excellent specimens of Border-Leicester rams and ram lambs were exhibited at the second show and sale of the season held by Messrs. John Robson, Ltd., on Friday. There was a large attendance of buyers. Bidding was keen from the start and many more rams could have been sold.

Mr. Jacob Horner was the judge and the awards and prices obtained were as follow:—

Rams (one and two shear)—1, Mr. Wm. Kyle, 5gns; 2, Mr. Jas. M'Keown, 4gns.; 3, Mr. John Scott, 5gns.

Ram lambs—1, Mr. S. Stokes, 7½gns.; 2, Mr. S. Stokes, 4gns.; 3, Mr. W. Kyle, 3½ gns.

Sheep outside the prize list met with spirited competition and made good prices. Rams and ram lambs suitable for commercial purposes realised from 2gns. to 5gns. Mr. T. Rush obtained an average of 4gns. each for four lambs. Mr. James M'Cune received 4gns. for two and 3¾gns. for another. Mr. W. D. S. Minnis's entry realised 5gns., and not a single animal remained unsold.

THE WEEKLY SALE.

There was a representative catalogue of crossbred and blackface ewes at the firm's weekly sale of breeding and store sheep. The quality was not so good as the previous week with the result that trade in this section was slightly easier.

Top price for crossbred hoggets touched 35s 6d. Several sales at this figure were recorded. A number of sales took place between 30s and 35s per head, inferior sorts selling down to 25s 6d per head. Blackface ewes were offered in larger numbers and strong character sheep were in demand but were short of requirements.

Several pens of hoggets changed hands at 25s, 22s 6d and 20s respectively. Other sales were: Twenty ewes at 24s 6d each, 30 at 22s 6d each; and 30 at 20s each.

Consignments of Sligo ewes sold at 24s 6d, 22s 6d, 21s and 20s respectively. Second quality were neglected and difficult to cash. Practically a clearance was effected.

SEVEN-HOUR SITTING.

MOTOR CASES AT CO. DOWN COURT.

The proceedings at Newcastle Court on Friday, before Mr. S. C. Clarke, R.M., lasted for over seven hours, during which about twenty motorists were fined in sums ranging from 20s to 40s for failing to recognise the halt signs at Shimna Road crossing, Newcastle.

Frank M'Court, Gibson Street, Belfast, was fined 5s, with £3 costs, for driving a bus carelessly at an S bend at Tyrella on July 21, when he cut out to pass two lady cyclists and bumped into a car.

James Mitchell, Meadow Street, Larne, a driver in the employment of the Road Transport Board, who reported that he had been involved in an accident with a dog, and who failed within the statutory period to produce his insurance to the police, was fined 1s, with 5s costs.

District-Inspector Silcock stated that the Transport Board were more to blame than the driver, and the summons was brought so that each of the drivers should be issued with a covering note.

George Walker, Finvoy, Ballymoney, was fined 40s, with 36s costs, for motoring carelessly on July 16 at Biagioni's Corner, Newcastle.

It was stated that he turned right round at the corner across the path of an oncoming pedal cyclist and that a collision ensued.

THE WORLD WAITING.

WHILE the international situation remains a matter for grave anxiety, there does not seem to be reason for anticipating a rapid development for the worse. The British Premier on his return from Germany consulted the principal members of the Cabinet, and summoned a full meeting of that body for to-day. He also reported the result of his interview with Herr Hitler to the King. It would be contrary to constitutional practice for any statement to be made public regarding what transpired at Berchtesgaden, though rumour will no doubt continue to be busy in regard to this. The most urgent matter at the moment is to secure a restoration of peace and order in the Sudeten territory of Czecho-Slovakia. The Prague Government, in the circumstances, cannot be accused of undue severity in the action it has taken in dissolving the Sudeten Party, though this was afterwards altered to a "suspension of its activities" and the steps taken to seize arms in the disaffected areas. Herr Hitler, whose recent speech was almost immediately followed by dangerous outbreaks in these regions, may be reasonably expected to lend his influence to bringing about at least a cessation of inflammatory agitation there until an attempt can be made to settle the dispute. The demand for "a quick decision" now heard in the German and Italian Press is ill-judged, for the questions involved require careful deliberation. Rash action, such as the forcing of a plebiscite on Czecho - Slovakia against the wishes of its Government, to decide the future of the minorities would bring about further trouble in years to come.

The address given by Earl de la Warr at the meeting of the Assembly of the League of Nations on Friday should act as a wholesome reminder of the limitations of the League to those who still profess to believe that it has the power to act as arbiter in all conflicts between nations, whether members or not. The efficacy of the application of " economic sanctions " against aggressor nations did not stand the test of the Italian conquest of Abyssinia, and in the long run it is evident that such measures, if persisted in, would lead to armed conflicts. Many of the smaller nations represented in the League have declared frankly their inability to join in the application of either economic or military sanctions, and there is nothing to be gained by refusing to recognise this fact. Nations like Germany, Italy, and Japan, in the face of "economic boycotts," can develop their home resources to an amazing extent, and those who hope to render them speedily helpless by "embargoes on raw materials and financial credits" are likely to be gravely disappointed. There is much to be said for the proposal to recreate the League and build up a new Constitution which will give it greater power to intervene effectively in disputes between nations. It is clear that pacts for the renunciation of war cannot be relied on in the present age. Governments bent on aggression nullify them by the simple means of invading foreign territory without any formal declaration of hostilities, thus adding to the uncertainty prevailing in the world instead of ensuring peace, as was intended by those who drew up these agreements. The intervention of the League of Nations could not, in the existing circumstances, be resorted to for the solution of the Czecho-Slovak problem, for instance. Germany and Italy would, it is well known, refuse to make use of the machinery it provides, so that another way out of the difficulty must be sought, while the world waits anxiously. In the last resort, the issue lies in the hands of the German Dictator. His responsibility is so heavy that he may well be slow in coming to a decision, since the consequences must be momentous.

In the Event of War

These Three Men Will Lead Britain's Defence

MEETINGS of the Cabinet during the last few days have been attended by the Chiefs of Staff, the three men on whom in the event of war will fall the primary responsibility for the defence of the British Empire. Who are these officers who may be called upon to shoulder such heavy burdens?

—by— Frank Longworth

Sir Cyril Newall (Chief of the Air Staff).

Viscount Gort (Chief of the Imperial General Staff).

Admiral Sir R. Backhouse (First Sea Lord).

To the average man they are practically unknown, but each of them is an expert in his own particular branch of the Services. When the Great War began in 1914 we instinctively turned to leaders whose names were household words, men who had achieved distinction in the Boer War or some other sphere in which our forces had been active.

Lord Kitchener, Lord Fisher, General French, and others were available, and quickly took up their respective duties.

To-day the situation is entirely changed. All our leaders in 1914-18 have died or retired from active service. Earl Haig, Earl Beatty, Earl Jellicoe, and Viscount Allenby, who were in command of the British forces at the end of the Great War have died, but their places have been taken oy other brilliant leaders, in whom the Cabinet have entire confidence, even though they are as yet unknown to the general public.

★

IN 1914 there were only two branches of the Forces. To-day there are three, the Air Force, which grew rapidly during the last war, having been placed on an equal footing with the Army and Navy.

Each division is under the supreme control of a first-class leader, men who played their part in the Great War, even if only in minor capacities. Each of them may then be said to have won his spurs, while their subsequent experience of organisation has marked each of them as an officer on whom the greatest reliance may be placed.

In supreme command of the Army is General Lord Gort; the Navy is led by Admiral Sir Roger Backhouse; and the Air Force is directed by Air Chief Marshal Sir Cyril Newall. Admiral Backhouse is the senior, being 60 years of age; but youth is in charge of the other two Services.

General Gort and Sir Cyril Newall have both just attained their 52nd year, and owe their positions to the policy of the Government declared at the end of last year that merit, character and ability are the principal qualifications for promotion.

★

MAJOR-GENERAL Viscount Gort is officially designated as Chief of the Imperial General Staff and principal member of the Army Council, which consists of eight experienced officers. He was raised to this position so recently as last December, when the Cabinet adopted a policy of decentralisation of the Commands, giving to the General Staff the maximum of freedom from detailed administration, but the maximum of responsibility for higher direction.

It was a wise choice. Viscount Gort comes from a family with the highest military traditions. The first holder of the title led British forces at the Battle of Malplaquet in 1709, while each succeeding generation has rendered great service to the Empire.

Of Irish extraction, the present Viscount Gort, after education at Harrow and Sandhurst, entered the Army at the age of 19, securing a commission in the Grenadier Guards, with which he has ever since been associated.

At the beginning of the Great War he was one of the officers who accompanied the "Old Contemptibles" to France, where his brilliant leadership quickly won recognition. For four years he fought on the Western Front, being mentioned no less than nine times in despatches, and earning the M.C. and the D.S.O.

Shortly before the Armistice was declared Viscount Gort was awarded the V.C. for his supreme bravery during the final Allied advance.

★

SINCE 1918, Viscount Gort has been actively engaged in military duties. For several years he was principal instructor at the well-known Officers' School at Sheerness, only relinquishing this position to take command of the Shanghai Defence Force in 1927.

For the last six years he has been engaged in organisation work in Great Britain, paying particular attention to home defence, and studying the steps which would have to be taken for quick mobilisation in the event of war.

In particular, he has organised, in conjunction with the chiefs of the Air Force, the co-operative steps which would have to be adopted should there be air attacks on our shores. This work has brought Viscount Gort into the closest collaboration with Air Marshal Sir Cyril Louis Norton Newall.

★

SIR Cyril is the most recently appointed of the three men now under consideration. He was created as Chief of the Air Staff and Air Council in February this year after a more varied career than any of his co-workers.

The son of an army colonel, Sir Cyril was educated at Bedford School and Sandhurst, where he was a contemporary of Viscount Gort. From there he entered the Royal Warwickshire Regiment, but was quickly transferred to the Indian Army, where he saw much fighting on the North-West Frontier.

On the outbreak of the Great War he literally fought his way home by way of Mesopotamia and Palestine, ultimately becoming attached to the forces on the Western Front in 1917, where he commanded a battalion in the final advance, earning not only British distinctions, but the Belgium Croix de Guerre. With the end of hostilities, the Government undertook the reorganisation and permanent establishment of the Air Force, and General Newall, as he then was, received an invitation to act as Deputy Director of Personnel at the Air Ministry.

On him devolved the work of creating what was practically a new service. Unflinchingly he threw his whole heart into the work, visiting stations in all parts of the Empire. Ultimately in 1930 he was elected to a seat on the Air Council, and placed in command of Air Raid Precautions. Their efficiency is alone tribute to his organising ability.

★

LAST, but not least of our three War Chiefs, as he commands the Senior Service, is Admiral Sir Roger Roland Charles Backhouse, who though appointed First Sea Lord in January only assumed office on the first of this month. A junior officer at the outbreak of the Great War, Admiral Backhouse saw distinguished service at the Battles of the Dogger Bank and Jutland.

On the termination of hostilities he was appointed as Director of Naval Ordnance, and later as Commander of the Atlantic Fleet. During the last three years he has been Commander-in-Chief of the Home Fleet, in which capacity he led the Fleet at the naval reviews held on the occasion of the Jubilee of King George V. and the Coronation of King George VI.

★

EACH of the three' Chiefs of the British Forces is the right man in the right place. They are all beloved by the officers and men who have served under them, while they enjoy the unqualified confidence of the Cabinet. With them the security of the Empire is safe. None of them is a scare-monger.

While capable of controlling large bodies of men and leading them to victory, they all seek the solution of differences by more peaceful methods. War they regard as a means to be adopted only if all other measures fail. Yet, should it be inevitable, they are three leaders on whom the British Empire can rely for adequate defence and continued safety.

Crisis Days That Have Shaken Europe

Crisis—the word with its tragic import to the peoples of the world—has been on everyone's lips for eight days. As the hours pass nightmare fear gives place to hope. A turn in the complex situation and anxiety quickens, a breathing space as the Premier pays his flying visit to Hitler, and a looking back . . .

* * * *

On Thursday, September 8:

Mr. Chamberlain returning from Scotland talks with Lord Halifax, his Foreign Secretary; Sir John Simon, Chancellor of the Exchequer; Sir Robert Vansittart, Chief Diplomatic Adviser; and Sir Alexander Cadogan, Permanent Under-Secretary to the Foreign Office, of disturbing reports from Prague, Berlin, and Nuremberg.

Feeling was growing that there were strong forces at work in Germany "losing no opportunity to persuade Hitler," as one commentator put it, "that this was the correct psychological moment for a German march eastwards."

Ministers decided to defer action, as there was a prospect of renewed negotiations between Prague and the Sudetens, broken off by the Henleinists the previous day.

* * * *

Friday, September 9:

Ministers were in consultation all day. The British Ambassador talked with the German Minister at Nuremberg, and M. Corbin, the French Ambassador, called on Lord Halifax. The British Admiralty announced that minesweepers and minelayers were being brought up to full commission. The German Press renewed its virulent campaign against Czecho-Slovakia. The crisis appeared to be coming to a head and the world faced a week-end of suspense.

Saturday, September 10:

Goering at the Nazi Congress at Nuremberg gibed at the "ridiculous dwarfs in Prague," taunted the British Government, boasted of Germany's armed might, and reviled democracies.

Mr. Attlee, leader of the Opposition, saw the Prime Minister, Mr. Churchill calling later.

Dr. Benes. President of Czecho-Slovakia, appealed for calm and fair play.

Paris—The prey of the wildest of rumours.

Sunday, September 11:

Ministerial talks continued. Callers at the Foreign Office included Mr. Kennedy, U.S. Ambassador, and Mr. Anthony Eden. There were crowds in Downing Street and Whitehall.

* * * *

Monday, September 12:

British Cabinet met.
Hitler's speech was eagerly awaited. "If the Sudeten Germans cannot find right or help for themselves they shall get both from us," said Hitler, who demanded the right of self-determination for them.

The British Cabinet met again after he had spoken. The grave situation was unchanged.

* * * *

Tuesday, September 13:

After an outbreak of disorders amounting to open revolt in some towns, martial law was imposed in certain Sudeten districts. Twelve people, seven or eight of them Czechs, had been killed.

Herr Henlein sent an ultimatum to President Benes, demanding immediate revocation of the order, the withd of the State and special police, a confinement of troops to barracks. Czecho-Slovak Cabinet stood firm. In Downing Street the "Inner C was again in session and was att by the three Defence Minister and C of Staffs.

GOSSIP FROM PRESS.

GERMAN BEAUTY SPOT.

P.M.'S PISCATORIAL INTERLUDE.

The Chiemsee, where Mr. Chamberlain stopped on his way back from Berchtesgaden, is a famous lakeland beauty spot surrounded by the foothills of the Bavarian Alps. It is a little way from the great new Reich Autobahn which connects Munich with the former Austrian frontier, so that Mr. Chamberlain's interest in fishing must have led the party off his direct route. A peculiarly sporting and tasty type of lake, trout is found in the Chiemsee. This is the renken which Mr. Chamberlain enjoyed in the dining car of the train which took him up to Berchtesgaden from Munich. It is larger than the normal river trout found in most Central European mountainous districts, and has a pinkish flesh which gives it the appearance as well as flavour of a salmon trout. While Mr. Chamberlain may have been enthusiastic over its culinary virtues he cannot, I feel, have approved of the local method employed for catching it. While a few local fishermen employ a dry fly and would thus win Mr. Chamberlain's purist approval, the majority of renken are netted, or, worse still, caught on the worm.—"Peterborough," "Daily Telegraph and Morning Post."

THE RING OF SINCERITY.

I was in Downing Street when Mr. Chamberlain returned. The spontaneous welcome which the huge crowds in Whitehall gave the Premier was very touching. These were not the usual people who gather in sightseeing crowds on such occasions. A large proportion were apparently businessmen of substance. One felt that they had come to let our Prime Minister know that they appreciated his work for the cause of peace. There was, too, a real sincerity about the cheers which greeted Mr. Chamberlain. I thought that the Premier looked confident and determined—and also very much younger than his age. The present troubles have not overwhelmed him certainly. He looks amazingly fit and full of energy. Indeed I thought that I had seldom seen a man of his age look so young.—"Wonderful London" in the "Daily Sketch."

HOLIDAY-MAKERS RETURN.

For weeks past my friends have been telling me where they were going abroad and how much they were going to enjoy themselves, but in the past few days without exception they have all come racing back home. Two I met yesterday at Victoria. We walked out of the station, and one of them dashed up to a newspaper seller who was shouting something and bought a paper. "Good heavens," he said, "it is only the result of a race at Ayr." He told me that in France people have been queueing up outside banks and post offices, and that while there was no panic all sorts of precautions had been taken.—Ivor Lambe in the "Daily Mirror."

The Story of Mary Murphy, the Giantess from Portrush

MARY Murphy, the Portrush giantess, was born at Portrush in the year 1673. Her parents were ordinary fishing folk. She grew up a beautiful girl, very tall, and by the time she was 23 Mary was over seven feet in height.

Portrush in those days was not the popular seaside resort it is to-day. This was long before the time Archdeacon Pococke said, "Portrush is of so little consequence that there is not even a public-house in it for the convenience of travellers."

★

THE only industry was fishing, and Mary helped to mend the nets and sails, sorted the catch and made herself useful about the boats.

Every spring, French sailing boats came to Portrush to catch cod, which was cured for the French and Spanish markets The captain of one of these boats "fell" badly for Mary Murphy, proposed marriage, and was accepted.

Now the young giantess had plenty of admirers, with her dark hair, eloquent eyes, and healthy, fresh complexion. One of these was a hermit called Black. This man lived a lonely existence in Portcoon Cave, near the Giant's Causeway, and only visited Portrush to see Mary.

But poor Black had no success in his wooing of Mary. When he heard he had been "cut out" by the French captain he retired to his cave and fell sick. After the bride had left Portrush with her husband for France, Black was found dead in his cave, and was buried at Mount Sandal, near Coleraine. The doctor said he died of a broken heart.

The French captain was a good business man, and his Portrush wife was just as good a business woman. They soon discovered that more money was to be made in the side-show line than cod fishing. It wasn't every day that French people had the chance to see a beautiful young Irish giantess, seven feet high.

★

SO "Mary Murphy" learnt to sing a few Irish ballads, dance an Irish jig, and was soon on exhibition at the Brest fairs She adopted the stage name of "Mary Murphy," her maiden name, and was an immediate success.

Then the pair came to London and held an exhibition in Fleet Street. King William III. and Queen Mary got to hear of them and ordered a Royal Command performance.

They visited Kensington Palace, and the King and Queen were greatly pleased with "Mary Murphy." A special string orchestra was engaged, and the giantess sang her Irish ballads and danced her Irish jig, much to the Court's delight. Queen Mary gave the giantess a present of £50 and some material for a new dress, which "Mary Murphy" greatly prized.

It is on record that when "Mary Murphy" appeared at Court she looked extremely beautiful and seemed very much taller than she really was. She had a fine figure, was "admirably proportioned," and carried herself with great dignity.

Queen Mary's patronage was most useful to the young Irish giantess, and for a few months she was the "rage" of London. Then she toured the provinces, appearing at fairs all over Great Britain. Afterwards she went back to France, with still further success.

★

"MARY Murphy" eventually died in France, probably before she was thirty years old. No authentic record exists of any later career except for a letter an English gentleman wrote in 1701. "I saw Mary Murphy, the Portrush giantess, at a fair in Toulouse," he wrote to a lady in Ireland.

And that is the last we ever heard of "Mary Murphy."

Children's Road Licences.
Wembley School Enterprise.

LONDON, Saturday.

Mr. Leslie Burgin.

SUCH is the annual slaughter of people on the roads that any step which the authorities can take to reduce casualties is welcome.

It is, therefore, with considerable interest that an experiment which is being conducted with Wembley schoolchildren will be watched.

On October 24 Mr. Leslie Burgin, Minister of Transport, is to present to selected schoolchildren at Wembley special road licences which are designed to bring to the mind of 12,000 boys and girls at every school in that district the dangers of carelessness and thoughtless behaviour.

The scheme was devised by the Middlesex Children's Safety Committee, and disciplinary measures will take the place of fines, such as are imposed on adults for breaches of motoring laws.

In each licence, too, will be a page for endorsements. Those who maintain licences free from endorsement will be awarded badges.

A Different Tune.

THE last time Irving Berlin was in London—it was about two years ago—he mourned the short life of song hits.

During the past thirty odd years he has composed hundreds, and their demise grieved him. Berlin (his name was once Baline) is again on his way to London, and he will not be so mournful over the survival period of his songs.

He is coming for the opening of the film "Alexander's Ragtime Band," and this contains well over a score of his own songs. In four weeks 635,000 New Yorkers saw this at the Rosey Theatre, and the booking office collected over £57,000.

A good story is told of Berlin. In 1926 his name was linked with that of Miss Ellis Mackay, daughter of the multi-millionaire chief of an American Telegraph Company. Mr. Mackay was against the marriage, and he asked Berlin what he would do if he cut his daughter off without a cent?

Berlin replied, "In that case I'll have to settle a million on her myself." They married. Berlin is one of the richest artists in the world; his earnings reaching the £40,000 mark each year.

The Man They Wouldn't Shave.

A BARBER seems to be the embodiment of sangfroid. He spends his life catching people by the nose and skating over their jugular vein as if these things meant nothing to him, and, probably, they do not.

But even the barber has his preferences. There are some people whom he does not like to shave. I happen to be one of them, but I am told that I am not so bad as some.

Yesterday the adept with the razor whom I visited told me of a man who could only get shaved when he was abroad.

He was a native of Belgium, and in his own home town all the barbers refused to shave him because his beard presented too many difficult problems for them.

Beating the Seasons.

PEOPLE who have been unfortunate on their holidays this year—most people have!—are now in fit mood to scoff at any reference to the seasons.

The last decade has certainly experienced some mixing of the seasons, and even at this moment in the South of England we are experiencing a miniature Indian summer.

No matter how mixed the seasons are as far as the weather is concerned, the fruit seasons remain unchanged. Nature cannot be shaken in that regard

But science can take nature, and spread her gifts out over the various seasons, as will be proved at the Grocers' Exhibition, which opens for the forty-second time at the Royal Agricultural Hall, London, this week-end.

Demonstrations of an entirely new and revolutionary method of keeping all kinds of fruit and vegetables absolutely fresh during the interval between one "season" and the next will be made, and details announced of a system of service provision through a number of centres by which every grocer's shop in the land can become a supply of these fresh products daily throughout the year.

The secret is one of quick freezing by which the products are held in ripe suspension until defrosted. Special containers will be used in shops in which to store the products, or fruit, and maintain their freshness for any length of time.

Women's Table Tennis Drive.

AUTUMN is creeping on almost unnoticed, and in a few weeks' time London's tens of thousands of table tennis fans will be back at their favourite game.

Great efforts are to be made this winter to discover some new talent which will give Great Britain a better chance in the Swaythling Cup (Davis Cup of table tennis) than she has had hitherto.

These efforts are not, however, to be confined exclusively to men's table tennis, for the women have decided that their standard could well do with some improvement.

Mrs. D. L. Bunbury and Miss Phyllis Anderton, of Manchester, and Miss Rosalie Smits, of London, all three of them well known in women's table tennis, are planning to form a council and send them on a talent-spotting tour all over the country.

An inter-league competition will be organised, and there will be special training for promising players. All three agree that the coach should be a man. It is indicative of the speed of the game as played to-day, as well as the strain, that there will be physical training classes.

Competitive table tennis nowadays is played so fiercely that only a very exceptional player can hold his, or her, own after the age of 30.

That 30 m.p.h.

MANY have been the inventions whereby the driver of a car may tell when he has reached the speed-limit pace of 30 miles an hour, but none has been so unobtrusive as that demonstrated to me in London yesterday.

Invented by Mr. G. G. Holt, who says he is in no way an engineer, but "dabbles in inventions and things," the instrument consists of a small case in which is a rubber hammer.

Directly the speed limit is reached the hammer taps the steering wheel, and the vibration, felt only by the driver, informs him that he has exceeded the maximum speed allowed

The passengers in the car see, hear, or feel nothing, and, says Mr. Holt, this enables a driver to demonstrate his mastery of the judgment of speed before his passenger by day and night instead of having his lack of judgment openly demonstrated by a light buzzer or other warning device.

"The touch warner" is the name given to this strange, but nevertheless, practical device, and if it plays on the vanity of the public, as it is supposed to, success may come out of his first venture.

Novelty Chemists' Exhibition.

INTERESTING examples of this year's crop of novelties are being displayed at the annual chemists' exhibition, which opens in London shortly.

Among them will be a machine which can measure by reference only to their colour (1) whether a glass of milk has been properly pasteurised; (2) the presence, or absence, of Vitamin A in foods and oils, and (3) the precise standard of colour in face powders.

Manufacturing chemists take this annual opportunity of displaying to the world their latest inventions and discoveries for the promotion of health, beauty, and national fitness.

Among other exhibits will be a new treatment for rheumatism — health through the skin—an application that feeds the pores, radio-active mineral water, three different kinds of electric shaver, and perfume bottles in the form of hand painted miniature ornaments.

Mrs. Grundy at Ostend.

MRS. GRUNDY has paid a first visit to Ostend. Not much has come out of it. Apparently the only result is that casts of Venus must in future be draped. Authority has been convinced that "in the nude" she ought to be distastef to the artist and offensive to the "young person."

No doubt the guardians of pu morality are right. Any visitor, rec or otherwise, to the great seaside re on the Belgian coast will acquit t of narrowmindedness. Indeed m of them come away with a feeling Mrs. Grundy might still do a g deal of good work there.

Physically, Ostend is one of the m beautiful of Europe's holiday re Morally it is not so.

THE GARDENER'S CORNER.

Bulbs For Out-of-Doors Planting

By "The Man With The Hoe."

IT appears to be an early autumn this year as the leaves on the horse chestnuts, elms, laburnums and some ash trees are colouring; also the virginian creepers against walls and the sumach trees are turning red and crimson. The leaves on the gooseberry bushes are also tinted with their autumn shades. Many berries are beginning to show their bright colours, the cotoneasters being particularly noticeable, and the buckies are showing on the wild roses over the countryside. Some of the most beautiful of berries are those on the sea buckthorns. They are golden orange and glisten in the sunshine.

The planting of bulbs out-of-doors now goes on rapidly, and this applies especially to daffodils and narcissi. Tulips, hyacinths, scillas, anemones, snowdrops, ixias and sparaxis should succeed them. Then there are also chionodoxas, winter aconites, early flowering gladioli and irises to be remembered. The latter are sometimes termed the "orchids of the flower garden," and should be given a sunny spot, where they will thrive and give good flowers for cutting. It is well also to get wallflowers planted soon for spring flowering in April, and myosotis, which is a companion flower to them at this time.

Fragrant Flowers.

Fragrant flowers in gardens are always attractive. This accounts, apart from their colours, for the popularity of roses, carnations, sweet-peas, wallflowers and stocks. There are other flowers which are welcome with this attribute, and a special book on this subject has been written and compiled: it is entitled "Fragrant Flowers and Leaves," by Donald M'Donald. Nicotiana affinis is well known for its scent which is most apparent in the evening hours. It and heliotrope are suitable for greenhouse culture, and add sweetness as an additional attraction to the colours of the other plants.

The evening primroses are other favourite plants of this description, the varieties oenothera odorato and nocturna being very fragrant. Beds of lily of the valley and violets are always attractive, especially the latter when grown in frames, as then they come earlier when flowers are scarce. Hyacinths grown in pots or in bowls in fibre scent a sitting-room or greenhouse. Shelley noticed this when he wrote:—

> And the hyacinth purple, white and blue,
> Which flings from its bells a sweet peal anew
> Of fragrance so delicate, soft and intense,
> Which was felt like an odour within the sense.

In the kitchen garden on a wet day a slight dusting of sulphate of ammonia round the celery trenches will help the growth of this valuable winter vegetable. Leeks will also respond to frequent dustings of old soot given them during showery weather.

The Potato Crop.

The potato crop should now be got in and stored during dry weather, and beet which is full grown should be taken up and covered with dry sand. Parsnips can be left in the ground until required. Spinach beet should be kept clear of weeds, and if necessary thinned out. The leaves are valuable throughout the winter when there is a scarcity of greens or when a change is wanted.

Swede turnips are now in use, and there is a good supply of radish, lettuce, Lisbon onions and chives for salads. Tomatoes in cold greenhouses are slowly ripening, and cucumbers in frames, but it is desirable to conserve all the heat possible at this season.

Seeds of such plants as nasturtiums should be gathered before they start to rot. They should be placed in a sunny shelter to dry. There are many other seeds which may be collected and dried off for future use, such as delphiniums, lupins and honesty. The seeds of some shrubs may also be saved as it is interesting to raise uncommon specimens such as tricuspidarias, coluteas and tropaeolum speciosum.

Prune Now.

In the small fruit garden the earlier the pruning is done the better, for as the days get cold and dreary and the winter winds begin to blow this is not a cheery occupation. The old canes of raspberries should be cut out, and five or six shoots should be left to supply berries next season. Gooseberries shoots should be thinned out, leaving them that the hand can be easily inserted between the shoots. Blackcurrants should be thinned out into regular proportion, some of the old wood (dark wood) should be removed. Red currant side shoots should be cut in close to the main stems, and all runners should be cut from strawberries and the ground hoed and left tidy.

TWO BELFAST BIRDS

FINISH IN SAME SECOND

TO WIN 260 MILES RACE.

PIGEONS "NATIONAL" RESULTS.

The official result of Ireland's only young birds' Grand National Race, open to all comers, establishes the great success of the event. The race from Skibbereen (260 miles) was one of the best for many years. The truly national entry came from the best long-distance lofts.

Belfast claimed the supreme old bird championship through the record performance by the single entry from Messrs. M'Bride and Brown, who secured the King's Cup for the city for the first time. Belfast now claims the great double in the two classic nationals of the year. It was through the special effort of Mr. W. M. Thompson, Stormount House, Ballygomartin, Belfast, that the honour came to him and to the city. He had the rather unusual experience of having two birds arriving together, and, both being timed at the same second, they must hold the record between them There is, therefore, no semblance of fluke about the performance, as the first bird caught was his special nomination in the competition, viz., "one man, one bird, one prize." Much of the success is due to the brainy efforts of Mr. Willie Thompson, jun.

Mr. D. Plunkett, Newtownards, is narrowly headed by Mr. Thompson's two pigeons, so the honour of Down is upheld.

Dublin claims much attention by the splendid performance put up by Lynch Bros, the first time a Southern fancier has scored in the young bird series.

To Finaghy goes the next prize, and the fanciers concerned are Messrs. Pedlow and Son. Mr. J. W. M'Allister, Carrickfergus, takes the sixth position, with the M'Coosh Bros. first of the Lisburn contingent.

Results down to 1,000 yards are:—W. M. Thompson (Belfast) 1226, Neill Challenge Cup (A B C D S) and 1226 (A B C D)—£53 5s; D. Plunkett (Newtownards) 1224 (A, £2 2s), Lynch Bros. WINTER CONCERTS.

WHY COUNCIL DROPPED OUT

INTERVIEW WITH MR. R. E. FORBES

The attitude of the Corporation in rgard to the Ulster Hall concerts was elucidated in an interview with Mr. R. E. Forbes, estate superintendent of the municipality. He took the earliest opportunity of refuting the suggstion that the decision of the City Council not to co-operate withe the B.B.C. was influenced by financial considerations.

"Our policy in this matter," he went on, "is primarily in the interests of the public. As you are aware the symphony concerts in the Ulster Hall have been carried on through a long period of years with exceptional success but the prices fixed were on popular lines and were such that the average man in search of a pleasant and profitable evening could afford to pay. As long as these terms continued and as long as the public were able to have their entertainment cheaply the Corporation and the B.B.C. were in perfect accord. We did everything possible to encourage such concerts and were quite content if the cultural aspect from which they were promoted was realised. This year, however, we were faced with quite a different overture. The Regional Director of the B.B.C. in Belfast put before me a scheme by which it was proposed to have a series of concerts at 7s 6d, 5s and 3s 9d. I came to the conclusion that I could not recommend such a proposal to my Committee and my Committee unanimously endorsed this view. Our enterprises, I felt, should be on such an economic basis that the masses would have an opportunity of benefiting from them and I am still convinced that such high charges as those mentioned could not possibly be acceptable to the man in the street. It is quite a different matter when we come to think of the celebrity concerts. They cater for a large and select section who can afford to pay the higher prices and who are willing to do so. Had the B.B.C. come to me and said, 'We propose to have a number of concerts at 2s 2d and 1s 1d I would have immediatey acquiesed in the idea and recommended it to the Estates Committee. This was not done however. It is only right that the public should know the true facts of the matter."

Rev. T. W. Wallace and Rev. James Hall, B.A., ex-president of the Scottish C.E. Union, responded.

LIFE BOY LEADERS.

BANGOR CONFERENCE.

FOOTBALL LEAGUE STARTS.

NEW CARRICKFERGUS COMPANY.

On Wednesday night a meeting was held in Joymount Presbyterian Church Hall, Carrickfergus, to inaugurate a company of the Boys' Brigade. A Life Boy team was formed in connection with the church last session and is already firmly established.

Rev. Thos. Carlisle, minister of Joymount Presbyterian Church, who presided, paid tribute to the work the Boys' Brigade were doing, and he said he felt confident that the proposed company would be a very successful one. A deputation from 1st Carrickfergus Company under their captain, Mr. F. V. Simpson, was in attendance to assure the new venture of their sympathy and co-operation.

The Belfast Secretary, Mr. S. Gihon, was present and explained, with the aid of lantern views, the ideals and methods of the Boys' Brigade to the gathering of boys and their parents who were present. At the close of the meeting a considerable number of boys indicated their wish to have a company formed, and arrangements were made to hold the first parade on Tuesday of next week.

The Battalion Football League made a good start this afternoon, the first of the matches being played. This year's League is again a large one, 49 companies having entered, the total presenting a very real difficulty in the matter of securing grounds. Mr. R. D. M'Anally is again Convener of the Recreation Committee; Mr. F. J Parkinson is secretary of the Senior League, Mr. W. Rea secretary of the Junior League "A" Section, and Mr. H. Toner secretary of the Junior League "B" Section.

GOOD SESSION INDICATED.

It is gratifying to learn that the experience of most companies who have started indoor parades indicates a bumper session, and that already there are reports of companies finding it necessary to close down recruiting. It is hoped this indicates a spirit of determination to give the second B.B. half century in Ireland a particularly good start. Preliminary notices of the series of meetings and classes arranged to commence in October have been sent to all officers, and already very many have booked the dates.

There is every indication that the Life Boy Leaders Conference to be held in Bangor during the first week-end of October will be well attended. Particularly encouraging is the number of entries from the South of Ireland, as already over 20 Dublin leaders have indicated their intention to attend. These residential conferences seem to grow in popularity every year, and there is not any doubt one of the most pleasing features is the way in which they draw together Life Boy workers from all parts of Ireland.

The programme to be dealt with includes a great variety of subjects, some of the titles being "Area Spirit," "Music in the Team," "Discipline," "Team Socials," and there will be group discussions, attendance at Hamilton Road Methodist Church, and a closing devotional service. In addition to a very satisfactory entry from leaders planning to remain in residence over the week-end, there will be a considerable number of others who will travel.

THE BRIGADE COUNCIL.

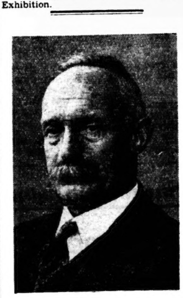
At the present time the Annual Brigade Council Meetings are being held by invitation of the West of Scotland District Council, in Dunoon, where a large contingent of officers are spending a long week-end in the interest of the Brigade. This contingent includes almost 30 officers of the Belfast Battalion.

On arrival in Glasgow yesterday morning some time was spent in sightseeing and visiting the Exhibition. At 5 o'clock the party left by special steamer for Dunoon, and had an excellent view of the Queen Elizabeth. After dinner an enjoyable reception was held in the Pavilion, Dunoon, by kind invitation of the Provost and Magistrates. House debates were held, in several cases being led by Belfast officers.

The first period this morning showed a glimpse of one of the now popular Officers' Training Schools, several subjects being dealt with exactly as they are at one of the schools. The annual Council meeting was held under the chairmanship of the Brigade President, the Right Hon. the Earl of Home, K.T.

To-night a company concert will be demonstrated, followed again by a series of conferences, and to-morrow morning before Church services, Rev. W. M. Wightman, D.D., Director of Religious Education in the Church of Scotland, is to address the Council on "The Church and the Boy."

Monday will be given over to an excursion, which includes a sail by special steamer to Greenock, lunch at Balrossie, the Boys' Brigade Training Centre, and a visit to the Empire Exhibition.



NEW COUNCILLOR.—Mr. Robert Brown Alexander, Dundela Avenue, Belfast, returned unopposed for the vacancy in Victoria Ward, Belfast.

THE REAPERS.

There will be a shortage of apples in one West Suffolk church to-morrow for harvest thanksgiving, and this is why.

A villager of Fakenham, a keen churchwoman, saved her fruit for the festival, and as a safeguard attached a notice to an apple tree saying, "Please do not touch. These are to be gathered for the harvest festival."

The following morning she found her orchard stripped of apples, and the notice amended read: "All are safely gathered in."

BELFAST CINEMAS.

FEATURES OF CURRENT WEEK'S PROGRAMMES.

NOTABLE PICTURES ON VIEW

ROYAL CINEMA.

There are two good features in the Royal Cinema programme next week. Akim Tamiroff is the gangster brought to the electric chair by Lloyd Nolan, a detective in the Edgar Wallace thriller, "On the Spot," with Gail Patrick, the Society girl who arouses the jealousy of Anna May Wong over the gangster's love. The second feature, "Texas Trail," is a Hopalong Cassidy yarn, with William Boyd, George Hayes (Windy) and Judith Allen.

CLASSIC CINEMA.

The Classic first feature, "Nothing Sacred," is a technicolour film starring Carole Lombard and Fredric March in a drama with a newspaper background laid in New York about a disgraced reporter who made good again by getting a startling story. Joan Fontaine and Allan Lane are featured in the second attraction, "Maid's Night Out," an amusing romance of mistaken identity. Leslie Simpson will be at the organ.

BELFAST HIPPODROME.

First feature at the Hippodrome, "Blockade," is an exciting story, which opens in Spain just on the outbreak of the civil war, when spies were operating in that country. Madeleine Carroll is rescued from a car accident by Henry Fonda and Leo Carrillo, two peasants, and thereby hangs a strange tale of espionage and war, with thrills and romance galore. The second feature, "Convicted," has Charles Quigley and Rita Hayworth in a murder mystery drama.

RITZ THEATRE.

William Powell and Annabella head the cast in "The Baroness and the Butler," at the Ritz next week. The whole film sparkles with witty dialogue, and is bright with gay sophistication. Powell is a magnificent butler and Annabella in her first American picture literally sparkles as the baroness. "Hitting a New High," which supports, has Lily Pons, Jack Oakie, Eric Blore, and E. E. Horton keeping the fun going. Joseph Seal presents a special interlude.

CRUMLIN PICTURE HOUSE.

That beautiful coloured film, "Wings of the Morning," comes to the Crumlin for three days on Monday. A gay romance of a gypsy's curse on an Irish peer's family is told, principally by Annabella and Henry Fonda. Hunting scenes and beautiful landscapes delicately coloured mark the picture out from its competitors. Bruce Seton stars in "Racing Romance," a drama of the turf at the week-end.

CURZON CINEMA.

Peter Lorre stars in "Thank You. Mr. Moto," at the Curzon on Monday, supported by Phyllis Brooks in "City Girl." The first is a thriller about smuggling, and there are four murders. The second is the romance of a girl gangster. At the week-end Robert Montgomery and Rosalind Russell star in the bright and amusing "Live, Love, and Learn," with romance and laughter for all, and Grant Withers in "Men Of Steel" will support.

TONIC CINEMA, BANGOR.

Alice Faye with a big cast of screen entertainers, presents "You're a Sweetheart" at the Tonic, Bangor, on Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday, and support comes from "The Black Doll," starring Nan Grey and Donald Woods in a laughter drama showing how a child's toy predicted crime. Joe E. Brown in "Fit For a King," and Fay Wray and Richard Dix in "Once A Hero," will be the week-end attractions.

EMPIRE THEATRE.

"One Thing After Another" rightly describes the speedy non-stop musical production which visits the Empire next week. Blended in this brilliant revue are many novel ideas which only a producer like Mannie Jay could present, whilst magnificent scenery by the George Flowers Studios and wonderful dresses by Max Weldy, of Paris, are only two of numerous items that help to make the show such a big success.

ARDUOUS TRAFFIC DUTY.

Ulster Police Tact and Courtesy

WRITER'S APPRECIATION.

Sir,—In the rather difficult times motorists are having in Belfast with too few parking places, traffic lights at every corner, consequent congestion and only at best a 15 minutes halt in any street, it is impossible to do business, yet one must pay a tribute to the uniform courtesy and tact of the police with regard to these regulations and their enforcement. It is the duty and privilege of our citizens to see that proper laws are made. It is equally their duty and privilege to help the cause of law and order. We are all perhaps rather apt to take law and order for granted or that protection and the police are unnecessary or an interference until we have a rather rude awakening to the presence of undesirable and lawless elements. I have always found the police ever ready to give helpful information and direction.—Yours, etc.,

J. P.

Sir,—We have in Northern Ireland a body of men which, according to the law and the entire force are, as authorised by Act of Parliament, called the Royal Ulster Constabulary. Until another name is supplied by Act of Parliament no person should apply any other name to that splendid force. It is becoming a custom in certain quarters to call this worthy force by the grossly offensive name of "Cop." This is copying the language of the gangster and American underworld generally and we don't want and won't have it in this country. The traffic branch of the Royal Ulster Constabulary superintends the motor traffic and to apply any other name to this body of men is not only most offensive but is grossly impertinent.—Yours etc.,

"LOYALIST."

TYRONE TURKEY'S RECORD.

Sir,—I have a turkey which started to lay on February 25. She rested 12 days during May and laid every day since. She kept on at the rate of four days laying and one day rest till the end of July; then three days laying, next rest, until she stopped on September 3. Her eggs were all an even size, over six months and nine days' laying in all. Can this be beaten?—Yours, etc.,

(Mrs.) F. GIBSON.

BANGOR CRICKET CLUB.

Sir,—I noticed in your columns a report of the annual general meeting of the Bangor Cricket and Rugby Football Club.

As a matter of interest I would like to point out that the "Bangor Cricket and Rugby Football Club" is the full title of the Bangor Rugby Club. The Bangor Cricket Club is a completely separate organisation, and is not connected in any way with the Rugby Club.—Yours, etc.,

J. E. BARBOUR, Hon. Secretary.

PRAYER AND THE CRISIS.

Sir,—Seeing united prayer is to be offered in all churches on Sunday it is hoped the many hundreds of persons who are careless about attending their place of worship will sacrifice time on our account to be present at the nearest service.—Yours, etc.,

"SINCERE."

BELFAST AND ULSTER TOURS.

Sir,—The Northern Ireland Transport Board and the Belfast Corporation have this summer been endeavouring to make special bus runs more popular with our visitors and with a little more trouble and foresight they should be more successful next year.

I am informed by visitors who have travelled on the Transport Board's tours that no endeavour was made to acquaint them with the name of each town as they passed through it, nor were they told of items of interest along the route. For example, on the Mourne's tour there was no mention of Bloody Bridge and how it came to be so named, of the enormous engineering difficulties that had to be overcome in the building of the Silent Valley reservoir, of Mourne Park, of Ross of Bladensburg, of the Frontier Town with its Town Hall built on a bridge specially erected for the purpose, of the Brontes, of the Crozier Memorial in Banbridge, of the stocks in Dromore, of Hillsborough Castle, etc.

On somewhat similar grounds visitors have commented adversely on the tour of the city by Corporation bus. No attempt was made to tell them the name of any building, etc., that was passed and the only impression received was that it was a mystery tour (although not advertised as such) and that the driver wanted to get to his destination as quickly as possible. A Belfast resident accompanying a friend on one of these runs told me of the following which took place. To use her own words: "The bus tore up Massey Avenue, swung round Stormont grounds, out the Stormont gates, and shot up Castlehill Road like a scalded cat." The Belfast people in the bus were the only ones who knew that they had just seen one of the entrances to the grounds surrounding the Northern Ireland Parliament buildings.

In Northern Ireland the tourist industry is becoming bigger and bigger every year and there is no reason if the little details that matter are looked after, why the industry should not eventually grow, as it has in Canada, into the most important in the Imperial Province. Might I suggest, therefore, that at the start of a special tour the bus driver be supplied by his employers with a booklet describing the items of interest on that particular route. A momentary halt at each point is all that is necessary to provide the opportunity for the driver to display his showmanship and "tell the tale." Our visitors would then be more able to carry back with them pleasant memories and that indefinable atmosphere of a land steeped deep in folklore and tradition.—Yours, etc.,

GUIDE FOR BOOKLOVERS

A Novel Laid in Co. Derry

"MAGILLIGAN STRAND," by George A. Birmingham (Methuen, 7s 6d).

GEORGE Birmingham forsakes his beloved West for the shores of County Derry in his latest novel, the artistic jacket of which has a view of Magilligan with the railway line running between the sea and the cliffs and in the far background is seen Downhill House, the home of the Bruce family.

The locale is not confined entirely to Magilligan, for the story opens and closes in Barminster, a sleepy English cathedral town, where religion has become more a habit than a living reality in the hearts of the eminently respectable folk who attend the cathedral services.

We are introduced to the Dean, a good-natured, but useless kind of parson who, failing as a headmaster, has been rewarded with a deanery. We meet the canons of the cathedral chapter, especially Canon Grape with his progressive ideas and canon powers, a dear old man full of poetry. We meet the Dean's verger and his daring daughter, and we have a picture of the solicitors to the chapter and other folk who frequent Cathedral Close. All are excellently drawn, the author revealing an observant mind and a keen insight into the ways of men and women in cathedral towns.

☆

Sweep Ticket Smuggling.

BUT curiously enough the main story concerns the smuggling of Irish sweepstake tickets into England, and the action takes place on Magilligan Strand. Dean Carney goes unaccompanied on a holiday to Ireland, his wife being described as "the kind of woman from whom it is necessary to take an occasional holiday if married life is to continue peaceful and happy." His car is cut off by the tide at Magilligan, and he is rescued by an attractive nun on horseback who uses language not in keeping with the veil.

In truth she is none other than the daughter of his verger, who is in league with the smugglers of sweep tickets from the other side of the Foyle. Wet and weary they find shelter in a little hotel where the only other occupant is Gerald Billing, a miserable specimen of a Customs and Excise officer who blames his lowly position in the Service and all the ills of the world on the "capitalist system."

Billing, seeking to curry favour by unofficial explorations into sweep smuggling, is a friend of Canon Grape, whose pale-pink Socialist theories break down when he comes to apply them to his own household. Here we meet also Septimus Hall, an overdrawn journalist, who scents copy in the nun and the Dean, and publishes the story far and wide.

The Dean, innocently, but embarrassed, is recalled from his holiday when it is found that sweep tickets are being sold by the rascally clerk of the Chapter solicitors ostensibly for the restoration of the Cathedral tower, but really for the enrichment of the clerk, who disappears when the game is up and the police come on the scene. Hall, ever in search of copy, crosses to Barminster and recognises the would-be nun, and the book ends in comedy.

It is a genuine farce all through, full of riotous fun and dialogue. Billing's day in Belfast, none the less dismal than the Dean's day in Liverpool, is not very convincing, nor is the story of the mechanic who would not repair his car until he gave proof that he was not a Sinn Feiner.

☆

Author On Anglers.

HALL is a type long since gone from the ranks of journalism in Ireland, but the novelist is very near the mark in his description of the fishermen who go to the modest hotel at Carronasliggan, County Donegal, from which the Dean was so abruptly summoned by his wife's telegram.

Here is George Birmingham on the anglers:—

> "It is for the sake of the trout that fishermen, the 'anglers' of local speech, come to Carronasliggan, and stay at the little hotel. Its modest comfort not only suffices them. It pleases them more than luxury would. Indeed, it is likely that these men would be repelled, might even desert the trout, if some enterprising caterer were to establish at Carronasliggan a 'Grand Palace,' replete with all pretentiousness. There are in the world men, though not many of them, who dislike being brayed at by bands while they eat their meals. These fishermen belong to that small company. Nor do they want to dance in the evenings. The sight of a polished floor would send them into hiding.
>
> "They hate the idea of dressing in silk-faced jackets at dinner-table. It will be guessed at once that they seldom bring women with them on their holidays. A wife is as rare a sight in Carronasliggan as a bourgeois citizen in Moscow. This is not because these men are misogamists. It is because wives and sisters regard Carronasliggan as intolerably dull, and prefer even the risk of sea-sickness on cruising ships."

Which is all perfectly true.

"LOVE WITHIN LIMITS," by Paul Frischauer (Cassell & Co., Ltd., 7/6)

PAUL Frischaeur, the author of this novel, is an Austrian with a Continental reputation gained rather by studies of celebrities than in the realm of fiction.

His new novel is in a sense a study, a psychological study of Ulrich Balthoser, a neurotic and erratic Viennese lawyer, a product of the war years. His wife, whom he is accused of slaying, was an unemotional woman whose passing deprived the lawyer of any hold he had on himself, and he is plunged because of his own weakness into various associations which are cleverly handled by Mr. Frischauer.

The ladies he met at Semmering and the rascally Anna Wultinka, queen of the Viennese underworld, led up to a strange denouement of death on the one hand and love on the other. It is all powerfully done, and no character is more real than Inspector Kostan, who had charge of the Maria Balthoser dossier.

Six Minute Story No. 16 by H. A. MANHOOD

STEAL MY BONES

OLD ALICE POMEROY had lived contentedly in the same tidy little cottage all the 75 years of her life. She had been born in it, had found with ease a worthy husband to share it, and now it seemed that she was about to die in it.

It was an ivied, knuckle-chimneyed place of four low-ceiled rooms, trim and dignified like old Alice herself, with a humorous wink in its upper windows where the thatch sagged low; snug enough and tightly furnished within, and set in a square-hedged garden in which a gaunt iron pump sat like a begging skeleton.

It had no name, possibly none could think of one to describe its peace. Across its quietness the brisk step and thin, singing voice of old Alice had sounded like the tick and chime of a clock.

Now the clock was stopped and the cottage seemed to hold its breath, listening anxiously.

After the dreary, winter-slimed funeral of her husband, Alice had gone straight home to bed, very sad and tired. And she had stayed there, no one knowing exactly what was wrong with her. Enoch, her slow, stolid son, thought that she was simply heart-broken; but his thin, whippy wife thought it was just cussedness and hoped for a quick end.

The doctor guessed at mental conflict, but received only a dry smile to all his elaborate questioning Her few neighbours were sure that she had worn herself out with a lifetime of work and little pleasure, for that was the way life usually went

* * * *

Her Problem

BUT Alice did not care what they thought. Certainly she was not heart-broken, only puzzled, and in working out her problem she had simply overlooked her body.

Lying now in the great sunken bed upstairs, within sight and sound of the first joyous feathering of spring, her thin, strong face with its tight-brushed grey hair deep in the pillow as if it had grown leaden with the weight of thought, Alice stared unwinkingly up at the papered boards of the ceiling, brooding patiently, turning less and less to the great Bible on the bedside chair as conviction grew.

Her problem, a large and unhappy one, had arisen out of Isaac's death. They had married early, and found deep happiness where most find only a nagging tolerance. They had worked hard and sustained each other handsomely.

Isaac, strong and gentle, had believed firmly in a life everlasting, and Alice had believed with him.

But now that he was so utterly gone, faced with emptiness, she was not so sure. If he were still part of life, warmth without shape, he would surely reach and touch her somehow. But she had received no sign, and, slowly remembering the way of all life, how all things died in their season and were renewed only through their seed, she realised with certainty that life everlasting was but a pleasant sop to the weak ones of earth.

And old Alice was not one of the weak ones. She could accept the knowledge of death in all its bleakness, understand at last that heaven was only here on earth for those who wished it.

An enormous problem it had been, but Alice had faced it courageously, saying never a word of all her painful thoughts to the snapping daughter-in-law who came grudgingly across the meadows each day with dull food and sharp words, sure that Alice would die, wishing she'd hurry up.

And, because she was so sure, she had greedily taken away with her at first small pieces of furniture, vases and pictures, then large pieces, thinking it foolish to go with empty hands when it would all have to be carried down to her own house later on, after the funeral.

* * * *

The Solution

SHE was very strong beneath her thinness, with a nose that seemed designed for prising open locked doors, and soon she was stumbling downhill with chairs and corner tables, fenders, and china cabinets, plundering the cottage with magpie thoroughness

It was at dawn, one day in April, that Alice solved her problem finally and awoke to the weakness of her body; a mild, perfect morning that was clear evidence of heaven on earth, so that Alice was comforted and ashamed of her bed-lying.

Chidingly she talked to herself, willing strength back to her body, opening her mind to the warming sunlight. After a little, peaceful while, she rose, steadying herself against the bed post, washing and dressing herself in her old workaday clothes. It was high time the garden was dug, potatoes sown, peas, too; young peas with mint and butter. . . . her mouth was less dry at the thought.

* * * *

Prim Walk

SLOWLY but firmly she went downstairs, footsteps echoing strangely, swinging the familiar door, staring unbelieving, understanding at last the cause of the many bumpings that had lately accompanied her daughter-in-law on her way.

"Steal my bones, indeed!" she cussed indignantly, and then, as firmly, she went back upstairs, changing again into her faded best, packing a chubby leather bag, presently locking the cottage door carefully behind her, walking primly downhill, head turning now and then towards a bird in flight or a rabbit as it ran through sun-glossed grass, talking decidedly to herself.

After all, she'd done her share of work. Now she would have time to enjoy this heaven on earth, live more spaciously. Enoch must be told too, helped towards a little peace.

It was hardly nine o'clock when she knocked with her umbrella on the door of her son's new brick house down in the valley and stood looking round appreciatively.

Her daughter-in-law opened the door, moaned a little and tried to faint. But old Alice nudged past her sweetly, loosening her bonnet strings:

"So nice and thoughtful of you to carry my things down here all ready for me. I'm sure we shall get along famously together."

Surname History

French Has Its Origin In France

JUST as we have Walsh for a Welshman, and sometimes Inglis for an Englishman, so French originally indicated one who had come from France. The same source contributed to Francis.

The earliest forms in which the name appears leave us in no doubt. It is le French, le ffrensch, le Frennsshe, and le ffrenshe in the twelfth and thirteenth centuries, but soon after became settled French, the familiar surname now.

Indeed, at the beginning of the sixteenth century there is a plain John French who is a baker and Yeoman of the Crown to Henry VII. A hundred years later a Nicholas French is Bishop of Ferns and becomes president of the Irish College at Louvain, while a John French was a physician to the Parliamentary army.

One of the many but most gifted speculators on the mystery of the Waverley Novels was Gilbert James French. He published an "Inquiry into the Origin and Authorship of some of the Waverley Novels," but his fame chiefly rests on his biography of Crompton.

* * * *

He was not the only French to be associated with the name of Sir Walter Scott, however. It was from a Mr. James French, afterwards minister of a kirk in Scotland, that the novelist and his brothers received lessons in Latin.

French is the family name of the Barons de Freyne. The title was conferred on Arthur French, M.P., and before him many of his ancestors had represented County Roscommon in Parliament and one had sat for Galway. Dr. Thomas Valpy French was a missionary pioneer who became the first Bishop of Lahore.

The curious post of Chief Justice for China and Japan, which would be rather difficult to hold nowadays, was held in the last century by George French with whom the surname in Kent has associations. But, of course, the most famous Kentish bearer of the name was the great soldier of the European War, Sir John French, who became the first Earl of Ypres, and was the son of Captain John Tracy French, of Ripple Vale, Kent, and the Royal Navy.

* * * *

Vice-Admiral Sir Wilfred Frankland French, K.C.B., had command of the coastal motor-boat base at Osea Island in the War. He has been vice-president of the Chemical Warfare Committee, and Flag Captain and chief staff officer of H.M.S. Hood.

One of the prominent figures in the Methodist Church has been Rev. E. Aldom French, who was secretary of the Methodist Union Committee and had an important part in bringing together the denominations which now form the united church.

Major the Hon. E. Gerald French, the second son of the first Earl of Ypres, was adjutant to the 11th Yorkshires, served with the 11th Cheshires in the European War, and was afterwards Governor of Newcastle Prison.

NEXT WEEK: ARNOLD.

A PLAIN MAN'S SERMON

What About the Sabbath?

WE must recognise the fact that the institution known as "the English Sunday" (which, however, was observed farther afield than England) has become a thing of the past.

Whether this marked change which has come over the outlook and habits of the great majority of the nation is for the better or the worse is a [illegible] question into which I do not propose to enter. But Sunday is still with us, and we all have to settle, in either one way or the other, what use we are to make of it.

I propose to avoid particularities, details, and the laying down of hard and fast rules, and to confine myself to broad principles. Christ, you will notice, never laid down rules; because rules can become dead letters with changing circumstances. He always laid down great, broad principles applicable to all times and all places. He always avoided the letter of the law, going behind it to get at the spirit of a thing.

What then are the principles? What is the spirit which ought to govern our attitude towards the day called "Sunday"?

☆

Not the Sabbath.

LET us begin by giving the day its right name, which is "the Lord's Day." ("Sunday" is a name of heathen origin; and the "Sabbath" is not Sunday at all, but Saturday. It is a purely Jewish name; and the keeping of the Sabbath concerns only Jews, and has nothing to do with Christians.)

The Christian Church has always kept Sunday; and from the first Christians gave to this day a name which claims it for our Lord. They called it "the Lord's Day"—the day belonging to the Lord Christ.

This being so, the first thing which we ought to wish to do is to make it so. If He is totally excluded from it it can scarcely with any accuracy be called His day!

What we seem to be doing at present is to make it into our day. This looks extremely like selfishness, and seems to show a want of gratitude to the Giver of the day.

Suppose our birthday comes round and all the family thoroughly enjoy themselves because it is our birthday, but take no notice whatever of us—do not, in fact, so much as speak to us the whole day—shall we not presently begin to ask, "Is this my birthday or yours?"

Secondly, it is His day, because it is the Resurrection Day. That is why Christians keep Sunday, because it is the first day of the week, when Christ rose from the dead. And resurrection suggests newness of life. It is in fact re-creation.

But we have so forgotten the real meaning of this word that we have come to believe seriously that rushing madly about (which we call "recreation") is the same thing as being re-created in body, mind and spirit.

If Sunday is spent in a way which leaves us just as dead mentally and spiritually as we were before, it is scarcely a resurrection day.

God has given us a mind and a spirit as well as a body, and the penalty for utterly neglecting mind and spirit is a very severe one. Even savage and primitive people make some place in their scheme of things for religion; which shows that they have in some dim sort of way grasped the idea which lies behind Sunday.

☆

Make the Most Of It.

THIRDLY, if it is the Lord's Day we ought to bring the Lord Christ's spirit into it. He had only the deadly Jewish Sabbath at His disposal; but He made the most of it. He made always a place in it for worship, joining with his fellow-men in the simple synagogue service and giving thanks to God. He never omitted that.

There are sixteen waking hours in every Sunday. Is it impossible for us to give one-sixteenth of the day to the recognition of God; or must we have the whole sixteen hours for ourselves?

Was Christ wrong? and are we right? He made it a day of helpfulness and kindness to others. The Gospels tell us how He was wont to heal on the Sabbath Day and to teach the people. He did not take the day for Himself. He made it a blessing to other people.

We cannot heal and perhaps we cannot teach, but we should be bringing something of His spirit into Sunday if we thought a little less about ourselves on that day. Most of us have somewhere a friend who is sick or we know someone who is lonely. There are people to whom a letter from us would mean so much. To remember them and to do something for them on the Lord's Day would show that we had, at any rate, caught a little of the Lord's mind and spirit.

Above all, we should avoid depriving any of our fellowmen of their Sunday by making them work in order that we may enjoy ourselves. There are, of course, certain indispensable things which must be done on Sunday; but need we make it one of the hardest days in the week for domestic servants, waiters and waitresses and a whole host of other hard-worked people, merely in order that we may "have a good time?"

That sort of utterly selfish spirit does really put a great gulf between us and Christ. Our Lord must sometimes feel very sad when He sees how little He has succeeded in teaching us to care about each other and to catch the spirit which was in Him.

REV. L. B. ASHBY.

THE DOCTOR'S CORNER.

Skin Health

A HEALTHY, well-toned skin is an important factor in maintaining sound health. Clothes should not be worn, therefore, which prevent free evaporation of perspiration.

A pint or more of fluid may be lost by the skin in a day in ordinary health and heavy underclothing that retains moisture is a frequent cause of unhealthy, flabby skin and of susceptibility to colds and chills.

A daily bath followed by a rub-down, is a splendid skin tonic and is of real value in keeping up the resistance to infection. Thus the common winter ailments can be largely prevented

Cold baths are more stimulating than hot, but do not agree with everybody.

BRITISH CABINET'S DOUBLE SESSION

Hitler Believed To Have Fixed Time Limit

Runciman and Assistant Attend Momentous Meeting

Vital decisions affecting the future peace of Europe faced to-day's momentous meeting of the British Cabinet at 10 Downing Street. Lord Runciman was present, and during the discussions, Mr. Ashton Gwatkin, one of the members of the mission to Prague, was called.

THE CABINET BROKE UP AFTER TWO AND A HALF HOURS AND MET AGAIN AT THREE O'CLOCK.

MR. CHAMBERLAIN TOLD HIS MINISTERS THE RESULT OF HIS TALKS WITH HERR HITLER.

Lord Runciman afterwards was received by the King at Buckingham Palace and remained to lunch.

There is now no doubt that the two countries fully and thoroughly understand each other's attitude towards the Central European problem.

IT SEEMED CLEAR THAT THE CABINET HAD TO CONSIDER THE DEMAND BY HERR HITLER THAT THERE SHOULD BE A QUICK SETTLEMENT OF THE CZECH PROBLEM.

The Nine Point Plan of Dr. Hodza, the Czecho-Slovak Premier, has been forgotten—it is indeed a dead letter—and to-day the opinion was generally expressed that Herr Hitler has demanded the absolute secession of certain areas of the Sudetenland.

He did not, it is believed, retract in the slightest degree from his Nuremberg speech.

Mr. Chamberlain, it is said, was equally firm in his reiterations of his warning of the dangers of a settlement of the problem by force.

It was thought likely that the British Ministers would consider the advisability of inviting M. Daladier and M. Bonnet, the French Prime Minister and Foreign Secretary, to London to discuss the position.

The brightest hope lies in the fact that the Prime Minister intends to have a further meeting with Hitler. The date has not yet been definitely fixed, and must wait upon events.

Lord Halifax was the second Minister at No. 10. He arrived at 10-30. By this time a small crowd had gathered in Whitehall at the entrance to Downing Street.

Lord Runciman and Earl De La Warr, Lord Privy Seal arrived together a few minutes later.

Sir Kingsley Wood, Air Minister, and Mr. Hore-Belisha, War Minister, arrived a quarter of an hour before the Cabinet meeting was due to begin. The police had then closed Downing Street to the public, and the crowd in Whitehall had grown considerably.

Before the Cabinet met, Sir Alexander Cadogan, Permanent Under-Secretary at the Home Office, was at No. 10. Ministers arrived in quick succession for the meeting.

Twenty-one out of the twenty-two members of the Cabinet were present. The only absentee was Lord Stanley, the Dominions Secretary, who is on his way home from Canada.

Mr. Ashton-Gwatkin, a member of Lord Runciman's mission to Czecho-Slovakia, was called to No. 10 while the Cabinet meeting was in progress. He arrived at 12.15.

While the Cabinet was sitting Mr. Joseph Kennedy, the American Ambassador, called at the Foreign Office and saw Sir Alexander Cadogan.

This interview was no doubt in accordance with the policy which the Government has pursued of keeping the United States fully informed of developments.

The Counsellor to the Japanese Embassy was another visitor.

Lord Perth, British Ambassador in Italy, who has been on leave, is expected to return to Rome shortly.

No arrangements have yet been made for any visit to London of M. Daladier, the French Prime Minister.

Lord Runciman left No. 10 by a side door after the Cabinet meeting had been in progress some two and a quarter hours.

After the Cabinet had been in session for two and a half hours the Ministers emerged from No. 10.

WEEK-END POSSIBILITY

While German action against Czecho-Slovakia is not expected before Herr Hitler's next meeting with Mr. Chamberlain, it is not thought in Berlin that the leader has given any pledges to this effect (states the "Daily Telegraph and Morning Post" correspondent).

The possibility of Germany taking action during the week-end to "protect" the Sudeten Germans, if the situation is regarded as intolerable, cannot therefore be altogether excluded.

Meanwhile, it is insisted in Berlin that there can be no going back on Herr Henlein's "home to the Reich" proclamation. The Carlsbad demands which would have given the Sudeten Germans autonomy within the frontiers of the Czecho-Slovak State are now dead and buried.

So far as can be gathered, Germany's minimum demands now involve the grant of a plebiscite in the Sudeten German areas, but, as events gather momentum, this formality appears less and less necessary in Nazi circles. If the Czechs go much further in attacks on the Sudeten Germans, it is declared, the moment will soon be reached when the Sudetens will be unable to help themselves. Then, as Herr Hitler proclaimed in his Nuremberg speech, they will be helped by Germany.

While Mr. Chamberlain's visit to Herr Hitler is the subject of warm tribute in the Press, there is no tendency at present to regard it as anything more than a slight brake on the speed with which Germany is realising her plans. Everything so far has gone according to schedule. It is made quite clear that Herr Hitler has no intention of retreating an inch from the position he took up at Nuremberg. The only question in German minds is how far Britain and France will give their assent to Herr Hitler's demands, and in what form they will be realised.

There will be no slackening in the pressure on the Prague Government while the next meeting between Mr. Chamberlain and Herr Hitler is being prepared. Every effort will be made to drive the Czech authorities into action which can be represented to the world as aggressive and as providing an excuse for armed intervention by Germany.

INSULT TO WORLD.

The "Voelkisher Beobachter," the official Nazi organ, declares that there can be no further delay in finding a final solution to the Czech problem. It was an insult to the world that a State like Czecho-Slovakia should be permitted, through its arrogance and obstinacy, to cause a danger of general war.

There is an ominous note in the comment of the "National Zeitung," of Essen, the organ of Field-Marshal Goering.

"The attempt made by Herr Schuschnigg in the last days of the old Austria," it writes, "to mobilise Marxists and Bolshevists against the clear will of the people has been carried to fresh heights in the hyphenated Republic of Benes and Hodza. The Palestine in Central Europe, against which the Fuhrer uttered a warning in his great speech, has already been realised in the Sudeten districts.

"At a moment when even Popular Front circles in Europe are beginning to see that there are such things as morality and conscience in international relations, these laughable pigmies of anonymous origin are raising their fists against Europe, clenched in the Moscow style.

"What is Benes, the advocate on Masaryk's shaky chair, doing? There is a terrible blood guilt on the head of this Czech chief.

"Germany has proclaimed that the fate of her Sudeten German brothers is her own fate, and that a question of justice is at stake which admits no bargaining.

"We all know our trust in the Fuhrer, who will make the right decision at the right moment. Germany will not tolerate another May 21"

The "Maerkische Volkszeitung," once a leading Catholic paper, remarks that anyone who hopes that Germany will abandon her rights "in the interests of peace" and agree to concessions is making a serious mistake.

HITLER ULTIMATUM TO PREMIER.

FIXES TIME LIMIT

TO SUDETEN DEMANDS.

WANTS SECESSION OF AREAS.

Rumour and report were busy in London on Friday night as to the nature of the impression created in Mr. Chamberlain's mind by his interview with Herr Hitler, writes the "Daily Telegraph and Morning Post" diplomatic correspondent.

It can be stated with confidence that Herr Hitler advanced his demands in terms so unequivocal that, accompanied as they were by a time limit for satisfaction, they amounted virtually to an ultimatum.

Several versions were current as to what had been demanded, but in the absence of precise information it would be foolish to attach much importance to these. All that can be said is that Herr Hitler demanded as a right the absolute secession of important areas of the Sudetenland. He left no doubt that if satisfaction was not obtained before a certain date—not far ahead—he would be forced to adjust the position himself in the "interests of the persecuted Sudeten Germans."

In German circles it is not denied that to this statement Mr. Chamberlain rejoined with an equally stiff warning that, if an attempt were made to resolve this position by force, force would be employed by both Britain and France to resist the attempt.

It seemed uncertain whether, in the light of the news from Prague, any proposal which might be advanced from London would provide a basis for further negotiation. In any event, it was conceded that no proposals would now have a chance of acceptance unless accompanied by a joint guarantee of the integrity of the Czecho-Slovak State.

I understand that Mr. Chamberlain firmly stated to Herr Hitler that any attempt by another Power to use force to secure a settlement of the Czecho-Slovakian crisis would be met by force both by Britain and France, writes the "Daily Telegraph and Morning Post" political correspondent.

I learn that before Lord Runciman left Czecho-Slovakia the Government's control in the Sudeten areas seemed to be as firm as was reported the previous evening. There is no doubt that feeling in Czecho-Slovakia was considerably incensed against Herr Henlein by the proclamation he issued on Thursday shortly before fleeing to Bavaria.

SUDETENS ASKED TO KEEP CALM.

PRAGUE, Saturday.—An appeal to the Sudeten Germans to "keep calm and remain what you are and wait until Hitler and Chamberlain have concluded their fateful conference," was issued to-day by Herr Ernst Kundt, the chairman of the Parliamentary Group of the now dissolved Sudeten German Party.

The text of the proclamation is:—

"Sudeten Germans, under the political pressure of short-sighted elements who do not yet understand what serious decisions Europe is facing in these grave days of crisis, the Government thought it proper to put a stop to the activities of the political national organisations of the Sudeten Germans.

"With reservations of measures in my capacity as leader of your Parliamentary Group, I appeal to you do not let yourselves be misled by the dissolution of the party. Remain what you are and wait until Adolf Hitler and Chamberlain have concluded their fateful conference.

"It is no longer decisive to-day whether or not there exist parties and organisations in Czecho-Slovakia. For us only the future fate of the Sudeten Germans and of our home is decisive. Until this fate is decided remain strong and keep iron nerves. God is with us."

Herr Kundt expressed the hope that his appeal would be made known to the Sudeten Germans through the newspapers, as he does not propose to issue it in poster form.

The impression is gleaned that by this appeal he keeps open all doors for both Herr Henlein and President Benes, and apparently prefers to await the outcome of the Hitler-Chamberlain talks.—Exchange.

GRAVE PRAGUE VIEW: FEARS OF A GERMAN INVASION

AN extremely grave view is now undisguisedly held in Czech official circles concerning the situation. It would be criminal to disguise any longer the fact that in Prague, whatever information may be available elsewhere to justify a more optimistic view, an invasion and violent air attacks from Germany is expected to begin at any moment — the latest in the course of next week.

WHILE CALM PREVAILED IN SUDETENLAND DURING THE NIGHT, SAYS REUTER FROM PRAGUE, THE GOVERNMENT IS ENERGETICALLY CARRYING OUT ITS MEASURES TO LIQUIDATE THE SUDETEN GERMAN PARTY WHICH THEY SUSPENDED YESTERDAY.

PARTY HEADQUARTERS IN DIFFERENT DISTRICTS ARE BEING SEIZED AND SEARCHED FOR ARMS AND INCRIMINATING DOCUMENTS.

In Prague police found only an empty nest, as all the Sudeten staff left on the night of Chancellor Hitler's speech at Nuremberg.

While a number of Sudeten Germans have crossed the frontier into Germany, more than 6,000 others belonging to the opposition group, the Social Democrats, have fled from the Sudeten regions to Prague.

According to a message issued by the official German news agency from Eger, the headquarters of the Sudeten German Party are now at a secret place in Eger, but will be moved shortly to another town in Sudeten German territory.

Nearly all the leaders of the party are still in Sudeten German territory although, says the report, "their movements cannot be disclosed for obvious reasons."

It is officially announced that proceedings have been instituted against Herr Henlein, the party leader, under the law for the protection of the Republic.

PLEBISCITE IDEA REJECTED

The Czech Government has received no direct information from London concerning the details of Mr. Chamberlain's conversation with Herr Hitler, but from other sources at the disposal of official circles it is understood that the gist of the conversation was a suggestion of the possibility of some sort of plebiscite from Mr. Chamberlain and a brisk rejection by Herr Hitler of the idea on the ground that Herr Henlein's "proclamation" had already superseded this and a declaration that Germany would insist on the army marching almost immediately into the Sudeten territory.

NO PLEBISCITE.

Incidentally it may be mentioned (wires the "Daily Telegraph and Morning Post" Prague correspondent) that the temper of the people makes it certain that the Czech Government could not consent to any plebiscite proposal at this juncture, and that any attempt to make it do so would only result in the proclamation of a military dictatorship to supersede temporarily the Parliamentary system. So grave is the situation that it is considered that only one thing could restrain Herr Hitler from the contemplated act of aggression against the Czechs, for which all preparations down to the last details have now been completed:—

A public and unequivocal warning by Britain, France and Russia, that any act of aggression by Germany in Central Europe would meet with concerted resistance on the part of all three Powers.

Czecho-Slovakia, it was made clear, feels that the time for further concessions has passed, and is resolutely determined to face whatever may come steadfastly and with courage.

It is known that the country is now enclosed, as far as Germany's frontiers go, by a girdle of hostile troops. The heaviest German concentrations are along the Saxon frontier, and it is from here that the main assault is expected to come. The Czechs have now completed their preparations to defend their integrity and independence, and there is a general feeling that, having given quite astounding proof of goodwill and readiness for concessions, the moment has come when to yield another inch would provoke a grave internal revolt. That risk, it is definitely said, is not going to be taken.

GERMANY ARRESTS CZECHS.

On Friday began in Germany the arrests of a considerable number of prominent Czecho-Slovak citizens. The Czech Minister in Berlin, Dr. Mastny, protested against this action and was informed that these Czechs had been taken as hostages to prevent the penalties of martial law being applied to any of the arrested leaders of the unsuccessful Henleinist revolt.

Two-eleventh-hour appeals were broadcast by the German-speaking wireless station, Melnik. The first said—

"German citizens of our country. Foreign wirepullers are trying to drive the Sudeten Germans into civil war and to terrible catastrophe. Your towns and villages are to be sacrificed, your lives endangered. No question is so complicated that it could not be solved if an understanding is reached by goodwill on both sides."

A moving appeal was made by a German Catholic priest, who has been living since 1912 among the Sudeten Germans. He said—

"The leadership of the State has made an offer to us which reaches far beyond the conditions under which you have been living up till now. It secures equality, freedom, and above all, peace. This offer, which is made at an historic moment, must not be refused. The Sudeten Germans should not allow themselves to be misused as an object for tendencies to obtain political power."

The Council of Political Ministers considered the question of taking reprisals by arresting an equal number of German subjects in Czecho-Slovakia.

The proclamation of Herr Henlein demanding the Anschluss and cutting the painter from the Czech Republic has had one effect which was totally unexpected even by the Czechs themselves. Sub-leaders, gauleiters and district secretaries of the party, as well as the rank and file, in ever-increasing numbers are going to the Czecho-Slovak political authorities and announcing their unconditional allegiance.

HENLEIN'S COWARDICE.

The German-speaking radio station in Prague broadcast some historical data on Herr Henlein. It was recalled that he founded his party barely five years ago, and always declared that he was a loyal subject of the Republic, sharply attacking anyone who suggested that he was "a camouflaged Nazi."

When the leaders of the self-confessed German Nazi Party in Czecho-Slovakia, Herr Krebs and Herr Jung, fled the country a few years ago, leaving their followers without a leader, Herr Henlein severely condemned their action.

Now, the official broadcaster pointed out, he had closely followed their example, even inciting the rank and file to revolt while he himself was safely in Germany. The Sudeten German population, it was suggested, can now see for itself whether it did well to entrust its fate to the hands of people who have deserted at the critical moment.

HORROR OF WAR.

Two things help to explain this sudden revulsion of feeling among members of the Sudeten Party. One is the realisation that war, terrible as it will be for the Czechs and other races in the Republic, will at once bring all the worst imaginable horrors to the Sudeten population itself.

The Czech forward defence line runs straight through their territory, with outposts actually between them and the Reich. The heavily-fortified main line runs right along the rising ground, where the predominantly German-speaking districts become mainly Czech-speaking.

It is understandable that few Sudeten fathers living in that doomed no man's land can easily echo the heroic sentiments voiced by their late leaders from the security of Germany.

A second thing which explains this surprising change of attitude is the generally-forgotten fact that the Henlein Party received its sudden access of strength only under the emotional excitement caused at the moment of the German occupation of Austria.

Among well-known Henleinists who have disavowed their leaders is Herr Otto Ritter, leader of the dissolved party in the Asch district.

GERMANY NOT SO OPTIMISTIC

The effects of the news of Mr. Chamberlain's visit to Herr Hitler have worn off in Germany, says Reuter from Berlin.

The general mood, at any rate as expressed by newspapers on behalf of the Propaganda Ministry, is to-day not one of excessive optimism.

Indeed, judging from the papers, many official circles must share the view expressed in a headline over a Rome message in the "Boersen-Zeitung," which utters a warning "against false optimism."

Events, it is felt, must move swiftly now either for the betterment or worsening of the situation.

There is apparently a genuine fear that it may not be possible to keep the whole Czech situation in hand over any long period of negotiations, and that the cauldron may boil over despite the efforts of those who were trying to sit on the lid

This week-end everyone is looking to see what will now come out of London, but meanwhile the campaign against the Czechs is being kept simmering in Berlin by the propaganda machine of Dr. Goebbels.

A general easing of the situation is noticeable in Czecho-Slovakia itself.

It is stated from Rome that an official announcement expected last night foreshadowing a Four-Power Conference between Britain, Germany, Italy, and France has not so far been forthcoming.

Signor Mussolini, however, is expected to make important references to the international situation in his speech at Trieste to-morrow.

Crisis Items from Everywhere

U.S. Cabinet.

WASHINGTON, Friday — The U.S. Cabinet has been convened to consider the European situation. After conferring with President Roosevelt Mr. Norman Davis said he believed the prospects of a peaceful settlement had increased in the past 48 hours.—Exchange.

Rome's Solution.

ROME, Friday.—The partition of Czecho-Slovakia is being advanced in Rome as a solution of the Central European crisis.

Although Rome remains calm and appears to be playing the part of a spectator in the Mid-European drama, various suggestions have been put forward.

The idea of reorganising Czecho-Slovakia on lines similar to the Swiss Cantonal system is rejected by some sections of the Press. In their view the "dismemberment" of the Republic has now become necessary.

"The task of England and France," it is stated, "is to convince Prague that a conflict can be avoided."

The idea of a conference of the four Great Western Powers (Britain, Germany, France and Italy) is welcomed. The suggestion has been made in Italy before.

Signor Mussolini's speech at Trieste on Sunday is awaited with great eagerness, but the belief in well-informed circles tonight is that Italy is destined to play a secondary part in the Czech affair.—Central News.

Poland's Reaction.

The first authoritative reaction in Poland to Thursday's meeting at Berchtesgaden is a reiteration of the demand that the Polish minority in Czecho-Slovakia must be granted no less than the Sudeten Germans obtain in any settlement.

In words stronger than any used hitherto and with many passages heavily underlined, the semi-official "Kurjer Poranny" states:—"The time is near for the restitution of the land beyond the Olza, stolen from the Polish nation in 1919, and this we must say to-day clearly and categorically."

'Beyond the Olza" means the Teschen district of Silesia, where the Polish minority is concentrated. Teschen is of great economic importance because of its mineral wealth.

The "Kurjer Poranny" speaks of "the 200,000 Polish people beyond the Olza."

Every time a figure is mentioned it mounts higher. The Polish minority a few months ago was spoken of as 120,000, although the Czechs themselves have never admitted a figure higher than 80,000.

New Hitler Order.

By order of Herr Hitler the strength of the Women's Labour Corps in Germany is to be increased from 30,000 to 50,000 by April, 1940.

Communist View.

Mr. Chamberlain's visit to Herr Hitler was described as "a betrayal of the democratic front," by Mr. William Gallacher, M.P. for West Fife, president, at the opening session of the 15th congress of the Communist Party, at Birmingham Town Hall last night.

Mr. Gallacher said:—"By his action the Premier sought still further to weaken the democratic forces, and to strengthen the aggressive power of Herr Hitler and the German militarists."

Mr. Chamberlain had not gone to negotiate peace with Herr Hitler, but to betray Czecho-Slovakia. What Hitler was unable to do at Nuremberg he was able to do through Herr Henlein as soon as the visit of Mr. Chamberlain was proposed—to make demands for the possession of Czecho-Slovakian territory.

Already the beginnings of civil war were being stirred up. Only the most resolute attitude on the part of the peace forces throughout Europe could overcome the effects of the new betrayal.

The Communist Party declared its unity with the people of Czecho-Slovakia in their determination to maintain the territorial integrity of their country.

It demanded that the Government of this country should take its stand with France and Soviet Russia for the preservation of the independence of Czecho-Slovakia. Aggression instead of being encouraged should be checked.

A proposal to name a Parisian street after the British Premier is to be made at the next meeting of the Municipal Council by M. Taittinger, one of the Opposition leaders in Parliament.—Central News.

Unconditional Demands by Germany

"UNCONDITIONAL demands" are mentioned by the usually well-informed Berlin correspondent of the "Hamburger Fremdenblatt" to-day, commenting on the Berchtesgaden meeting.

"It may be assumed," he says, "that the British Prime Minister is now in possession of full knowledge of the unconditional demands whose fulfilment is regarded by the Reich as essential for a plebiscite and as the decisive issue of the hour.

"Any Anglo-German conversation under present conditions, though it may be dominated by the necessity of an immediate settlement of the crisis of the Czech State, will, moreover, extend to more far-reaching questions of interest to Europe, questions about which there does not exist a unanimous opinion even in the British Cabinet itself.

"The frontiers of Versailles, which are made of paper, must be replaced by frontiers of language, blood, and culture—that is, by natural frontiers. The perpetuation of the Czech centre of unrest is incompatible with the security of the German Reich."

FINANCIAL REVIEW

A WEEK OF DEPRESSION

POLITICS GOVERN MARKETS

HEAVY FALLS RECORDED

LONDON, Friday Night.—In the past week the stock and share market has suffered the worst period of depression since 1931, due of course to the increasingly tense conditions of the political situation on the Continent. A considerable amount of selling, both from the Continent and the Cape, forced respectively British Government stocks and gold shares down to what may be termed semi-panic levels, and in sympathy prices of all other securities were marked sharply lower.

WAR LOAN AT 96.

On Thursday, however, the markets were electrified by the news of the Prime Minister's visit to Berchtesgaden, and prices recovered a very large proportion of the falls that were previously registered. Thus War Loan, which at one time was marked down to the alarmingly low level of 96, at which price it showed a fall of nearly five points, shows now a decline of less than two points.

Further heavy falls have been recorded in the Home Railway market, due partly to the further batch of unsatisfactory traffic returns, showing an aggregate decrease in gross revenue of the group lines of £192,000, and bringing the decrease in revenue for the year to date to £3,895,000.

BUSINESS VERY SMALL

Prodigious falls were recorded on Tuesday and Wednesday on German and other Central European Government Bonds, but there has since been a sharp recovery also in the quotations of these issues.

Nevertheless the German "Young" Loan still shows at the new low rate of 33½ a fall of 5 points.

In the Industrial department Bank and Insurance Companies shares fell in sympathy with the fall in the funds, and while partial recoveries have been made here as in every other department of the "house," the falls still shown on the week are in several cases appreciable.

Business generally in the Industrial market has been of very small dimensions except in the case of the leading counters, such as "Bats," Imperials, Courtaulds, Chemicals, and a few others in which a considerable amount of speculative business has taken place.

WEAK MINING MARKET.

The Mining share market has passed through a week of great uncertainty. Unsettling news from various European political centres has resulted in a certain amount of nervous selling, and with an almost complete lack of fresh support prices in all directions have been severely lowered in an attempt to attract buyers or at least discourage sellers. On Thursday, however, markets staged a good recovery on the news that Mr. Chamberlain was to have a conference with Herr Hitler, but this recovery was short-lived, as on Friday the market again became dull on the uncertain outlook.

West Witwatersrands at one time touched 5 13-16, Western 13s 9d, Marievales 18s, Venterspost 1⅜, Gold Coast Selections 21s 6d, and Amalgamated Bankets 10s 6d.

The gold price at one time firmed to 144s 11d per fine ounce, but slipped back to 144s 3d per fine ounce on Thursday, only to again advance to 144s 8½d per fine ounce on Friday.

Coppers have moved in sympathy with gold shares.

Among Diamonds, De Beers Deferreds have moved irregularly and are lower on balance.

Tin shares and Miscellaneous Mines have been weaker.

OIL SHARES WEAKER.

Oil shares have presented a decidedly weaker appearance, as compared with a week ago. Prices rallied somewhat on Thursday, some optimism being expressed regarding the outcome of Mr. Chamberlain's visit to Herr Hitler, but reacted again on Friday. Anglo-Iranians and Canadian Eagles have fallen rather sharply, while Attocks have been marked down. Royal Dutch and Shells, although rallying slightly from the lowest points, are well down on the week.

RUBBERS DECLINE.

The Rubber share market has presented a dull appearance during the past week on a little selling on an unwilling market. After receding to 7 13-16d per lb., the price of the commodity recovered to 8¼d per lb., only to again weaken to 8d per lb. The leaders on Thursday staged some recovery, but lost this again on Friday.

TEA SHARES EASIER.

Business in Tea shares has been small, and price movements adverse to holders.

MORE "BEAR" SELLING

The market was surprised that the Premier should have returned so quickly from Germany, and as many adverse constructions were placed on the interview "bears" welcomed the opportunity to sell short. A temporary recovery ensued, because they were not certain that they would be able to carry over on Monday, but subsequently further bouts of selling were recorded. The latest news does not justify selling, and, as was stressed on Thursday, delays must be expected in the course of pourparlers. The fact that Mr. Chamberlain is going back to Germany is surely a most hopeful sign. The respite afforded by his visit to Herr Hitler is all to the good, for it will give time to those in control of the two opposing forces in Czecho-Slovakia to cool down. The next news, if any, will come from the British Cabinet.

DECLINING NEW MODDER.

The report of the New Modderfontein Gold Mining Co., Ltd., is always instructive, for no stone is left unturned to prolong the life of the mine. The New Modder is declining rapidly, for in 1936 97½ per cent. was paid in dividends absorbing £1,365,000, and for the year to June last 55 per cent. only was possible, the sum involved being £770,000. In 1936 the grade treated was 31s 8d per ton, and in the last 12 months 26s 5d. The total ore reserves are 7,996,600 tons of a value of 3.8 dwts or 26s 6d per ton with gold at 140s per oz. The reserves will keep the mill running nearly 3½ years, and assuming that dividends of 55 per cent. per annum be paid during this period the amount receivable would be just under £1 per shares as compared with a present market value of 26s income tax of about 3s in the pound must be deducted, so when taking into consideration amortisation, it is probable that dividends represent a return of capital. Although work is proceeding on the small leaders, and the black reef nothing much in the shape of new ore can be expected from them.

WORLD MOTOR OUTPUT SETBACK.

The prosperity of the oil industry depends to a large extent on the motor industry, and a sharp setback in the past half-year has occurred in the output of motors, so the Petroleum Press Bureau shows in its latest review. Production of private cars and commercial vehicles amounted to about 2,000,000 units, or 1,600,000 units less than in the corresponding period of last year. The output in the United States declined 57 per cent. in Great Britain 10 per cent. and in Canada 20 per cent. but German production rose by 12 per cent. and that of Russia over 17 per cent. Prospects for 1939 are considered to be more favourable, but a rapid recovery will be necessary to restore the figures to last year's record. The volume of output in the United States motor industry for the six months under review is lower than that for the corresponding period of 1934.

NEW CAPITAL FOR ATTOCK.

The directors of the Attock Oil Company have issued a circular announcing that results of drilling on the Dhulian field to date warrant the erection of a new and up-to-date refinery at Rawalpindi, capable of refining 3,500 to 4,000 barrels of crude oil per day. To provide the necessary funds it is proposed to create and issue 300,000 Ordinary £1 shares to be offered to shareholders at 5s per share premium. The Burmah Oil Company have the right to be offered 35,294 of the new shares, allowing for which holders of the existing ordinary shares will be entitled to one new share for every 5,666 existing ordinary shares, or the equivalent of 0.176 new share for each existing share held. The new shares will not participate in the moderate dividend which the directors expect to be able to recommend in respect of profits for year ending December 31, 1938, but will in all other respects rank pari passu with the existing ordinary shares. The existing refinery will be kept in condition and retained as a standby, though normally it will not be economical to work it as a separate unit.

COURTAULDS NEW SECRETARY.

Courtaulds Limited announce the retirement on December 31, 1938, of the secretary, Mr. Ernest Kettle, after 39 years' service with the company, and the appointment of Mr. Cecil Wilfred Sheldon as secretary of the company as at January 1, 1939.

The Pullman Car Company announces that it has funds available for the purchase of the 5 per cent. Cumulative Income stock that falls to be redeemed during the current year. In these circumstances the company is prepared to receive offers up to the 19th inst. from stockholders who are willing to sell all or part of their holdings.

TIN CO. TO HALVE CAPITAL.

Larut Tin Fields Limited, operating in Malaya, proposes to halve its capital by reducing the same from £600,000 to £300,000 by writing the shares down from £1 to 10s each; the shares are then to be sub-divided into two shares of 5s each.

WHERE ULSTER SETS EIRE A LEAD.

PROVISION OF GAS MASKS.

"HEADS IN SAND" IN DUBLIN.

The news that Belfast is to have half a million gas masks as the first instalment of its A.R.P. equipment next week prompted many people in Dublin on Friday to ask what is being done by the Eire Government to protect its citizens against gas and air attacks.

In official quarters no information can be gleaned beyond the fact that a comparatively small sum has recently been made available for A.R.P. purposes in the Army, but this presumably is to provide equipment for the troops.

During the past year officers and N.C.O.'s in the Eire Army have received training in A.R.P., given by senior officers who completed courses themselves in England, and this year medical students in the University Army Cadet Corps have also done special courses to fit them to go out through the country as A.R.P. instructors, but so far no big organised effort to protect or instruct the civilian population in A.R.P. has been carried out. The North in this respect is very much ahead of Eire.

The St. John Ambulance Brigade is the only civil organisation in the city which has trained its members in A.R.P., but its activities are confined to Dublin.

Inquiries from different parts of the Twenty-six Counties (writes the "Telegraph" Dublin correspondent) reveal widespread interest in possible needs, but, generally speaking, people are waiting to see what the Government proposes to do.

For some extraordinary reason people here seem to think this country will be immune from gas attacks and aerial bombardments if a European war on a big scale broke out, despite the fact that the South of Ireland would be an important source of food supplies to Britain. People seem to be "burying their heads in the sand" in Dublin, they treat the whole question of A.R.P. so lightly.

THE WEEKLY SURVEY.

BIG FALL IN WAR LOAN.

ATTRACTED MANY LOCAL BUYERS.

The accentuation of the crisis in Central Europe during the past week further reduced the volume of business on the Belfast Stock Exchange. This attracted buyers and the turnover in this stock was greatly increased. Opening transactions were at 100⅛ and 100⅜, subsequently the quotation fell away to 96⅞-97, and finished at 99⅛-99⅜. Other Gilt-edged stocks also lost ground. 4 per cent. Consols changed hands at 107⅜ and 106 7-16. 3½ per cent. Conversion Loan, after being recorded at 99¾ and 99⅝, weakened to 96⅛. 4½ per cent Guaranteed Bonds eased to 112. Local Loans reacted, being done at 85 9-16, 85⅜, and 86. Bank shares were flat, but in most cases closed above the worst. Midland Bank Parts were dealt in at 9 17-32 and the £1 Fully Paid shares at 83s 4½d. Northern Bank "A" fetched 90s, closing with sellers at this price and buyers bidding 88s 9d. B shares are offered at 45s. Westminster Bank Parts were done at 89s 6d and subsequently recovered to 94s.

MINISTRY INTEREST IN UNEMPLOYED.

PHYSICAL TRAINING.

HAPPY GOVERNMENT IDEAL.

MR. J. F. GORDON AT TAMAR STREET

Mr. John F. Gordon, Minister of Labour, paid his first official visit to the Department's new Physical Training Centre at Tamar Street, Belfast.

Following an inspection of the centre during which Mr. Gordon chatted with many of the unemployed taking the courses, the Minister addressed those present.

Mr. Gordon said that the Government were conscious of the fact that unemployment did not merely mean that a man lost the opportunity of being a wage earner. They realised that the unemployed man was faced with a changed set of circumstances.

With the limited means at an unemployed man's disposal, it was not always possible for him to carry on the various forms of activity in which he was interested. He was bound to feel the pinch, and he found that time hung heavily on his hands. In the changed conditions there was a danger of a man's physical and moral qualities deteriorating. If he had character and personality he would like to spend his time of enforced idleness in some way that would be advantageous to him. He was anxious to keep his body in a fit physical condition in order that when opportunity offered he might again take his place as a self-respecting and productive unit of industry.

PLAN TO BENEFIT MEN.

The ancients, observed Mr. Gordon, had a maxim which would be true for all time, that a sound body and a sound mind went together. The Ministry of Labour were not satisfied that their task was merely to disburse unemployment insurance benefit and unemployment assistance. They took the wider view, that they were concerned also with securing that the unemployed did not suffer physical and moral impairment in their periods of unemployment, and those physical training classes were one of the means the Ministry had adopted to attain that end.

Mr. Gordon added that the classes had been organised with a single eye to their benefit, and it was hoped that they would take the fullest advantage of them. The Department, of which he had now the honour to be the head, had decided to make available for the unemployed every possible facility for the conduct of those courses, and they had fitted out that Government-owned hall in a way that would be conducive to the success of the classes.

The delay in adapting the hall prevented the Belfast classes from being started as early as those in Londonderry, where a gymnasium had been hired for the purpose. The classes in the Maiden City commenced in May last, and already approximately 500 men had taken advantage of the courses. In Derry, as in Belfast, every man was a volunteer. Those whom he was addressing had decided of their own initiative to attend at those physical training classes.

REMOVING HANDICAPS.

It would not be fair to ask them to engage in the exercises in their own clothes; indeed they would be handicapped if they tried to do so, and the Ministry were providing them with a working kit, consisting of shoes, shorts, vest and towel. In order to satisfy to some extent the appetite that the classes would develop, the Ministry were supplying them each session with a glass of milk and a few biscuits.

Efforts were also being made to secure the use of a playing pitch in which they could indulge in outdoor games. There again suitable kit would be provided for them. All those classes and games would be under the guidance of fully-qualified instructors, the aim of all concerned being to make the work as attractive and beneficial as possible.

Finally, he would again assure them that the classes were organised for their benefit, and he wanted them to take a keen interest in the classes and to attend regularly. The Ministry had done what they could, and it now remained for them to play their part. He wished them every success. (Applause.)

PALESTINE BATTLE.

EFFECTIVE AIR FORCE WORK.

MURDEROUS GANG ENGAGED

KIDNAPPERS CAUGHT IN THE ACT.

Details are now available of the biggest action in Palestine during the present disturbances, which took place on Thursday about 12 miles north-west of Ramallah, near Deir Ghassen, wires the Jerusalem correspondent of the "Daily Telegraph and Morning Post."

It is officially announced that the R.A.F. inflicted over 140 casualties on an armed band.

An R.A.F. machine on reconnaissance patrol duty first observed the band, which consisted of about 300 men, and summoned assistance from Ramleh Aerodrome, meanwhile engaging the band.

Twelve other R.A.F. aircraft soon appeared and joined in the action, which continued until dark. It is estimated that one-third of the band was wiped out. Several aircraft were hit, but there were no casualties to the crews and no craft was disabled. All returned safely to Ramleh in the early evening.

MACHINES STANDING BY.

The band so severely decimated while travelling en masse, is believed to be that responsible for the recent attacks on police posts, telephones and water pumping stations in the Jerusalem district.

This was the band which invaded Bethlehem on Tuesday, when the Post Office, Town Hall, and police station were attacked and set on fire.

The invasion of Ramallet last week and the concerted attack on Enab police post the same night are believed to be attributed to the same men, travelling sometimes in small and sometimes in large contingents.

The prompt arrival of the 'planes on Thursday was due to the arrangement whereby four machines are always standing by outside the hangar. Another is wheeled out as soon as one takes off.

The organisation is such that a 'plane takes off within 60 second after a call is received and within 40 minutes can be at the farthest point of its distance from the Ramleh base.

BAND BOMBED IN ROAD.

It was officially stated on Friday evening that 11 of an armed band numbering 18 were killed at dusk on Wednesday night.

The pilot of an R.A.F. machine on reconnoitring duty observed a party of armed men travelling on the Latrun-Umbhalkha road which is closed to traffic. He opened first, hitting 11 of the men. The remainder of the band escaped in the darkness.

It is believed that this was the band which murdered a supernumerary policeman and aterwards hid in Aquir Village. It was observed on leaving the village and attacked by police and troops. Three of the band were killed, and others are believed to have been hit by co-operating aircraft.

Kidnappers were caught in the act for the first time on Thursday night. The Arab canteen manager for the troops at Haifa was inveigled into a car and found himself surrounded by five gangsters. On reaching the outskirts of the city the car was stopped by marines from the battleship Malaya, who were conducting a systematic check on all vehicles.

The victim was released and the other occupants of the car, all Arabs, were arrested.

Troops on Friday morning engaged a band after an attack on a Jewish taxi on the Haifa-Nazareth Road. They killed one and captured three armed men.

CRISIS COMMENTS.

"COURAGEOUS PILGRIMAGE."

CALMS DISTRAUGHT WORLD.

NEW YORK, Friday.—Still a little dazed by Mr. Chamberlain's spectacular flight to Berchtesgaden and his equally abrupt return, Americans to-day were confused in their reactions to Europe's swiftly moving crisis. There was, however, general agreement that Mr. Chamberlain's visit had at least had the important effect of calming, if only momentarily, world unrest and hysteria.

Americans were impressed by the picture of Britain's 69-year-old Premier taking to his first aeroplane flight on a mission of world importance. His courageous pilgrimage, it was felt, had enormously decreased the immediate danger of a general conflagration, and it was hoped might be the opening move to transfer the Sudeten crisis from a dangerous field of independent action into the less explosive atmosphere of a round-table discussion.

Opinion was united that Mr. Chamberlain's decision was a bold and statesmanlike act, and that whether it fails or succeeds it puts on record England's real desire for peace at any reasonable sacrifice.

Pending information on what transpired at Herr Hitler's mountain retreat Press comment is naturally indefinite.

The "New York Herald Tribune" declares that the three-hour conversation of unknown import has suddenly brought calm into a distraught world. "The idea that the Sudeten issues are a valid cause for war now seems fantastically unreal and as incredible as nightmare in the light of morning," it is stated. "The nightmare may return, but this one bit of reasonableness amid lunacy has at least shown how preposterous the catastrophe would be."

The "New York Times" describes the visit as a spectacular and unmistakable demonstration of the will of peace of the democracies, and expresses the opinion that Mr. Chamberlain's expectation of further consultations with Herr Hitler is a pretty sure indication that some basis for a settlement has been discussed.

HUNGARY'S PROTEST.

BUDAPEST, Friday.—Hungarian Government to-day sent a sharp note to the Czech Government protesting against the alleged march of Czech troops along the Hungarian border.—Reuter.

NEW ZEALAND UNITY.

WELLINGTON (N.Z.), Friday.—The leader of the New Zealand Opposition has conveyed a promise to the Government that in the event of war the Opposition would act in full co-operation with the Government in seeing that New Zealand took its full share of responsibility as a unit of the Empire.—Exchange.

INDIAN MAHARAJAH'S OFFER.

BIKANER (INDIA), Friday.—The Maharajah of Bikaner, ruler of nearly 10,000,000 people, in the seventh largest State of India, has telegraphed to the Viceroy offering all his resources to the King-Emperor in the event of war involving Great Britain.

The Maharajah, who is 58 years of age, made a similar offer at the outbreak of the Great War in 1914, and troops from his State served in Egypt and Palestine. The Maharajah himself saw active service in France and Egypt.—Reuter.

WHAT DUCE'S MOUTHPIECE SAYS.

Signor Gayda, who generally expresses the views of Signor Mussolini, writing in the "Giornale d' Italia," states that at the Berchtesgaden talk Herr Hitler asked Mr. Chamberlain to think over and decide on a Sudeten plebiscite.

This solution, he states, is necessary and has noteworthy precedents—the separation of Belgium from Holland in 1830, of Norway from Sweden, and of Iceland from Denmark.

The British Government's opinion was not known, but Prague had led Britain and France into error. Herr Hitler said well at Nuremberg when he declared that he would not tolerate a repetition of May 21, when German troops were reported to be massing on the Czecho-Slovak frontier.

Britain and France must face and isolate Czecho-Slovakia to localise the explosion already gathering force there. Not days, but hours were decisive. Signor Gayda criticises the optimism of the British and French newspapers after their "gloomy pessimism" of the preceding days, considering it to be typical of "hysteria afflicted by grave functional defects."

The situation demanded "an urgent, concrete and totalitarism solution as set forth in Signor Mussolini's letter of Thursday to Viscount Runciman," which urged a plebiscite. Signor Gayda declares that even Mr. Chamberlain's courageous visit to Herr Hitler cannot destroy the evil effects of the situation.

The "Lavoro Fascista," on the other hand, thinks that notable progress was made because Mr. Chamberlain recognised the impossibility of the Sudetens and Czechs living side by side. The paper sponsors the idea of four-Power negotiations between Britain, France, Italy and Germany.

DECEIVING THE WORLD.

Great indignation is expressed in Berlin at the order issued in Prague that all weapons in the possession of unauthorised persons must be handed over, on pain of severe penalties. Since it is hotly denied in Berlin that the Sudeten Germans ever had any arms, it is suggested that the order is intended to deceive the world about conditions in the Sudeten German districts.

"Prague," the "Berliner Tageblatt" declares, "needs this pretext to camouflage its measures for the arming of the so-called Red Guard on which the Benes system is relying to an increasing extent. Does Prague want to turn the Sudeten area into a second Spain?

"Can Europe, which is struggling with all the means in its power to maintain peace, permit the creation of a second Spanish conflagration? Is a state where the underworld is being armed worthy to be treated as such? The world must now recognise Prague for what it is, a headquarters of incendiaries in the heart of Europe."

MR. MACKENZIE KING CRITICISED.

The "Times" Toronto correspondent wires—The "Toronto Globe and Mail," criticising Mr. Mackenzie King, the Prime Minister, says that while he cheered Mr. Chamberlain on his mission it would have been more appropriate, effective, and realistic if he had sent a message declaring Canada's unwavering determination to stand four square with the Mother Country regardless of what happens.

ZEPPELIN TRIAL FLIGHT.

24-HOUR TOUR OVER GERMANY.

BERLIN, Saturday.—The new Graf Zeppelin started out from Friedrichshaven to-day on a 24-hour flight over Germany. This is the first extended trial.—Reuter.

Dr. Hugo Eckener is in command. There are 85 people on board, including air officers and officials of the Aeronautical Research Institute.

The new Graf Zeppelin is a sister of the Hindenburg, which burst into flames at Lakehurst (N.J.) last year.

She is still inflated with hydrogen, but it is stated that she will not attempt a North Atlantic crossing until she is filled with helium or some other light non-inflammable gas.

Embodying many new features, she is fitted with the most modern instruments for navigation.—Reuter.

ROYAL MATERNITY HOSPITAL.

At the monthly meeting of the Committee of Management it was reported that there had been during the month of August 182 patients admitted, 125 babies born. The highest number of beds occupied was 90.

The hon. treasurer reported the receipt of the following—Messrs. Whyte, Reid & Mitchell, Ltd., 10s 6d.

LATE EARL IVEAGH.

ESTATE RESWORN AT £13,486,146.

SOME NOTABLE BEQUESTS.

£65,000 FOR DUBLIN CATHEDRAL.

The estate of the late Rt. Hon. Edward Cecil, 1st Earl of Iveagh, chairman of Arthur Guinness, Son & Co., Ltd., and one of the leading philanthropists of his day, which was provisionally valued at £11,000,000 at the time of his death in 1927, has now been resworn at £13,486,146.

In addition to the many pictures which he left to the nation his principal bequests included:

£125,000 to the Representative Church Body of the Protestant Church in Ireland for the augmentation of the livings of the poorer clergy.

£65,000 to St. Patrick's Cathedral, Dublin, for the upkeep of the cathedral.

£60,000 to the King Edward's Hospital Fund.

GOOD BOWLING BY INGRAM.

THE AUSTRALIAN GAME.

BADCOCK AND BARNES 50'S.

HOME SIDE AGAIN START BADLY.

The last two Australian wickets put on 74 runs in the final day's play of their match against Ireland at College Park, Dublin. This was mainly due to a grand stand in the ninth wicket of 70 runs by Badcock (52) and Barnes (53). Ingram took seven wickets for 83 runs—a very impressive performance.

Ireland, going in the second time 139 in arrears, lost two wickets for 17 runs before lunch.

Badcock (35 not out) and Barnes (0 not out) set about to consolidate the Australians' position this morning, the game being resumed in bright sunshine before a crowd of over 2,000.

Macdonald and Ingram were the bowlrs. Barnes got away quickly with a 6 off Ingram and 4's off each bowler in turn—glorious sweeps to leg. Shearer won frequent applause for his fielding on the boundary, where he saved many runs.

With Boucher again unfit, Macdonald had only three regular bowlers, and when Billingsley came on as first relief Barnes cracked him for three smashing fours in one over. With two more fours off Macdonald he ran to 53 in 50 minutes' really brilliant batting.

Mellon came on and bowling a steady length he had Barnes leg before at 235. Barnes hit one six and eight fours in a perfect display of batting. The ninth wicket put on 70 runs.

Ingram came on for Macdonald and Badcock completed his 50 with a single, by cultured batting, too. Ingram bowled Badcock to close the Australian innings at 239 and incidentally to complete a grand piece of bowling:—

O.	M.	R.	W.
30.4	8	83	7

He was steadiness personified, and the only batsmen who made him look loose were M'Cabe and Barnes. Macdonald, too, bowled well, far better than his figures. The fielding all through the innings was splendid, with Cuffe, the wicketkeeper, scoring a personal triumph by dismissing five batsmen.

Waite and White were Australia's opening bowlers when Ireland, 139 in arrears, batted the second time. T. J. Macdonald and Larmour were back with only half-a-dozen runs scored, Macdonald leg before and Larmour caught at second slip. Shearer and Ingram survived confidently until the luncheon interval.

WHAT THE DETECTIVE SAW

AFTER SPEAKING TO A CALLER.

A detective's astuteness led to the appearance at the Belfast Custody Court to-day of Thomas J. Morrow, 44 Constance Street, charged with stealing a showerproof coat from a house in The Mount. Head-Constable P. Walsh prosecuted.

Detective-Constable H. Gillespie, 23 The Mount, said accused came to the door of his lodgings yesterday and asked him if he knew where a Miss M'Kee lived. Witness told him he did not, but told him to inquire at another house. On looking out a few minutes later, he saw the accused walking down the street wearing a coat which he had not had before. When stopped by witness, he admitted taking it from the house to which he had been directed, saying he did it to get a night's lodging.

Accused, who said he had drink taken and pleaded for a chance, was placed under the Probation of Offenders Act, Mr. W. F. M'Coy, R.M., advising him not to be so foolish again.
